Westminster Hill school, Miss Kimball, teacher, made bouquets for the graves of the 26 Revolutionary heroes and placed the flags in markers early Memorial day morning.

For the first time in years the school as a whole did not go to Spicer private cemetery, as Miss Kimball had been informed that those graves had been decorated already, it having been done by two children of the school, their little brother and Miss Newton, their older sister. The two graves in that yard have the D. A. R. markers, while those in the Westminster church yard have S. A. R. markers. It is a matter of regret that the graves in most of the other of Westminster's yards are not accessible to the pupils, even were they identified.

THE CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

In selecting the leadership and the platform for the campaign of 1924 the republicans now assembling at Cleveland should remember that the party has a fight on its hands this year. It must not be expected that the campaign of 1924 will be a repetition of 1920. The democrats are ready for war with high explosives.

The democrats have an "ace" in [illegible] who is their greatest asset. While his prestige has been steadily rising since last August, that of a considerable part of the leadership of his party has just as steadily fallen. He has been weighed by the rank and file of his own party and has not been found wanting. If the direct primary has any significance, that imposing procession of delegates marching into the Coolidge column may be taken as an indication that the men and women who mark the ballots have accepted his leadership, endorsed his ideas and approved his policies.

Republican voters have laid a mandate upon the Cleveland convention to emphasize the Coolidge leadership in every way possible. At the same time it should be made plain that outlaw republicans have no longer any place in the ranks and those of the old guard who have shattered and wrecked the administration programme should be shoved into the background. The less seen of them at Cleveland the better.

As to the platform, it should be short, sharp and hard-hitting. The radicals would be satisfied with nothing short of the surrender of the majority to a minority. There will be more room for constructive action with them out of the way and the convention should make it easy for them to take their hats and go. The voters who have supported Coolidge in the primaries expect a Coolidge platform, as straightforward, honest and direct as the man himself.

The republican party has made up its mind and it merely remains for the Cleveland convention to record that decision. The nomination is in fact all but accomplished, yet the responsibility upon the Cleveland convention is great to emphasize the Coolidge leadership in no unmistakable way. It must make the most of its greatest asset.

HIGHWAY PILFERING.

When the summer tourist season opens, it ushers in a period of anxiety for those who own property on possibly remote but much traveled highways. All too often the complaint is that motorists fail to recognize that farms and camps along these highways are private property. The trouble is due to heedlessness rather than actual malice, but the reaction is more likely than not to bring hardship upon the innocent rather than upon the immediate offenders.

It is not deliberate thievery to which reference is made, such as can be put into the hands of the police, but pilfering so petty that oftentimes the victim does not consider it worth while to call in the authorities. Taken altogether, however, it is a source of great annoyance to those whose premises suffer from it and who cannot be blamed for being incensed at the thought that they cannot leave their places unguarded for a few hours without the fear of finding evidences of molestation when they return.

Helpfulness and courtesy to travelers in distress is the normal inclination of most country dwellers, whether farmers or campers. Mutual helpfulness is of necessity the rule in regions where people are far more dependent upon their neighbors than those who dwell in cities and villages. But after one has found his orchard or garden plundered, his fields trampled, his cottage entered, his piazza cluttered, his tools borrowed and left scattered about, it is no more than natural for him to acquire a slumbering hostility against all tourists, and the effect is seen when one applies for aid and is met either with a curt refusal or possibly a grudging response and a charge for services that appears exorbitant.

PULLING ON THE TREASURY.

Although the deficiency bill failed of passage in the last minutes of congress, one of its provisions makes an interesting item of study for taxpayers. Of the total of $158,000,000 in the bill, the sum of $132,000,000 was for meeting the first year's cost of the machinery for administering the soldiers' bonus bill. Republican leaders now declare that only a special session of congress can now provide the funds necessary for the initial costs of the bonus bill. Probably the greater part of this will be expended in salaries and expenses of a new lot of government clerks, and as it is always the experience that the cost of government bureaus is constantly increasing, it is apparent that the taxpayers have no hope of escaping yearly assessments on a fixed scale for expenses in addition to the payments for insurance.

Unless the public impresses upon members of congress that further bonus legislation will not be tolerated, the load put upon taxpayers by the latest government bureau will be made heavier. Already there are expressions of dissatisfaction with the insurance feature that does not provide ready cash, and more than one candidate for re-election has seen the possibilities for getting votes in promising to support bills for cash payments. With the passage of such a bill, naturally the employment of more clerks and officials would be required and the initial sum of $132,000,000 would fall far short of meeting the expenses of the bonus bureau. In this there is a warning for the taxpayers that they should not fail to heed.

If what was indicated by a Boston newspaper's poll means anything, when it showed that Senator Lodge's stand against the president was disapproved by a vote of a hundred to one, it looks as if numerous candidates in the coming campaign are certain to find embarrassment in explaining why they refused to approve the president's well-considered veto message.

REPORT ON OIL LEASES.

Senator Walsh of Montana wins respect for the calm and judicial manner in which he has written the report on the investigation of the oil leases. The outpourings of tale bearers and rumor mongers, which were unsupported by competent evidence, are swept aside and the report proceeds in a dispassionate way to condemn those things in which a lamentable disregard of public rights was shown. There is a strong condemnation of the leases made by Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior, to Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny. They were made not only with flagrant disregard of law but they are "indefensibly wasteful." In the case of Teapot Dome, it is argued that the navy would have obtained only 1,666,000 barrels of oil out of the Dome's estimated capacity of 22,000,000 barrels. No such sacrifice would have been needed to meet the drainage danger.

In dealing with the receipt of $100,000 by Secretary Fall from Mr. Doheny, Senator Walsh stops short of charging actual bribery, but characterizes this as "reprehensible" in the last degree. Whether the transfer of the money was only a loan is not discussed, but this is a question to which the people may ultimately expect an answer from the grand jury investigation. The report completely exonerates Edwin Denby, who resigned as secretary of the navy, and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., assistant secretary, from "any part whatever in negotiations that led up to the leases."

Diligent inquiry, also says Senator Walsh, fails to establish the existence of any understanding between oil operators and others whereby republican national convention proceedings were influenced in 1920. In other words there is a lack of evidence to confirm what would have amounted to a sinister conspiracy to grant private interests the privilege of exploiting public resources in return for political support.

"Had the legislation enacted by congress been observed in its spirit in dealing with the reserves, had it not been wrested out of all reason to afford some appearance of justification for the course pursued, further action by the lawmaking branch might not be necessary," the report states. The findings speak eloquently of a situation in which there was a lamentable lack of regard for public rights. For this not only the interior department, but also the department of justice, as formerly conducted, can not be condemned too severely.

PLANS FOR THE SUMMER

"I can't decide whether we'll go to Piecrust lake again or take a cottage at Silver Fork dells," mused the bright and far-seeing young person when her family was all assembled to hear her muse. "There's a good deal to be said for either one."

"I hope you'll let us know where we're going in time for me to buy tickets," said the long-suffering father. "I didn't know it was decided that we were going any place this summer?"

"Oh, we have to!" the bright and far-seeing daughter told him. "Skipping what you have to say about the currency question and coming down to solid facts, it's getting along where I've got to look around, get married and settle down, and after thinking it over I believe I can turn the trick this summer at either of the two places mentioned, so—"

"I never heard such talk, Hyperia!" the scandalized mother of the bright daughter told her. "People don't get married as brutally at that!"

"They do, but they won't admit it," persisted the bright and far-seeing daughter. "This way saves time. I suppose I could go to Piecrust lake, where that perfectly delightful bachelor, Colfax Binks, has his wonderful estate. There I could watch every minute to see him coming, and then hurl myself in his pathway, and you could drop a tear and tell him what a perfectly wonderful daughter I was. And after we had landed him, I could look surprised and innocent, and you could say to all the other mothers that wasn't it odd how fate had brought your little Hyperia and Colfax together when they lived so far apart?—and it would be all right. But you cringe when I tell you to give me the high sign when you see his speedboat coming down the lake so I can accidentally fall in just as he arrives to save me. It's because you aren't honest in your mind, mother.

"Colfax has been so pursued and spoiled that all that is necessary to attract him is to dash cold water in his face by telling him plain truths and squelching him. If we go ther I am intending to complain about his neckties, his head gardener, the way he sails a boat and the make of car he had this year, and probably I shall yawn in his face. From surprise he will progress to indignation, exasperation and a desire to revenge himself, and after his interest is thus aroused, there is not the slightest chance of escape for him.

"But there are some nice people going to Silver Fork dells this year. There will be the Barnacle Twins, who win golf championships right and left and are dandy college boys and had a grandfather who dug up millions—and two eligible widowers. It seems as though among them I could grad one.

"Yes, I think it is lots better and more honest for me to figure out the pros and cons of this serious question. Then, after deciding which direction is best, to pursue that course. I think it is up to my family with my best interests at heart to help me decide."

"I'll decide right now," the long-suffering father spoke up determinedly. "And it'll be lots more economical. My partner's nephew is coming on this summer to work in our office and I hear he is tall, dark, handsome, unattached and has a bank account and while I don't wish him any ill luck—"

"Really!" gasped the bright and far-seeing daughter all agog with new interest. "I'm sort of tired of those other men anyhow and it would only be kind to stay in town and help this attractive young man get acquainted! When did you say he was due?"

"They may have new theories but they're just the same as ever, nevertheless," said the long-suffering father to himself, apropos of nothing."

BEVERIDGE HAD TO WORK AND WAIT.

Early in boyhood Albert J. Beveridge, though his parents were struggling with poverty, set the United States senate as his goal—and it took him years of gruelling hardships to attain it.

From the Ohio farm, on which he was born in Civil war times, the family moved to Illinois, where his was a life of privations. Plowboy at 12, railway laborer at 14, logger and teamster at 15, he joined his father in renting a wheat field, hoping to get money for an education, but the torrid suns burned him back to the verge of beggary. He tried for West Point, but laughed at a joke during the examination and was penalized several points losing even then by only a fifth of one per cent.

Edward Anderson, a local lumberman, offered him $50 and ordered him off to the university. Long before his career there ended, he had repaid the loan, but only by working as steward in a college eating club, selling books in vacation and winning many cash prizes did he achieve a bachelor's and then a master's degree at De Pauw university.

Lacking $300 for his senior year, he determined to win all the cash prizes offered. Excepting the prize for Latin, he took all of the answers, including the $100 prize for oratory, and then carried off the intercollegiate oratorical trophy.

As a lawyer in Indianapolis he fought the machine, made money in big litigation and was chosen United States senator by the Indiana legislature in 1899, when he was 36. Re-elected at the expiration of his first term, he lost, in 1910, by a small margin.

Becoming a progressive, he was defeated for governor in 1911. Since then he has tried in vain to return to the senate. In 1922 he was nominated in the primaries, but failed of election.

He has been an indefatigable writer and he crowned his literary work in 1919 with the greatest life of John Marshall, first chief justice of the United States, that has been written.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

One of the picturesque figures brought to the forefront of French politics by the success of the socialists in the recent parliamentary elections is Paul Boncourt, who is one of the acknowledged leaders of the socialist party. M. Boncourt is a lawyer by profession and one of the most successful members of the Paris bar. It was he who was delegated by the socialist party to prosecute Villain, who had shot Jean Jaures, the idol of the socialists. He has also obtained a great reputation as an educationalist and has spoken and written much on this subject. As an orator he yields place to few men in French public life. His speech against the decree laws in the last parliament was perhaps his masterpiece. He is numbered among the most intellectual members of the socialist party, among whom are to be found many who have made great names for themselves in the arts and professions.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Clever Chippy Chipmunk.

When you've learned a happy thing
Something always seems to sing
In your heart and you can't wait
Till you reach the little gate.
Home again just like a bird
To tell dear mother all you've heard.

Yes sir. That's what Little Jack Rabbit always did. No sooner had Professor Jim Crow read some interesting news from his Wisdom Book than back to the dear Old Bramble Patch hopped the little bunny boy to tell Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, all about it.

And out of the last story into this one he hopped to explain to her all that Chippy Chipmunk had told him.

"Isn't he a knowing little fellow?" concluded Little Jack Rabbit as Lady Love opened the oven door to see if the cherry pie was baked.

"He is, indeed," she answered, closing the iron door, for the pie crust was still as white as the linen table cloth on the neat little table.

"He isn't afraid of large animals," went on the little rabbit. "They can't squeeze into his front door like Old Man Weasel can. But he's afraid of large birds like Hungry Hawk and Tooty Owl."

"Dear me!" laughed the pretty bunny mother. "Your head is just full of Chippy Chipmunk. Did you hear him whistle?"

"What! Can he whistle?" exclaimed the bunny boy.

"Of course he can," answered Lady Love. "You make believe some day that you don't see him as you pass by. He will be so disappointed that he'll whistle."

"Dear, dear," sighed the bunny boy. "I'm too fond of Chippy Chipmonk to do that.

"Then you'll never hear him whistle," answered Lady Love, with a knowing nod. "He only whistles when you pass by without noticing him."

Just then the dutiful little cuckoo popped out of her tiny clock house on the wall and shouted:

"The cherry pie is crispy brown,
It's time to take it out.
Another minute it will burn
And then how you will pout."

"Gracious me!" exclaimed Lady Love, opening the oven door with the end of her apron. "I would have forgotten all about it, and I took such pains with the crust. Thank you, dear little bird. Uncle Lucky will be over this evening and I baked the cherry pie especially for him."

"Ha, ha," laughed the little rabbit. "Is Uncle Lucky coming? Maybe he's already hopping up the path through the [illegible]" and the bunny [illegible] and looked out. But the dear old gentleman rabbit wasn't there. No, there was nobody in sight.

"Dear me," sighed the bunny boy. "I wish he'd come."

"He'll soon be here," the hollyhocks nodded as Billy Breeze scampered over the Sunny Meadow. And if you're good and go to bed early, I'll tell you what happened after that.

GAVE NOON HOUR TALK AT RADIATOR PLANT

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts addressed the men of the Richmond Radiator Co., on Timeliness, at the noon hour Monday under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. He spoke in part as follows:

In the book of Ecclesiastics, there is a chapter preaching that about everything under the sea worth having has its time and place. There is a time to be home, to eat, to sleep, to grow. No other time will do quite as well as that of natural appointment.

Among other things this chapter tells is "there is a time to get." Now the things worth getting; those that we must have if we live at all are divided into two classes, 1. those that come to us without our seeking, like sunlight, air, a mother's love, while these things may be sought, yet, they come to us without any seeking agency of ours. 2. The things that we must seek and seek earnestly if they are to be ours. God makes the earth capable of furnishing us food, but He does not put it into our mouths. Man must go out and cooperate with nature if he is to be fed. The same is true of the clothing he wears. God never makes ready-made suits. He furnishes wool and cotton, man must do the rest. He must get the material and prepare it for use.

Now there is a proper time for these activities; no other time will do quite so well. Man must not only go out and get fruit and vegetables but he must go at the right time. He does not go out and gather them in January any more than ice men go after their crop in June.

1. There is one time, and no other time for getting bodily growth.

2. For the average person there is only one time for getting an education.

3. There is only one best time for forming character.

4. There is a proper time for earning, spending and saving money.

BUT SHOWING IS NOT IMPRESSIVE

New York, June 9.—The championship aspirations of Harry Wills sustained a setback tonight when the giant negro heavyweight failed to knockout Bartley Madden, rugged West Side Irishman, in a 15-round match at the Queensboro Stadium.

Wills won the judges' decision and gained it by a decisive margin but Madden, fighting one of the most courageous battles seen in a Metropolitan ring in years, stood up under the negro's most terrific attacks.

Wills gained his great advantage in reach and 25 pounds margin in weight to good advanage battered Madden all over the ring, opened nasty cuts about his opponent's ears, mouth and eyes, but the hardest punches of the negro failed to more than shake the tough West Sider.

Fighting the last four rounds with a stream of blood blinding his vision, Madden stood up under a terrific bombardment and at times brought the crowd of 20,000 to its feet in recognition of his gameness by lashing out in a counter offensive.

Wills had Madden on the verge of a knockout at least twice, once in the fifth round when a shower of blows to the head sent the Irishman reeling to a corner, and again in the twelfth, when it seemed that Madden must go down under the attack that sent blood gushing from the cuts about his head.

Throughout the last three rounds, Wills, sensing that his prestige was suffering a bitter blow, grimly fought for an opening. He clubbed Madden viciously, but his hardest blows seemed to have no decisive effect on the chunky Irishman and when the final gong rang, the throng gave its ovation to the loser, not the victor.

Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo lightheavyweight who has a victory over Young Stribling to his credit gained the judges' decision over Jack Lynch, of Arizona tonight in a six round preliminary.

Slattery displaying far superior speed and punching ability, outpointed Lynch in every round and floored his rival with a right hook to the jaw before the final bell. Lynch took a count of three when the gong ended the bout and saved him from a possible knockout. Lynch bled from cuts about the face and otherwise was badly battered. He weighed 166 and Slattery 162.

Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Pete August, of Bridgeport, Conn., when the referee stopped the fight in the ninth round to save August from further punishment. A shower of hooks to the jaw battered August into helplessness, but he did not take a count, the fight being stopped as he hung helpless, on the ropes in a neutral corner.

They fought on close to even terms until the ninth, both showing numerous signs of battle after a bawling, close range fight. O'Brien weighed 139 1-2 and August 137.

ATTRACTIVE CARD COMPLETED FOR BENEFIT SHOW

New York, June 9.—Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion and Ermino Spalla, Italian holder of the European heavyweight title, signed today for a 12-round match at the Milk Fund Benefit boxing show to be held at the Yankee Stadium on the night of June 26.

This match, a semi-final contest in which the titles of neither contestant will be at stake, completed the benefit card, in the main feature of which Harry Greb will defend his world's middleweight crown against Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in a 15 round encounter.

Another promising bout on the card is a six round match between Young Stribling, Georgia light-heavyweight, and Paul Berlenbach, of New York, whose sensational knockout streak last winter was stopped by Delaney. It will mark the return of Berlenbach to the ring after a long lay-off, due to an injured arm.

Larry Estridge and Panama Joe Gans, rival negro middleweights, are matched in a 10 round contest, while a four round preliminary will bring to 47 the total rounds scheduled on the programme.

Spalla's appearance will mark his first match since his arrival from South America where he gained distinction by going fourteen rounds with Louis Firpo before being knocked-out.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain, New York Giants

The runner on first base is fast and it is apparent that he should steal. The catcher signals for a pitchout in order to catch him at second but he doesn't go down on the throw.

Should the catcher signal for another pitchout on the next ball?

A good many pitchers, especially amateur pitchers, are inclined to worry when they have given the batter two balls. Another thing to remember in a case of this kind is that the pitcher has to have fine control in order to continue to make pitchouts so if the runner fails to go to first base on the first pitchout he may do so again and if a second pitchout is served the catcher and the runner doesn't make the attempt to steal second it is likely to get your pitcher in a hole and to disturb him mentally. This even applies to big league ball. The best way to handle such a situation, especially where the first baseman is playing back of the bag is for the catcher to pass him the signal that he is going to make a fast throw to the bag in case the runner doesn't try to steal. Quick covering of the bag by the first baseman when such a throw is made may cause a good deal of trouble for the runner and often results in catching him off the sack.

BULKELEY TO PLAY CROSBY HIGH TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 9.—The Bulkeley High school baseball team will open one of the busiest and toughest weeks in baseball, when the Connecticut High school champions will meet Crosby High this (Tuesday) afternoon at Waterbury, South Manchester High at South Manchester on Thursday afternoon and Springfield Technical High of Massachusetts at the Hotel Griswold grounds on Saturday afternoon. The high school championship of the state rests with the contest against Crosby High school on this (Tuesday) afternoon. The games with South Manchester and Springfield Tech are not what one would call setups and if the Bulkeley team can go through this week of playing without a defeat, the objective of the Orange and Black will be reached and all eyes will then turn towards the promised game or two-game series with Haverhill High school for the championship of the New England High schools.

Lew Malone hit two homers over the left field fence and Yordy one. There were four doubles and two triples tossed in with the 18 hits garnered off the delivery of Crowder working for Waterbury and Hyman making his league debut with Hartford. The score:

KAPLAN GETS DECISION OVER BOBBY GARCIA

New Haven, June 9.—Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, was given the referee's decision over Bobby Garcia of Baltimore, in a 12 round bout here tonight Kaplan made easy work of Garcia in practically every round, keeping the Baltimore fighter mostly on the defensive.

Kaplain weighed 128 1-2 and Garcia 128 pounds.

Kaplan now stands in line to meet Johnny Dundee for the junior lightweight championship and Dundee has been made an offer of $25,000 by George Weiss of the Weiss Park A. C. here, the bid being conditional on Kaplan defeating Garcia tonight. While both the state department of the American legion and George Mulligan of Waterbury seek to have the Kaplan-Dundee match in Connecticut, it is generally believed that the fight will go to New York.

In the semi-finals tonight, Kid Carson, of Holyoke, got the referee's decision over Tracy Ferguson, of Wallingford in 10 rounds.

The bout between Kutseppi Stoessel of New York and Jack O'Connell, of Jersey City, was called off by the referee at one minute and 50 seconds in the second round when O'Connell appeared exhausted.

VELVETMEN AND ROSSI A. A. BATTLE TO TIE SCORE

At Mystic Sunday afternoon the J. B. Martin Co. team of Norwich, battled six innings to a 3 to 3 tie with the Rossi A. A. team, rain calling a halt on a thrilling and exciting game. The Norwich velvet makers started off with a bang in the first inning, Joubert, the first man to face Chappell crashing the ball to deep center for three bases, scoring a minute later when F. Gley singled to left. This ended the scoring until the sixth when they annexed two more.

The Rossi team collected two tallies in the third frame and then tied the score in the last half of the sixth. With the score tied the downpour of rain put a stop to the battle. The score:

URUGUAY WINS OLYMPIC SOCCER CHAMPIONSHIPS

Paris, June 9.—(By the A. P.)—The national flag of Uruguay tonight floats over the Olympic stadium just above the Stars and Stripes of the United States as a result of the thrilling victory today of the South American soccer football team over Switzerland by the score of 3 to 0. The United States held the much-sought position in the stadium since May 18 by virtue of the victory in the rugby competition.

Of the two Olympic events thus far completed North America has carried off one and South America the other.

TONIGHT AT DUWELL ATHLETIC FIELD

The Norwich Twilight league will get away tonight for the 1924 season when the Nuggets clash with the East Ends in which is expected to be a real baseball contest. The first ball will be thrown by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the members of the common council will be the guests of President Earl Mathewson. Much interest is to be expected. The Duwell Athletic field on the East Side is easily accessible and provides an excellent playing field for the league. It is expected that a large crowd will be on hand when the first gun is fired in the league.

The East Ends will present a very strong lineup for the opening game and expect to go to the head of the league at the start. Joe Belair, who has been making an excellent showing in local semi-pro circles will do the backstop work while his battery mate will be picked from Harris, Mills and Tennant, all good boys when it comes to pitching. Waco Riley will be stationed at the initial sack with Leonard, who made a fine showing in Sunday's game, at the keystone position. "Muggsy" Ellsworth will take care of the short field and "Chatter" Boyens will guard the dizzy corner, a position he is well qualified to fill. In the outfield will be the Padace boys, Dominic, William and James, and Spaulding and Charlie Risley.

Manager Madden is very reticent about announcing his team for tonight's game, but it is understood that Lefty Corcoran will be in the box and that the whole Academy infield will play behind him. This means that Mileski will catch, Burke will play first, Tombari will be at second, Busch at short and McGowan at third. The outfield is certain but it is understood that Hull, Madden, Ringland and several others will be on h ing establishment there which has turned out translations into Chinese of the literature of the West. Shanghai's excellent newspapers, both foreign and Chinese, have also greatly influenced the thought of the land.

"The first railroad built in China was a twelve-mile stretch from Shanghai to its port twelve miles away. The imperial authorities tore it up, but it served to plant the railroad seed which later sprouted lustily. Shanghai also had the first telephones in China. These were introduced in 1881, a few years after Alexander Graham Bell invented the instrument."

Prayer Book His Marriage Fee.

It is the privilege of the archbishop of Canterbury to officiate at the marriage of any member of the royal family, and he does so without fee, but he is not entirely without reward, for he can claim as his due the prayer book used by the bride.

Sentence "Stumped" Wise Men.

The following short sentence, says Bombaugh's "Facts and Fancies," was dictated by Lord Palmerston to eleven cabinet ministers, every one of whom made some mistake in spelling it: "It is disagreeable to witness the embarrassment of a harassed peddler gauging the symmetry of a peeled potato." Try it on your friends.

Needed No Help.

Betty's brother had been taking the dog out each afternoon for a walk, using a collar and leash. One day Betty saw a dog that had evidently been chained up and had broken its chain, as it was slowly walking up the street with its collar and part of a chain. Betty said, "Look, there is a dog that can take himself out walking."

SHANGHAI

Shanghai, first Chinese stopping place scheduled for America's round-the-world fliers, and the place where Captain D'Oisy smashed his French plane in his flight from Paris, is the subject of the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters.

"This hybrid city of the east and west," says the bulletin, "is what many traveler finds Paris is supposed to be but isn't—perpetually gay and carefree. Europeans and Americans, forced by business or government assignments to live there on the other side of the world in a none too kindly climate seem with one accord to have determined to make the experience as pleasant as possible. White men's working hours might have been framed by a visionary Socialist for the year 2,000. Many offices open at 10 o'clock, grant a rest period from 12 to 1, and close at 4 so that harrassed merchant, and banker and clerk may hurry away to club or casino or tennis court, golf links or houseboat for what Robert Louis Stevenson called 'the real business of life.'

"The Bund, the waterfront thoroughfare of occidental Shanghai, is always crowded with prosperous, unhurried Westerners; and Bubbling Spring Road of an afternoon is thronged with stylishly dressed men and women of leisure and fashionable equipages that would do credit to Fifth avenue, the Champs Elysee or the Ring-Strasse in the days of Vienna's glory.

"The city is thoroughly cosmopolitan. Perhaps no other city of the world surpasses it in this except Cairo. Every western country has nationals in Shanghai, and there are besides representatives from all parts of Asia.

"There are two Shanghais: the native city, and the foreign concessions. Shanghai was one of the first Chinese cities to be thrown open to Western trade, one of the five 'Treaty Ports' established in 1842. British merchants who moved in during the next few years obtained a concession to manage their municipal affairs in their settlement. The French and American residents joined in the arrangement, but later the French set up a municipality of their own which is maintained separately today. Residents of other nationalities have thrown in their lot with the British and Americans, and today about 20 nations have arrangements with China in connection with trade and extraterritorial rights in Shanghai.

"The entire urban group—Chinese, French and International—that bears the name 'Shanghai,' has a population of about one and a half million people. By far the larger part is Chinese but the concentration is not greatest in the narrow-streeted, dirty, smelly native city. So well have the foreigners governed their concessions that Chinese have flocked to those sections. The international city is especially a favorite residence for retired Chinese officials from other parts of the country. It has become a model, too, in the matter of street pavements, drainage, sanitation and police methods, and since the revolution has been copied extensively by Chinese cities in other parts of the country.

"There is enough 'local color' in Shanghai to make even the most strenuous globe-trotter pause. The complexity of Shanghai life bursts upon one as soon as he debarks from his tender at the quay and the city's amazing array of transportation devices is disclosed. Drawn up to the curb are rickshas, wheelbarrows, pony carriages, and automobiles, while in the street are electric trams. Nor does this exhaust the transportation methods. In the native quarter one may see high-born Chinese women, all but hidden by silk curtains, borne in palanquins; while near the freight docks coolies stagger under huge crates or carry strange bales suspended from bamboo poles.

"Costumes run the gamut from loin cloths to gorgeous mandarin robes embracing on the way the 'night shirts' and red turbans of offduty Sikh policemen, Siamese panungs, impeccable European street clothes, and the military uniforms of almost every nation of the earth. On almost any street one may meet Chinese fops carrying ornamental bird-cages as they give their feather pets the air. The bird market in the native city is one of the most interesting sights of Shanghai. Not far off is the Willow Tea House, supposed to be the prototype of the design on Chinese willow ware.

"Shanghai is near the mouth of the Yangtze river, China's great natural water highway; and close to the Grand Canal. Around it for many miles stretches China's best garden spot. This strategic situation has made the city a great commercial emporium and it has become as well one of the greatest Chinese industrial centers.

"In a sense, however, the city is out-of-the-way. It is not directly on the Yangtze, but on a tributary, the Hwang-pu, twelve miles from the great river. The largest ocean steamers cannot ascend to the city, but must anchor in the Yangtze estuary and transship passengers and freight to steam tenders. Smaller ships can cross the bar, and the war vessels of many nations are constantly on duty off the Bund.

"Much of the occidentalization that has come to China in the past half century has filtered in through Shanghai especially through the great print-

Unlucky Friday Again.

In eastern Prussia, Sunday baptisms are believed to offset the unlucky auspices of children who are born on Friday.

TAKING NO CHANCES

"I'll bet you want to see Mrs. Spear," said the man in charge of the antique shop to the customer. "She's just stepped out and said she'd be back at 11. You just poke up the fire and make it hot for you."

"I really cannot wait," declared the customer. "I came in to see about those old spoons and I supposed, of course, I should find Mrs. Spear."

"No, ma'am, she ain't in just this minute," said the man cheerfully. "But she's sure coming back at 11, for she said so. You ain't the only one neither, for there was two ladies come just five minutes afore you walks in, and they was in a rush and they couldn't wait one second. One of 'em says she wants to buy that there old table for a wedding present. Ain't it swell, with them fancy legs, t hough?"

"I cannot say I admire it," said the customer, coldly. "I would not take it as a gift."

"Now ain't that funny?" cried the man in triumph. "That's exactly like I feel about it. I think that table is just about the humliest bit Mrs. Spear's got in the whole blame shop. But then, tastes differ. Some women care for nothing but them green dishes. Them's worth $35 I heard Mrs. Spear say."

"They look to me like the things they give away with baking powder," said the customer ungraciously. "And very dreadful in color. Mrs. Spear is a long time away," said the customer impatiently. "And it is long past 11. I wonder if you cannot tell me what is the price of those old spoons."

"Them spoons is English," said the man in charge wisely. "They come here from England and they got flat backs such as you don't see nowhere else in the world excepting if they's imitation. Thev's marked in three letters, all different."

"I am in such a hurry," said the customer. "I wonder if you'd be able to tell me the price, please, and save my waiting. It is a quarter to 12."

"Well, I'll tell you how it is," explained the man in charge confidentially. "When I first come here there was two Eyetalian dishes here that Mrs. Spear was asking $8 for. Yes, ma'am, just two crazy fool dishes that wouldn't hold a dish of oatmeal they was that shallow like, and I was walking along State street thinking about them when I seen two just like 'em in a winder. Yes ma'am they was screaming doubles of them that Mrs. Spear had and the price on 'em, $20 a pair and not a cent less for cash.

"Well, ma'am I hotfooted it back here and I says to Mrs. Spear that I'd give her $8 for them two dishes and she most fell over. I had to tell her as how my $8 was a good as the next before she'd sell 'em, but I got 'em, I did, and I sold them two dishes for $18.

"I though I was the whole thing after that and Mrs. Spear thought I was a good judge of them things, and I didn't undeceive her. So one day when she was going out she told me if anybody was to come in I could sell things. I says I didn't know no prices, and she said for me to set a price I'd sell 'em for if they were ming, and it'd be all right. So off she went and I walked around deciding what was right."

"By and by a man blew in and he said he wanted a pair of English candlesticks, you know, heavy and thick, and he asks how much. I thought to myself, I'd take $7 for 'em if they was mine, so I told him $10, and he bought 'em. Then he looked at a teakittle to cook water in, copper, like nobody uses on account of its being old style, and he asks how much. I thinks to myself I'd sell it for $3, and so I says for $6 he can have it, so he takes that too, and off he goes.

"I stood around feeling pretty smart, and when Mrs. Spear come back I told her I sold two things, and she said for how much. Well, that's why I ain't going to put no price on nothing, not for the king of France, no ma'am, for when I said I sold the candlesticks for $10, she said they cost her $11, and when I says I sold the teakittle for $5, she sat down hard on the sofa there and says she had to pay $6.

"So, if you're crazy to know prices, ma'am, you'll have to ask Mrs. Spear, herself, for she's just coming up the steps now. I recollect, now I see her, that she did say she'd be back at noon, and I was thinking she said 11."—Exchange.

ANOTHER STEAMSHIP LINE MAY MAKE STOPS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 9.—It is among the possibilities that another steamship line will make this port one of its stopping places within the next few weeks. Boyd O. Barry, vice president of the Coastal Steamship Corporation, was in New London Saturday and interviewed several shippers as well as many merchants who receive freight from points between New London and Boston and was assured patronage should the line which operates between New York and this port maintain a shipping point here. Mr. Berry was in Norwich today in an endeavor to interest Norwich merchants. If the Merchants in Noank, Mystic, Stonington and Westerly will also be interviewed in an effort to obtain promise of shipments of or reception of cargoes. If the coastal line makes a stop at this port the line will maintain quarters at the state pier.

In spite of the fact that every day brings a number of violators of the automobile laws into court, another batch will be before Judge Victor Prince Tuesday morning. Armando Thomas, 4 Crescent street will be charged with passing an intersecting street without sounding his signal or reducing speed of the car. Mrs. E. C. Corbin, 385 West Main street, New Britain, will be charged with parking overtime on State street, as will be Herbert C. Johnson, 549 Burnside avenue, East Hartford. Harry Elfensohm, 1230 Bryant avenue, New York, and Cosmos Michael, of 36 Truman street.

Joseph R. Elder, the pastor. The bride's sister, Mrs. Dexter Marsters was maid of honor, and Foster Marsters was best man.

Martin Terr and David Lawen, former employes of the United Manufacturing company, arrested in Fishtown, near Seattle, several days ago, charged with the inspection of liquor, were in the Groton town court this morning. Counsel for the accused entered a demurrer, which was overruled by Judge Cornelius Coyle, who found probable cause and the accused were held in bonds of $1000 each, for trial at the next session of the superior court. Terr was able to procure a surety on his bond in Louis Eifenbein of New London, but Lawen was unable to secure a bondsman and was returned to jail. Terr and Lawen, the latter formerly of Willimantic, were arrested by Officers McWilliams and Johnson, of the Groton police force, when Terr and Lawen were detected with a truck of the music company containing 125 gallons of alcohol destined from Westerly to New London. The truck and alcohol were seized and are now in possession of the state police.

John R. Latham, 47, of No. 42 Summit avenue, employed for many years by the New London City National bank, the past ten years as cashier, died at 11 o'clock this morning at Lawrence hospital from peritonitis. He is survived by his wife and five children, and by his father, James D. Latham, a former New London merchant.

In New London he was considered a most effecient and capable official of the local bank. Mr. Latham was born in New London, was educated in the public schools and was a graduate of Bulkeley High school. Soon after graduating from Bulkeley Mr. Latham entered the bank and merited promotion came to him. His latest advancement to cashier came with the death of Frank E. Barker about ten years ago.

Mr. Latham married a daughter of the late Rev. S. Leroy Blake, a former pastor of the First Church of Christ.

A young girl, one of two who have been residing in a Golden street lodging house several weeks, was taken into custody this morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith, charged with street walking. The girl was given the alternative of leaving the city or facing a charge in the police court and she wisely accepted the former. The girl was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield with order to leave New London within 24 hours.

The case of Manuel Cabral, 601 Main street, arrested last evening by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was continued to Monday morning next, by Judge Victor Prince, in the police court this morning. Cabral was arrested following the machine he was driving colliding with a car owned and driven by Premio Montasa, 6 Central avenue, at the corner of Williams and Bristol streets earlier in the day. Both automobiles were damaged.

The funeral of Edward A. Fenwick, president of Carpenters' Local 30, whose death occurred several days ago at Lawrence hospital from pneumonia, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of Northwest Hose company, of which organization Mr. Fenwick was a member, acted as bearers. A delegation of members of the Carpenters' union was included among the mourners. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Charles Joseph Fitzsimmons, a stranger here, was taken into custody on North Bank street this afternoon by Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray, as being of unsound mentality. Fitzsimmons was allowed to leave the city after he had been examined by City Physician George P. Cheney.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Salvatore Terry, 31 Chappell street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Another stolen bicycle was recovered by the police Sunday night. Several weeks ago Carlisle Avery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon Avery of Main street, reported the loss of his bicycle, the wheel being taken from the veranda of his home. Sunday evening the boy learned that the wheel was in a shed of the yard of the home of a youth and supplied that information to the police. Patrolman Howard Sloan accompanied the boy to the place where the wheel was in storage and took possession of it, turning it over to the owner. The youth who had possession of the cycle declared that he purchased it from a youth now at the state reform school.

The funeral of Mary C., widow of William A. Belcher was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 16 Hempstead [illegible], [illegible], were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter. The bearers were William Beasley, Thomas R. Troland, Michael F. O'Hara, Winder E. Reed, Spencer L. Brown and William A. Slocum. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Joe Lanzzo, a barber, tried to "split hairs" when he drove his automobile from a down town repair shop and was seen by Patrolman Babcock to be driving without tail lights. It was a foolish thing for the owner to do, but, as he expressed it, he took a chance. He lost his license a year ago and has not had the necessary papers to show that he was qualified to drive a car since that time. He explained by saying that he realized that the lights on the automobile were out of order and that he sent his cousin with the car to have them repaired. If he had allowed his cousin to complete the job and driven the car, he would have been safe in his actions. He didn't do that and his explanation was regarded very weak. He was fined $25. Like many another a driver who gets into trouble he did not have the money to pay, but he managed to get it.

William C. Carpenter was fined $25 for reckless operation of an automobile. He had participated in a celebration and had drank some wine. This apparently gave him a desire to hit the pace and he did it. Patrolman J. C. Murphy came upon William and arrested him. Then the court was told all about the experience and the driver had to pay the fine imposed.

Grace Collins, of Montauk avenue, and Nathaniel Clark of the Turkish baths on Union street will be wedded Tuesday afternoon at the home of the prospective bride. This is the second marriage for each. Mrs. Collins is the owner of a handsome place on Montauk avenue at the corner of Moore avenue and it is there she will become a bride again. Only relatives and a few intimate friends will witness the ceremony, which will be performed by Rev. Phillip M. Kerridge of St. James' church.

The Boy Scouts' management took the initial steps to raise some $7,000 at a meeting this evening when the men composing ten teams of canvassers had a dinner and arranged for making a drive for the money sought. These teams will go out tomorrow and hustle among merchants and others so that they may provide for the boys during the year. This is expected to be about the last drive for money of the year.

It is stated by a real estate man that there are nine houses not rented in Neptune Park, Ocean beach and this is said to be unparalleled in the history of that place of summer homes. At the beach proper there are also several places vacant, something unknown in recent years.

Fred Damaco of 227 Cedar street, New Haven and Louis Feneli, of 94 Portsea street, the same city, will come from the county jail to the police court tomorrow morning to endeavor to convince Judge Prince that they should not be further held as suspicious persons. They were nabbed on the day the Barnum and Ringling circus was in town after officers had been trailing them several hours as supposed pickpockets. The officers could not find the fellows involved in crime, so they arrested them on suspicion of being idlers without visible means of support and as men who could give no good account of themselves. Then inquiry was made as to the suspects. At New Haven it was learned that the men were a pair of bad ones that one of them was at that moment held in a bond of $1,000 as a pickpocket at New Haven and that the other was an all-round crook who had been in the tolls of the police some ten times. A bond to hold each was fixed at $2,000. They couldn't raise that amount so went to jail. They have, it is understood, secured a New Haven lawyer to represent them when they come into court tomorrow. Detective Hammond recognized the pair as soon as he saw them as former attendants upon the races held here, but the fellows brazenly told him that they never were in New London until now.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE.

New York, June 9.—With speculative uncertainty over legislation removed by the adjournment of congress, and a further easing in money rates, stock prices developed moderate strength in today's market after an unsuccessful attempt had been made by professional traders to unsettled the general list by an attack on the steel issues.

While trading was relatively light in volume, the day's sales aggregating only about half a million shares, pool operations were apparent in a number of low priced issues. These were encouraged by the cheapness of money, call funds being obtainable at 3 per cent., the lowest stock exchange rate since Nov. 3, 1915. Large amounts of surplus funds also found their way into the bond market, all the U. S. government issues selling at new high levels for the year.

Early selling of the steel shares was based on the expectation that the May unfilled tonnage statement of the U. S. Steel corporation, to be made public tomorrow, would show a drop of a half million or more tons. U. S. Steel common duplicated its new 1924 low of 94 1-4, but rallied later to 96 3-4, its closing price of last Saturday. Bethlehem and Vanadium Steels touched new bottom prices at 48 1-4 and [illegible] slight [illegible] above their low levels of the day. Penn Sea[illegible] improved fractions [illegible] the restricted nature of the trad[illegible] attributed to [illegible] marked absence [illegible]

Oil stocks improved slightly on publication of statistics showing another decline in California production. Public utilities continued to attract attention with brokers reporting a good investment demand for some of the high-grade issues. Virginia Railway & Power closed today two points higher at 55 while Consolidated Gas and Pacific Gas each moved up a point. Marked improvement was apparent in the sugar shares, American Sugar Refining, Cuban-American and Punta Alegre each closing more than a point higher, while South Porto Rican climbed 2 5-8.

Other strong spots in the industrial list included International Paper, New York Dock, Savage Arms, Woolworth, Atlantic Refining and Houston Oil, [illegible] of which sold two or more points above last week's closing quotations. A jump of nearly 17 points in Central Railroad of New Jersey, which touched a new 1924 top at 234 7-8, was the feature of the railroad list. Other strong spots in the carrier group were Norfolk & Western, Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, "Nickel Plate," Lackawanna, Seaboard Air Line preferred, St. Louis Southwestern common and preferred, Peoria & Eastern, and Western Pacific, all up a point or more.

Call money opened at 2 1-2 per cent., eased to 2 1-4 and then to 2. A slightly easier tone was apparent in the time money market, loans up to 60 days being available at 3 3-4 per cent. [illegible] commercial paper [illegible] at 4 1-4.

Foreign exchange rates held steady in extremely quiet trading due to the [illegible] general. Demand sterling ruled [illegible] and French francs around [illegible]

BOND MARKET.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, June 9.—Governing factors for the present day [illegible] were [illegible] market [illegible] developments [illegible]

The new deadly [illegible] of the government crop report [illegible] afternoon being unforeseen. Wheat closed steady, 3-4 to 1 1-4 net [illegible] July 1.04 1-4 and Sept. [illegible] 1.02 1-4, with corn showing 1-4 to [illegible] advance, oats unchanged to [illegible] off, and provisions varying from [illegible] same as Saturday's finish to [illegible] down.

It was generally expected that the government crop report as to wheat would prove somewhat bullish and this circumstance helped to keep the wheat market from any sharper set-back as a result of the rains northwest, both sides of the Canadian line. Business throughout the day was largely in the nature of evening-up to prepare for the government figures, but nothing developed beforehand to indicate that the official forecast would show a radical curtailment of the estimated production as turned out to be the case when the report reached Chicago after the board of trade session had ended.

Some export inquiry for wheat to be shipped by way of the Gulf of Mexico was in evidence, but otherwise the demand from Europe was slow on account of the Whitsuntide holiday abroad. Announcement of 3,196,000 bushels decrease in the United States visible supply was without much apparent effect on the market, the total supply being still nearly eight million bushels more than last year.

Unseasonal cold weather that hampered planting and interfered with growth was responsible for the price upturn in corn. Scarcity of supplies steadied the oats market.

Provisions were easily influenced by packers selling of lard.

OPENING OF NORWICH TOWN SCOUT CAMP

Boy Scout Troop, No. 20, Norwich Town, scout master, Frederick H. Wyant, held a formal opening of Camp Up-E-Nuf, their troop headquarters on the picturesque hill at the rear of Mediterranean Lane, Saturday afternoon. The camp perched on one of the highest spots in Norwich Town, overlooking the beautiful surrounding country, is all that the name implies "Up-E-Nuf." A hidden trail winds up the hill to camp. Much work has been done by Mr. Wyant's troop in making the trail, and after a strenuous climb one comes to a cleared plot of ground that has been planted to flowers. At this point also is the entrance constructed of white birch, forming a gateway through which the trail passes.

Inside this gate was planted the troop flag, and at intervals the patrol flags were displayed on staffs along the way. A little further on a stone oven was built which serves for camp fire and for cooking. Rustic chairs and rock seats made a delightful setting for the camp fire. A few paces beyond is an unusual juniper about ten feet square, from the center of which a 20 foot flag pole was erected, flying the American flag. Passing through a lane of savins, the troop headquarters tent is reached. This consists of a large army tent admirably set in a grove of evergreens. Croquet grounds, clock golf, and a tree signal tower will be constructed later.

At six o'clock Scout Master Wyant and troop served "eats," consisting of baked beans, hot dogs, rolls, cocoa and cake. The sixteen scouts and visitors enjoyed the feast. The scouts then played "Capture the Flag" till nearly dark. At night different colored signal lanterns were placed at intervals along the hill side and made a pleasing picture on the back trail.

Troop No. 20 intends to use the tent for headquarters the year round. This will be a unique feature, and will give an opportunity for outdoor scouting not enjoyed by any other troop in Norwich. Located in this secluded spot, shadowed by nature, outdoor tests and instruction can be held, and other troops will be invited to meet for friendly games and contests. Week end and overnight camping is thus solved for Troop No. 20.

Troop No. 20 is to be congratulated upon possessing this beautiful camp and Mr. Wyant for conceiving this solution of the problem of troop headquarters.

General Archibald Jack, general manager of the United Railways of Havana, the employes of which are on strike, was shot and wounded as he left his office in the central station in Havana.

OVER $725,000 SPENT IN YEAR ON NEW LONDON COUNTY ROADS

During the past fiscal year the state highway department expended $725,150.83 on the highways in New London county, this being over double the amount received in automobile fees for the same period.

Showing exactly how expenditures for road work in Connecticut for the last fiscal year far exceeded the amounts paid to the state in automobile fees, the state highway department has issued a statement which throws considerable light for the first time on the value received by Connecticut motorists in return for their license fees, etc.

The outstanding fact developed by comparison of receipts and disbursements is that over $1,400,000 more than was received in fees was expended for highway development during the year. The exact amount paid aggregated $725,574,540.13, as compared to $4,165,140.28 paid into the state's funds by motorists. The amount spent by the state represents the actual money paid during 1923 to contractors, and does not include contracts pending, of which there are many uncompleted in all counties at this time.

It is also shown that since 1913 the number of motor vehicles registered in Connecticut has increased from 27,189 to 180,359 in 1923. This includes commercial trucks and passenger cars. At the same time, the mileage of surfaced roads in the state has increased from 923.77 at the close of 1913 to 1,779.90.

Other significant facts shown by the compilation prepared by the highway department are that the largest population centers, and likewise those with the largest areas, have the largest percentage of improved roads, and also the greatest number of automobiles.

The automobile fee totals were arrived at by taking the total, dividing the total receipts from registration fees and fines by the total motor vehicles registered thus arriving at an average per car.

Contracts yet pending in Fairfield, New Haven, Middlesex and New London counties on the improvement of the Boston Post road will materially increase in a few months the payments made in these districts. The large Litchfield county total is due to the payments recently made on the Housatonic Valley highway from Fairfield county northward to the Massachusetts line.

The accompanying table shows the road expenditures by towns in the three counties of eastern Connecticut as compared with the amounts received in automobile fees.

LITTLE LIGHT BEARERS' MITE BOX OPENING

The Little Light Bearers and King's Heralds of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church held their annual mite box opening party in the vestry of the church, the service lasting from 3 until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

MUST LEAVE TOWN OR GO TO JAIL

There were several cases for Judge Libby to dispose of in the city court Monday morning but the business was quickly finished. Cases of intoxication called for the usual fines and costs and Louise Potter and Rosie Della, charged with breach of the peace, in connection with a fight Sunday evening on Thames street, pleaded guilty. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed a jail sentence being suspended for six months.

Michael Savage of the Falls was presented charged with breach of the peace, growing out of a beating he is said to have administered to his wife, resulting in her being sent to the hospital. Mrs. Savage had been before the court three times previous and in view of the circumstances Judge Libby imposed a jail sentence of 30 days on each, suspended for one year, provided the family leave Norwich before Saturday of this week. The couple agreed to follow the court order.

A young Norwich man was sentenced to the Norwich farm for inebriates for six months and the case of another local young man charged with reckless driving was continued until July 1st.

Monday morning he slipped away from the institution and a search resulted in the finding of his body in the reservoir. He leaves a wife and child in this city.

EXPECT LARGE ATTENDANCE AT ANNUAL CITY MEETING

At the annual city meeting scheduled for this (Tuesday) evening at the town hall the voters of the city will have before them for action appropriations totaling $1,570,676.25. This total includes addition to the regular department appropriations seventeen special items amounting to $156,050. If all appropriations are passed by tonight's meeting the city tax will be in the neighborhood of thirty mills or slightly more than 30 mills. The regular department appropriations provide for a city tax of 20 and one quarter mills on the dollar. The seventeen "extras" if passed will mean approximately 10 mills more which would make the city tax higher than it has ever been.

From the way petitions for street improvements piled up on the mayor's desk during the last two months of the fiscal year just closed there seems to be an unprecedented demand for extra appropriations. Citizens in practically every section of the city are after street improvement appropriations this year and while the amounts asked for in the individual etitions are small they mount into the thousands pretty rapidly when the column of "extras" is added up.

At the organization meeting of the new court of common council last Friday evening Mayor Milo R. Waters called attention to the unusual number of "extras" asked for this year. He stated that time that he believes in street improvements, especially those of a permanent nature but that a halt must be called somewhere as there is a limit to the capacity of the taxpayer.

A large attendance is expected at the city meeting as there is considerable interest this year in the matters to come up for action.

INSURANCE EXPERTS TO CONDUCT LOCAL INSPECTION

Two engineers of the New England Insurance Exchange, Charles A. Barker and Charles B. Garmon, arrived in Norwich Monday to conduct an investigation and inspection of the Norwich fire and water departments as well as all of the engineering departments in this locality. Both are experts in engineering lines and on their findings will depend in large part the future rating of Norwich in its fire fighting appliances and water conditions.

Mr. Barker was for a time connected with the national board of fire underwriters. In 1911 he conducted an investigation here at the time the local water supply was so low.

POETRY

Smiling Mistress June arrives
Robes of richest verdure wearing—
Brightning whilom weary lives.

Hosts of sylvan nymphs attend her—
Deck her flowing robes with gold;
Dandelions gaudy rend her
Gay and gorgeous to behold.

Apple blossoms bloom to please her—
Lilacs purple lend their aid—
Scented zephyrs kiss and tease her
Wildly woo the lovely maid.

Lilies of the valley modest—
Roses sweet, of various hues,
Gladsy to Lady June amuse.

E'en King Phoebus beams much stronger,
Smiles upon the winsome lass—
Rises early, lingers longer,
Loth from sight of her to pass.

Lovely June, fair month of lovers,
Month of blossoms sweet and bright,
Thine the power to charm and move us—

Night Wind

Upheld by unseen hands—in its rich weight,
An offering to adorn a queen's proud state
That some dependent princeling did prostrate—
The moon slow rises into night's dark tent
The pulseless air, with longings vague befreight,
Now quickens 'neath her gaze, now doth inflate
The still-poised midnight clouds in heaven pent.
With jealous haste he draws them o'er her face,
And by his right forbids all other eyes
To note her beauty and to praise her grace;
Then up on lover's wings to her he flies
Impatient for the joy of her embrace

—Beatrice Demarest Lloyd

An attempt to raise silver foxes in mountain altitudes is now being made in France. Hitherto it was assumed that's kins of the finest texture, worth more than their weight in gold, could be grown only in northern latitudes, where the winters are not only very cold but very long. The French National Society of Acclimation has established a silver fox farm in the French Alps on the theory that the temperatures there would be just as suitable as those of northern Canada. An announcement states that preliminary results are satisfactory.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL BOOM SWINGS TOWARD HOOVER

[illegible] A. [illegible] ed among the major issues of the convention, but the move to draft Frank O. Lowden appeared tonight to be waning with a commensurate gain in strength for Herbert Hoover.

The insistent supporters of the former Illinois governor almost lost hope when they heard that he had sent to Cleveland a letter of irrevocable declination, to be opened and read to the delegates if an attempt were made to stampede the convention into nominating him.

If Lowden is to be permitted to eliminate himself, the Hoover supporters are convinced that the drift of today's opening session gave evidence of an irresistable demand that the man finally selected for second place on the ticket be of a type undeniably in harmony with the policies of the president. That qualification, they say, is possessed by Mr. Hoover in the highest degree.

The vice presidential situation remained unsettled by the developments of the day. The party leaders generally declared a final decision was yet to be made. There still was talk of Senator Borah, Charles G. Dawes, Senator Curtis, Judge W. S. Kenyon, President Burton of Michigan University and a dozen others, but none appeared to have the organized and widespread backing that has been given to the boom for Mr. Hoover.

LOWDEN SENDS SEALED LETTER TO CONVENTION

Cleveland, June 10.—Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, has sent a sealed letter to Cleveland to be opened and read to the republican national convention in event he is placed in nomination for the vice-presidency.

The letter is understood to be a reiteration, formal and final, that Mr. Lowden will not accept the nomination even if tendered him, and after its receipt some of those who had hoped he would yield to an overwhelming convention demand declared they believed the former Illinois governor to be irrevocably out of consideration.

The receipt of the letter and abandonment of hope by many of those who had been urging Mr. Lowden seemed to increase sentiment in favor of Secretary Hoover.

Many of the leaders professed to see in approval voiced by the convention today for the more conservative statements made by Theodore E. Burton, in an address as temporary chairman, and in the demonstration given Secretary Mellon rather definite indications of a conservative frame of mind not conducive to prospects of the more liberal candidates for vice president.

[illegible] noon that $17,000,000 was still unloaned.

Diversion of a large portion of this surplus into investment channels was reflected in one of the year's most active bond markets. The average price of domestic issues forged into new high ground for the year, with many railroad, foreign and U. S. government obligations achieving 1924 high records.

Reckoning commercial credit demands, due to slackening business activity, the diminishing supply of government and other forms of short-term paper, increased gold imports and the reduced supply of bankers' acceptances have contributed to the current plthora of money.

Short term time loans today were contracted at 3 1-2 per cent., the lowest level of the year. Americans in Japan Experience Boycott

Government Officials Express the Belief It is the Result of Selfish Interests—Not Patriotism.

Tokio, June 10 (By the A. P.)—More candid motives than those of patriotism are behind the anti-American agitation which has followed enactment in the United States of an immigration law barring Japanese, in the opinion of some government officials and business men here.

According to statements made by them today, the agitation is being supported by certain Japanese business men and manufacturers who desire to eliminate foreign competition in the Japanese [illegible] provision of [illegible] which [illegible] ated [illegible] films.

[illegible] known, officials and business men say, that the movie boycott emanates from two large combinations—producers and distributors of films—who hitherto have waged an unsuccessful competition against American films.

Motion picture theatre owners, although [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] them after the last day of June, tell Americans privately that they are acting under intimidation by "patriotic" groups, fearing that the Soshi will attack their theatres unless they comply with the boycott order.

American film men here are confident that the movie boycott will be shortlived, primarily because a public demand for American films has been built up and cannot long be denied. They are handling all future business on that basis.

The department store boycott of American merchandise also shows the results of the intimidation process, business men say.

Both officials and business men admit, however, that intimidation does not entirely account for the boycott movement, and that there is no doubt that there exists widespread resentment against the American immigration law.

New York, June 10.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation dropped 580,358 tons in May, bringing the total at the end of that month to 3,625,089 tons, the lowest since November, 1914, when forward bookings were 3,324,532 tons. The figures, which were made public today, show a decline of 1,154,718 tons in the last two months, the May decrease being the sharpest since June of last year when the total of 6,586,261 tons was 595,000 tons below the previous month.

Leaders of the steel industry state that as yet there is no definite indication of a change in the steel situation and a further drop in unfilled orders this month seems likely. May shipments of the steel corporation averaged about 7,000 tons a day, or approximately 1,000,000 tons for the month. Incoming business was around 22,000 tons a day, or about 600,000 tons for the month, indicating that business to the extent of 180,000 tons was cancelled during that period.

This exclusive Chandler feature is a thoroughly perfected unit. Other manufacturers are in the midst of ambitious experiments with the principles it involves. Chandler success has brought the subject of better gear speed changing into national prominence.

Yet the driver handles the Traffic Transmission exactly like the standard gear shift. In its use there is absolutely nothing new to learn.

Pikes Peak Motor

As attested by the longest string of high gear records ever held by any stock car, this famous Chandler power plant still stands as the ultimate in engineering achievements.

PUTNAM

Tuesday was graduation dya at Miss Howe and Miss Marot's school in the town of Thompson. The event and its attendant ceremonies and events attracted relatives and friends of the members of the graduating class and other classes of the schools from various cities in and outside of New England—all the territory represented by the enrollment at this select school for young ladies.

M. Jules Bois was the speaker at the graduation exercises, held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A senior garden party was a feature of the day's program at [illegible] o'clock the play, Once on a Time, was presented by a cast from the senior class.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock prizes for the athletics and field day competition held Monday were presented. The field day events included a track meet, from 10 to 1.00 o'clock that included such events as a 50-yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, baseball throw, relay race, setting up drill, 40-yard low hurdles race, basketball throw, basketball game and other events.

The field day afternoon was given over to tennis, dancing, skipping and old English games and riding. A torch dance was held in the evening. Students at the school are in many instances leaving today for their homes, or for summer vacation recreation points.

Through the press, by radio and personal communication Putnam was keeping in touch Tuesday with those who are representing it at the republican national convention in Cleveland. State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric of this city is included in the Connecticut delegation and has been assigned a seat in the convention hall. Also of interest was the announcement Tuesday that Miss Katherine Byrne of Putnam, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the convention, has been appointed Windham county chairman of the National Coolidge Women's club.

Radio sets here were in a number of instances tuned in on Cleveland Tuesday afternoon and much information taken out of the air as to what the convention was doing. As elsewhere, interest here appeared to center on the matter of selecting a vice presidential candidate, the nomination of President Coolidge to succeed himself being regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Something of the chances state police officers take in the discharge of their duties was illustrated here Tuesday morning, when an applicant for an operator's license crashed a motor vehicle with Inspector A. W. Williams of the Danielson barracks aboard against the brick side of the passenger station of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. The station wall stood the impact nicely, better, in fact, than did the car, which is in need of some attention from a garage specialist. All in the car escaped injury.

Oiling of a number of streets in residential sections of Putnam Tuesday brought about, temporarily, conditions that each year are more or less irritating, but which, in the long run, lead to compensating benefits. Pedestrians displayed some annoyance in getting across streets where oil had been spread and not yet covered with sand. Motor vehicles skidded about in the stuff. And even car crews had their troubles in nursing along cars over sections of streets where oil had spilled upon the rails and made the going difficult and dangerous. No accidents were reported, however, and the worst may be regarded as over.

The state board of pardons has turned down the application of Arthur Eldredge, former postmaster at Woodstock Valley, for release from the state prison at Wethersfield, it was announced Tuesday morning following a hearing relative to his case in Hartford on Monday. This was the first application Mr. Eldredge has made for release since being committed to the institution to serve a sentence of from 8 to 10 years for assault upon a minor female. Mr. Eldredge always [illegible] his innocence and has been consistent in this attitude even up to a week ago. He has never admitted his guilt, though found guilty in the superior court and duly sentenced for the crime with which he was charged.

After having held its meetings for a year past in Odd Fellows' hall each week, the Putnam Rotary club will hereafter, beginning today, hold its meetings at the Putnam inn. For the weekly luncheons the club will use a room that has been especially fitted up at the hotel. The committee that made the arrangements for the new luncheon quarters consisted of John Reardon, John Ash and John Corbett.

Steady progress is being made by the contractor doing the work in completing the job of building a cement highway out through Killingly avenue. This main highway route to the south remains closed to traffic while the operations are in progress. Only a few weeks will be required to complete the work, started last year, and when the route is reopened there will be an all cement roadway from the corner of Grove and South Main streets to a point within a mile of Attawaugan. Eventually this cement will be extended through to Danielson.

Friday of next week will be prize day at Pomfret school. There will be the usual jollification marking the end of the school year at this institution—with a display of fireworks, a bonfire and parade of the classes.

The baccalaureate service of the senior class of Putnam High school, the first of the series of the commencement period, will be held next Sunday evening at the Congregational church.

Next Sunday will be observed as Children's Sunday at the Congregational church. It is anticipated that there will be baptism of children that day.

Agent J. F. Reardon, of the Grosvenordale company, has purchased a summer residence at Crescent Beach and the building is now in course of remodeling.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church has a lawn social planned to be held at the home of Attorney and Mrs. E. C. Morse.

No developments of special interest relative to the former plant of the Manhasset Manufacturing company and its prospects for operation in the near future have been announced.

waned for a majority of the devotees of the sport. Norman Ross still holds the lead in the Danielson Rod and Gun club's contest for the largest trout caught by a member in Windham county stream during the open season and seems in a fair way to win the prize for the second season in succession.

The matter of new sidewalks is one of the subjects now claiming attention in the borough. In numbers of instances adverse business conditions are accountable for delaying the carrying out of such improvements.

East Killingly will have an observance of the Fourth, something after the manner that the holiday has been observed there for several years past. In this respect, East Killingly sets a good example for the remainder of the town, which, outside of Goodyear, has paid little attention, publicly, to the anniversary during the past few years.

Harry Magoon, local chairman for Windham House fund campaign, said Tuesday afternoon that returns from the drive to date in this section have been encouraging. Solicitors will be active hereabouts during the present week, he said. Mr. Magoon also announced that due to the absence of County Chairman G. Harold Gilpatric, of Putnam, who is attending the republican national convention in Cleveland, the drive is to be extended for several days.

Pupils of the graded schools held a rehearsal in the town hall Tuesday afternoon for the graduation exercises to be held by the eighth grades of Killingly's schools on Thursday afternoon. Today (Wednesday) practically will conclude the work of pupils in the grammar schools of the town for the present school year.

Observers of the table printed in Tuesday's Bulletin noted that Killingly received more money for state highway construction from the state highway department during the period covered by the report—the fiscal year of 1923—than any other Windham county town, something over $105,000. This it may be noted was on account of completion of the trunk line highway to Little Rest, giving a through route between Hartford and Providence.

An epidemic of colds and coughs has set in following June's attempt to imitate one of the early fall months of the year. The temperature was down in the lower 50's again Tuesday morning.

In observance of the feast of St. Barnabas, there will be the celebration of the holy communion at St. Alban's church this morning.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church is to be held in the King Arthur room at the church.

Mrs. Joseph Berthiaume, patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, continued to show improvement Tuesday after undergoing an operation for appendicitis the past week end.

The death in Providence of Bernard Murray, known in Danielson followed a long illness. His funeral was held Monday of this week.

The annual supper of St. Alban's parish, Tuesday evening, was attended by a large number. A menu of unusual excellence was presented for the consideration of those in attendance.

Mrs. Nina McGinty of East Killingly will be hostess to the members of McGregor post, G. A. R., of Danielson at a social and dance to be held in Chase's hall at East Killingly Friday evening.

P. J. Timmins of Ansonia, a student at Union college, Albany, is employed for the summer at the store of M. H. Berthiaume here.

Mrs. John B. Bassett was a visitor in Providence Tuesday.

Property owners in Carter, Broad and Mechanic streets will be assessed 40 cents per foot of their property frontage in connection with the recent sewer construction work done by the borough.

GURLEYVILLE

Public exercises for the Gurleyville Grammar school are to be held at 2 o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon. The children will present a play and give exhibitions of folk dancing, also many songs will be rendered, and essays by each graduate are to be recited. A fine display of the best work of the year, including woodwork and sewing, will be on exhibition. Class pins and the school prize for the best pupil in the school for the year, will be awarded.

This year there have been enrolled over forty pupils, and considering the eight grades in the school it has been a hard task for the teacher, Mr. Lee. Mr. Lee having been teaching here for three years is resigning and will teach elsewhere. The children greatly regret that they will lose the teacher and hope for him the very best of success in his future school.

Mr. Lee considers the three years spent in the country school the most enjoyable years of his life. Since teaching here, 17 pupils have been graduated, some of whom have made very high records in high school.

The class of seven who were graduated at Storrs Tuesday evening were Madelene Mikes, Nettie Fuller, Margery Heinge, Solomon Pollack, Richard Carl Lanzer, Louis Korenge and Morris Roller.

[illegible] for the grammar school at Gurleyville will be Louis Boris Korenge; his subject is Education, the Greatest Asset to Success.

Back Don't Bother Me Now

Lincoln, Nebraska. — "My back would bother me so and when I had to do any heavy lifting it made me sick to my stomach with the pains in my back. I have my housework to do and four babies to take care of so when I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I took it and I feel better. My back don't bother me and I can eat more and work. I do all my housework and washing for six in the family. I will tell other women to take the Vegetable Compound and you may publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES F. DOLEZAL, 1201 Garber Avenue, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Felt Better At Once

Volga City, Iowa.—"I will tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was all run down and could hardly be on my feet. I was so cold I could not keep warm. I had numb feelings and then heat flashes would pass over my body. I had severe pains in my sides and was very nervous. I saw your advertisement in the newspapers so I thought I would try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I began to feel better as soon as I started taking it. I have taken it off and on for three years now. I keep house and do all my work for my husband and two little boys and make my garden. I feel fine and I tell others what the medicine has done for me. I think it is the best medicine in the world for women."—Mrs. THOMAS GRINDLE, Volga City, Iowa.

Can Do Any Kind of Work

Fouke, Arkansas. — "I had the 'Flu' and after that I had a pain in my side and was not able to do my work I was so weak. I found an advertisement in a paper and it told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would do, and I took it. Now I can do any kind of work I want to. I think every family ought to keep it in the house all the time and I intend to do so."—Mrs. DORA PHILYAW, R.R. No. 2, Fouke, Arkansas.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

In the Pretty White House

Now let me thank a minute or two,
Didn't we end yesterday's story while Little Jack Rabbit was looking out of his tiny white bungalow to see if his nice bunny uncle was hopping across the Sunny Meadow? Yes, I'm sure it was, for just then, all of a sudden,
the bunny boy shouted:

"Here comes Uncle Lucky
And Little Miss Mousie.
Oh, how we'll have fun
In our pretty white house!"

Sure enough, down the old Cow

Uncle Lucky lighted a cabbage leaf cigar.

Path rolled the luckymobile with Uncle Lucky Lefthindfoot and Little Miss Mousie on the front seat. Dear me, Billy Bunny was playing all sorts of tricks with the old gentleman rabbit's little housekeeper. Her pink bonnet was hanging by [illegible] ribbons and her bobbed hair was [illegible] up and down on her head. Dear me, again. It looked like a big chrysanthemum under the bright rays of Mr. Merry Sun.

It didn't take Lady Love, the bunny boy's pretty rabbit mother, more than a jiffy to slip off her apron, and by the time dear Uncle Lucky and his cute little housekeeper were coming up the path through the brambles, the pretty rabbit lady was standing in the [illegible] them.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the old gentleman rabbit. "I brought Little Miss Mousie along, she'd be lonesome at home."

"Of course she would," answered Lady Love. "There's no [illegible] after when you're away," and I smiled at Little Miss Mousie who curtsied in [illegible] drop for the bunny boy.

As soon as the old gentleman rabbit was comfortably seated in the big rocker and Little Miss Mousie had hung up her bonnet with the purple pansy on it, they sat down at the table, on which Lady Love had spread her best table cloth—a snowy one covered with lily of the valley edged with long fringe. Right in the center was a big carrot cake all spread with lettuce leaf marmalade. The lollypop stew was standing in a big glass dish, and red clover salad filled another big bowl. Four tiny cups of turnip tea stood on the table and in a short time the feast commenced.

While everyone was enjoying the nice supper, Little Miss Cricket and the Three Grasshoppers sang and played pretty music. Dear me, but it was a lovely scene. And when the meal was over, dear Uncle Lucky lighted a cabbage leaf cigar and smoked to his heart's content.

After Little Miss Mousie had helped Lady Love with the dishes, she sat down to play a game of tiddledy winks with the bunny boy, using thin round lollypops instead of colored chips that boys and girls always play with.

THE OLD GUARD OUT.

What has happened to Senator Lodge in his relegation to a place of impotence at the Cleveland convention is typical of what is happening to the other members of the Old Guard of which he has so long been the leader. The Old Guard may not die and it may never surrender, but it has been overwhelmed and trampled under by the massed weight of Coolidge sentiment. The senatorial oligarchy that dominated the Chicago convention of 1920 is enduring its humiliation with Senator Lodge with such grace as it may summon, but its heart is bitter. Henry Cabot Lodge was a great figure in national politics when Coolidge was the little-known mayor of a Massachusetts town. But Massachusetts, obliged to choose between her senior senator and her first president in generations, has turned on her old-time idol and cast him into the discard.

The evil times that have fallen upon Senator Lodge have afflicted his brothers of the Old Guard, few of whom are in the picture at Cleveland and none of them in the foreground. For six months they have been doing all they could to smash the Coolidge policies and they are paying at Cleveland for what they did at Washington.

The convention is in the hands of a new group that is as tired of the old crusted tory men as it is of the pale red fringe of dancing dervishes and snake doctors. It is weary of leadership that has forgotten how to lead and is now in the process of finding new leaders with a sense of loyalty and responsibility.

THE TWO-THIRDS RULE.

None of the democratic would-be president makers appears to be really eager to abandon the historic two-thirds rule as applied to the nomination of candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency by democratic national conventions. It is said that every leading democratic candidate has had representatives in the congressional library studying the records that throw light on the effects and potentialities of the two-thirds rule, but apparently the deeper the question is gone into the more doubtful do the managers become as to the wisdom of suspending the rule.

The Rule.

The McAdoo supporters claim that he is as good as nominated, yet they will not propose the adoption of a rule enabling a bare majority of the delegates to nominate the ticket. The friends of Governor Smith profess equal confidence in their candidate, but they are far from sure that he would profit by the abrogation of the two-thirds rule. The numerous dark horses, hoping that the leading candidates will neutralize and beat one another, perhaps think that it would be just as easy for them to obtain a two-thirds vote as a mere majority.

It is true that only three times in the history of democratic conventions has a candidate for the presidency possessed a majority of the votes required and yet been unable to obtain the additional votes required under the two-thirds rule. But, unfortunately, from the point of view of certain uneasy candidates, the last of these occasions is distressingly fresh in many memories and suggests painful possibilities.

In the democratic convention in Baltimore in 1912, Champ Clark had a majority on many weary ballots. The nomination seemed to be within his grasp. But Mr. Bryan, then a Nebraska delegate, started a movement in favor of Woodrow Wilson, the second choice of the instructed delegation of his state, and the rest is too well known to need re-telling.

The fact is that in the democratic camp all is still highly uncertain. That accounts for the almost daily entrance of new candidates into the interesting race.

SCRAPPING THE BUDGET SYSTEM.

When the United States adopted the budget system it was the expectation that the haphazard method of appropriation for government needs had been ended and that there would henceforth be a scientific balance of the treasury books, with expenditures and commitments no more than revenue. But that hope thus early seems to be futile. Congress is not observing the system, but is, except in routine lines, ignoring the budget system and appropriating in special lines in excess of the program founded upon prospective income. An example in point is the postal pay bill carrying an addition of approximately $68,000,000 more to the cost of the postal service without any way of meeting it except from the general funds of the government. The bill was vetoed by the president on the ground that it imposes too heavy a burden.

The question does not rest, however, upon the specific needs of the postal service. Of first importance is the consideration of the general public welfare. Against the veto of the president congress has passed the soldier bonus bill and at the same time has reduced the tax revenues of the government materially. Tax reduction was urged upon congress as a measure of public relief, but that reduction was contingent upon the absence of any material additions to the expenditures. Congress has seen fit both to reduce revenues and to pass a number of expense-entailing bills regardless of the budget balance.

The budget system is worthless if it does not work, if it is to be ignored in the large measures while followed only in the routine items of federal maintenance. It is, in fact, no budget system at all if to please a faction or a party, or to avoid displeasing groups, bills are enacted which are certain to impose heavy drains upon the treasury for which no funds are certain to be supplied. If the carefully balanced proposals and recommendations of the budget bureau are to be thus ignored congress might better definitely abandon the system and frankly return to the old plan of unregulated appropriations.

COMMENCEMENT SEASON.

The commencement season is upon us with its customary oratory and flowers for the graduates of schools and colleges. It is a momentous time with many young folk and a highly important period with their relatives and friends.

The stream of graduates passing through the mills of learning is larger every year and more and more are people founding their hope on education for a happy and successful life. There can be none who do not wish success to these young people who are soon to try their wings in the rather exacting world wherein older people dwell. With many persons success means fame and wealth, but success of that kind comes to comparatively few. When achieved, it sometimes is the experience that it is not the happiest kind of success. A competence, a home, a merry and affectionate family, good friends, a calm mind and a gentle spirit, health and perhaps a little [illegible] with roses content in many people call a very happy success. It may sound commonplace and lack luster, but it is very satisfying. And generally it is a success that may be had by those who want it.

A large number of young folk now robed in cap and gown or graduation dress are highly ambitious. They have had dreams for years. They have dreamed of having vast authority with men and using it well. They have dreamed of mines of riches and of spending gold as freely as any character in mythology or history. They have dreamed of the world's applause and of being crowned with a chaplet of bay by unanimous consent. Very few of these dreams come true but it is better to have had fine dreams and lost them than never to have dreamed at all.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, June 10th—Uncle Sam is getting his workshop ready for the big job of paying the soldier bonus. The army, navy, marine corps, Red Cross and post office department, also the American Legion will help in the work of distribution of application blanks and other details. Yet it is estimated that more than 5,000 additional clerks and experts will be required to get the bonus on a working basis. Here are some of the difficulties that will be encountered. There will be approximately 6,000,000 "potential claimants", 23 per cent of whom can neither read nor write the English inaguage. There will be upwards of 50,000 Smiths, 40,000 Browns, and 27,000 Williams on the list of those entitled to additional compensation. In many instances not only the initials but the full names are alike. This means that the finger print test will be largely used as a means of preventing error or fraud.

Practically every man in the service was subjected to the finger print test and the records are on file in Washington to the number of upwards of many millions.

The carrying out of the bonus bill also means the employment of a large corps of expert translators and interpreters who can write, read and speak about every language of the civilized world, as men of all nationalities are listed in the records.

There were 5,500,000 men in the army who are entitled to apply for the bonus; 4,000,000 performed actual military service; more than 2,000,000 in both domestic and foreign service; and 2,000,000 in domestic service only. All these must be dealt with according to their individual ratings.

The bonus measure provides for cash payments up to $50 and after that only paid up insurance policies can be obtained. The war department estimates that about 280,000 men will take the $50 bonus and $,250,000 the insurance policies.

The war department asked congress for $4,500,000 to begin the work. The navy had 55,736 enlisted men in the service; the Marine corps more than 8,000. There figures show to what an extent the bonus requires clerical and expert handling, and that it cannot be rushed through on short notice.

Figures may be uninteresting reading but it is well to note that in order to carry on the bonus payments the navy department has asked for an appropriation of $360,000 for clerk hire, and $40,000 for equipment.

The government of the United States, with its 110,000,000 people, its multitude of duties, and customary routine work of protection of its citizens and the "carrying on of the nation business," cannot meet the demands of the bonus act without a tremendous addition to both clerical and expert forces, and in equipment also. People who thought the bonus was merely a matter of the vote of congress will be astonished to learn the expense and detail of the great amount of work that must be done to make it a going concern, and actually put into the hands of the men who served, either the cash or the insurance certificates.

Adjutant Gen. Davis will be in direct charge of the work. It will be carried on under the name of the Ward Adjusted Compensation Branch. The work has been subdivided into the following departments, each under the supervision of an expert official; executive, correspondence, mail and examining, personnel records, miscellaneous records; and computing division.

Forms of application blanks and other forms necessary in making applications will be sent out as soon as ready and they are already well under way, having been framed by the war, navy and marine corps officials.

The army, navy, Red Cross, and post office department, as well as the American Legion will assist in distributing blanks, and it is expected they will be in the hands of the men not later than July 1. All necessary information will be included in the blanks. It is useless to write the department for further information.

The application blanks look something like an income tax blank. They are four printed pages and contain 29 important questions which the applicant must answer fully before his case can be considered.

When a veteran gets a blank his method of procedure is something like this, according to the war department statements; he must first answer the 26 questions; he must have his signature to the paper witnessed by a notary public—he must return his blank to the headquarters of whatever branch of the military service in which he served.

The compensation is regulated by length of service; applications of women who served in the navy will be handled in the same manner as those of men who served; officers up to and including the rank of captain in army and marine and marine corps and of lieutenant in the navy are entitled to the bonus.

Cash payments may be had by persons entitled to not more than $50 beyond that only insurance policies are available.

Precautions are being taken to prevent error and fraud.

Finger prints will be a great prevention as the 50,000 Smiths, the 28,000 Browns and the 27,000 Williams are considered as well as in other cases of duplication of names and residences.

Moreover the records show that there were more Johnsons—40,000 of them—serving in the war than there were men in the entire mare corps force.

Paying the men $50 or handing them a certificate sounds easy, but when it comes to putting it on a workable basis it's a big job even for Uncle Sam.

And while we are referring to the World war and its aftermath it is interesting to note that 30,000 young men this year applied for entrance to the army training camps as against 15,000 last year. Corps area commanders have already notified 14,000 that they have been accepted.

"The weather man" is trying to make us believe that there was only ninth of a degree less than normal cold during the month of May. But we who have used up part of our next winter coal in running the furnace in May, and fed the open fires with our next winter supply of white birch don't take any stock in the weather man and his so called authoritative statements.

We who have associated the word "symphony" with the great orchestral music of renowned composers take a second squint at the headlines in daily papers when we read that confectionary makers are concocting "symphonies in candies." As a reason for using the term it is explained that the candy makers of today please not only the palate but the eye by selecting eight tones of color in the same artistic manner in which the eight notes of a musical scale are used to bring out the harmony.

So the resourceful candy makers of the country are said to be arranging primary flavors and primary colors to represent the tone and pitch of a musical composition and hence the name of symphony.

[illegible] year the [illegible] ed "symphony in taste" may well be of national interest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Salvation Army Appeal.

Mr. Editor: On June 16th the Salvation Army in our city is beginning its Home Service Appeal for $5,000. To that end it has enlisted the services of many public spirited citizens [illegible] in making possible the building of the present Salvation Army home in our city. It was my earnest desire to find out whether the sum asked for was really needed, and if so to what scope it would be applied. I therefore visited the Salvation Army building in Cliff street to secure first hand information and after a careful and thorough investigation I found the following conditions existing in the building: The ground floor, main hall, has a floor space of 20 by 48 feet, but has no adequate seating accommodations. Inasmuch as religious services conducted in this hall on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday noon and evening, at which there is an average attendance of about fifty people, there is an urgent need of installing permanent seating accommodations. Just in front of this room is a room measuring 15 by 16 1-2 feet which is to be turned into a mothers' waiting room, and also which is to be used for a sewing class which at present numbers about fifty-five children, and which is increasing daily. These children belong to no church, many of them are of foreign birth and are brought under the religious influence of the Salvation Army and are also given helpful lessons in Americanization. The Salvation Army desires to provide this room with cooking stove and cooking utensils, so as to furnish light meals to the children and also to the mothers if necessary. There are twelve rooms taking up both the second and third floor of the building, some of them entirely devoid of furniture or of the simplest comforts for those who sometimes are compelled to seek shelter at the Salvation Army for a night's lodging. This is an imperative need and must be provided at once.

Going through the building I was very much impressed with the neatness and cleanliness of the place and the home-like atmosphere, and there I learned of much of the Salvation Army philanthropic work not known to the public. The following is a very brief description of some of its principal activities, as space does not permit me to describe them more fully. There are some people in very adverse circumstances who are ashamed to receive charity and who present themselves to the Salvation Army, offering their services for a meal. They are first fed, and then an inquiry is made of the nature of work which they can perform. For instance, if they are cobblers, tailors, or carpenters, they are taken to the Salvation Army Industrial home at New London where they can repair old shoes, old clothing and old furniture which is collected by the Salvation Army. These repaired articles are in turn sold for a nominal price to deserving and needy poor who are ashamed to ask and who would not accept charity. An illustration of the prices is a repaired baby carriage selling for twenty-five cents and a mended garment or a pair of shoes selling for ten cents. These articles are a great boon to these unfortunates. During the week there are several calls from destitute people who are ashamed to ask for a meal and who would starve if it were not for the Salvation Army. Somehow these unfortunates feel this benevolent institution to be their friend and in their desperation apply for a meal. These meals make a very serious demand upon the funds of the Salvation Army. Many times there is a demand for transportation fees to get some unfortunate who has strayed from a respectable home, back to his destination. This also calls for quite an outlay. Sometimes there is need to move some poor destitute family to provide them with second hand furniture, and pay their rent. Such emergencies are very urgent and can not be overlooked and entail quite an expense to the organization. Often it is called upon to help some unfortunate sick family, in the performance of its housework and of helping to take care of small and helpless children and even of providing very immediate necessities in the home. This is one of the serious needs which the Salvation Army is called upon to take care of.

The Army is also instrumental in securing employment for many people who are destitute and can't find any work. This entails a good deal of hustling and pleading until the unfortunates are placed where they earn a day's wages. I could go on enumerating the activities of the Salvation Army and fill many pages but for want of space, I wish to add my plea for this humane organization which makes no distinction between sect or religion, and is always ready to help every man, woman and child who needs help. I sincerely trust that you will have the kindness to publish these lines, in the hope that the public may learn some details of the work performed by the Salvation Army in our city, which in its modesty and unobtrusiveness never advertises [illegible]

COMPENSATION

Gwendolyn mae finished the last filmy silken garment back among its tissue papers, smoothed the top drawer absently and sat down in the window seat on the foot rather complacently.

"Yes," she replied to no question, "I've a wonderful trousseau if I do say it—there is one dozen of everything and a lot of extra sets besides, too delicate for everyday use. And two dozen pairs of silk hosiery and I'll have about ten new dresses all at once—isn't that grand? To say nothing of hats and shoes to match. And the monogramming on my linen is going to cost about $200, mother says! Isn't that awful—but I do want the best, of course, when I am just starting out!"

Her visitor murmured something unintelligible which Gwendolyn Mae accepted as a proper tribute. Naturally Jane would be knocked rather speechless by the sight of so much expensive beauty. Jane was a nice girl, really a pretty girl, Gwendolyn admitted generously, and it was too bad her family had so little money that she had rather dropped out of the crowd after they left school.

Gwendolyn had rather prided herself on being nice to Jane, though she worked rather hard over the telephone of late to induce Jane to come over. "Why, I'd just love to have you!" she would insist with great heartiness at Jane's demur. At the other end of the line the clear gray eyes would flicker, Jane would shrug one shoulder and say "all right" none too graciously. It never occurred to Gwendolyn that by any chance she could be a bore.

When she had run in this morning Jane was bubbling with her own news which she had decided to confide to Gwendolyn, news that had put a little song into her heart, but somehow the song was dead.

Was it possible that last evening she and Jim had sat, hand in hand, in a breathless sort of dream over the four-room bungalow they had planned to the last aluminum spoon in the tiny kitchen, and where she would wash dishes twice a day for oh, doubtless a very long time?

A flashing vision of the luxurious, silken ease in prospect for the girl on the window seat blurred her eyes. Life was not fair.

"I've really got to go home," she said, getting up. "Your things are lovely!" There was no use in telling her own plans, for her absorbed self-interest would make her listening only perfunctory. Jane wanted to get home and cry.

"Oh, must you?" Gwendolyn demurred, reluctant to lose her audience. "Oh, yes—look at my new picture of Arthur, over there in the silver frame! He said I was to have the best there was and the foolish thing paid $50 for that one photograph."

Mechanically Jane stopped at the table where stood the likeness of Gwendolyn's bridegroom. Up to that minute she hadn't thought much about Arthur. He was just part of the paraphernalia of Gwendolyn's trousseau and expensive possessions. As she looked, something queer happened to Jane's throat. She was looking at the face of a man of 30, handsome, but with the pouches of a good liver beneath his sophisticated eyes. There were lines, too, which spelled the tempers which had dotted their fifty years, and others, which even to her inexperience told of selfishness—then Jim's face beamed upon her. Straightforward, adoring eyes, firm jawbone, laughing lines about his eyes and mouth—youth. And he wished such a lot! Jim coming in with a breathless rush reporting that he had seen a bargain in teakettles and had bought one for the bungalow and grabbing her up and kissing her—Jane turned around on the amazed Gwendolyn a face that was as radiant as the sun breaking through summer raincloods.

"B'by," Jane said hurriedly, absentmindly neglecting to admire the portrait. "I've got such a heap of things to do at home I must tear away!"

"Now what in the world has she so terribly important on hand?" muttered Gwendolyn [illegible], watching from the window. "Maybe my good luck is too much for her! Poor Jane!" —Exchange.

McManamy, the Water Boy

Frank McManamy wanted an education, was too poor to acquire it otherwise so went to work that he might earn a living while studying.

First a water boy for a construction gang on the Pennsylvania System, he then joined a section gang, worked at track-laying and sought a way to supplement his common school education. While firing a locomotive on the Chicago and West Michigan Railroad in 1891, he made a freight run of 150 miles every day and attended a business college at Traverse City. He then studied law for two years. After six years as a fireman he was promoted to engineer. Resigning in 1899, he became an air-brake instructor for a correspondence school and was assistant manager of the railway department, then engineer of tests.

Entering the service of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1903 as inspector of safety appliances, he won higher positions rapidly. Appointed chief inspector of locomotives by President Wilson in 1913, he held the position until Secretary McAdoo made him assistant director of operations for the United States Railroad Administration.

CHILD TRAINING

YOUR CHILDREN'S BELONGINGS

By Mrs. Nestor Noel

We hear a great deal about the farmer who gives his children calves and pigs and sees them away when these animals are grown. For years, people have been writing about this. There are other injustices which no one thinks much about, yet they are just as serious because the same lack of principle is there.

I allude to the cool way with which the mother frequently takes a gift received by one child and gives it to another. A child has some rights! Once you have given your daughter something, even if it be but a doll, this becomes hers forever, unless she herself chooses to give it away.

I recall a child of six to whom I gave several presents. As soon as she returned home, her mother took them away, to give the into a younger sister.

Very frequently, an older girl is told to give something she prizes to the baby to stop its crying. This is not good for the elder child. It makes her look on the baby as on an enemy from whom her things must be hidden. It certainly is not good for the baby, because it makes her think that anything will be given her, provided she cries loudly enough for it.

What sense of Justice can our children have in later years, when they are brought up in this manner?

Once when I gave a present to a little girl she said, "Is it for me to keep?" It seemed that other people had given her things and she had not been allowed to keep them.

There was another child to whom I gave a doll. I knew she had been longing for one for years, yet when I gave it to her, instead of being delighted as I had felt sure she would be, she looked at me sadly, while two great tears rolled slowly down her cheeks.

"What is it?" I asked. "Do you not want the doll?"

"O, I do!" she cried, "But Helen has no doll, and they will give this to her as soon as they see it."

It was only by giving Helen another doll, that I could induce the mother to allow the elder sister to keep hers.

A child's mind is easily influenced and it is while one is still very young that clear ideas of right and wrong can be most easily implanted. Later on, there will be many things that we shall try to teach, and those first impressions will either help or hinder.

It is at home that a child should be taught to respect his brother's and sisters' toys. If an elder sister lends a toy to a younger one, the latter should be taught to be extra careful of the toy because it "belongs to Big Sister."

Each child should have a place for his own toys and these should not be lent about indiscriminately by the parent, especially while the owner is away at school. I have seen mothers lend toys when those to whom they belonged were not there to defend their property. I have known the big children to hide their things away "in case Mother might give them to Baby" in their absence. It is easy to see that no true love can grow up between mother and child under such conditions. Mothers should be fair to all their children and not show favoritism. [illegible] mothers should teach the [illegible] as possible the difference between "mine" and "thine."

Two hundred and thirty four gallons of stewed [illegible] transported from Providence, R. I. to Hartford and New Britain, were seized by State Policeman Smith at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning on the Connecticut Boulevard in East Hartford.

ROTARIANS MEET AT SPRING HILL CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 11.—"Assert Your Own Authority," was the slogan at a round table gathering of the Willimantic Rotary club in the vestry of the Spring Hill church, Tuesday evening, when the Under-Dogs of the recent attendance contest led by Lighting Val Murphy, were hosts to the erstwhile victors under the captainship of Jim Mustard. The turffout was large and the appetities were limited only to full capacity, the winners doing commendable work in masticating the free lunch, the rush for eats culminating in the imposition of a sentence to five minutes of singing on President Standish and Aime J. Fartineau, when they were found guilty of cribbing. The sweet-toothed member of the club was discovered in the person of Fred Jordan, who led his fellows in biting into an April Fool stuffed date, consequently was first to find that he made a mistake. A kitchen rendition was the next feature of the activities, the songsters being Amie Martineau, Harry Standish, Charles Alpaugh, Herb Huber, Gus Greene, Charles Pomeroy and Leader Jerry Sullivan. Ex-President Val Murphy, the defeated captain, presided at the session ruling the meeting with a cowbell. Festivities were ushered in at 6.30 p. m., with a community song. The roll call of the members of the winning team as read by Secretary Hill follows: Dope Frank Smith, Silky Alpaugh, Slats Standish, Gloomy Gus Greene, Speedy Leonard, Gassy Buck, Farmer Pomeroy, Runt Branch, Twin Bed Martineau, Gum Shoe Sullivan, Ready-to-Wear Fullerton, Sausage Laramee, Million Dollar Huber, Dry Dock Riordan and Keep Cool Parker. The high calibre speeches as made by Farmer Pomeroy and Slats Standish warranted their being assigned as speakers from the local club to a joint session with the Hartford club, in that city, August 29th. Val Murphy was selected as alternate to delegate Jim Mustard to the Toronto convention of Rotary.

The house broke into a uproar when Judge Frank H. Foss followed upon a complimentary speech by presenting the latter an odoriferous bouquet of onions, cabbages, carrots and other vegetables. A quartette, Standish, Parker, Mustard and Runt Branch then sang The Lost Chord, with the able assistance of Gus Greene. The wind for another song was graciously lent by Speedy Leonard and Fullerton. Extemporaneous speeches were made by the following as called upon Runty Branch, Canned Mustard, Sausage Laramee, Knocky Leonard, Crabbed Rock Potter, Oily Buck, Leather Lung Standish, Soft Shoe Sullivan and Hay Fever Loisell. Gus Greene, "designated as our hired man from Whis Bang farm," was called upon for solo selections which he rendered and Jim Fullerton gave precise directions on the proper stamping of envelopes. Prof. Dick Dodge, who secured the services of the Storrs ladies and the eating place for the feast was referred to by Charlie Pomeroy who acclaimed him as similar to the grapefruit, which is nothing more than a lemon which had a chance and took it. Mrs. Arthur J. Dubreuil furnished excellent accompaniments for the singing. Hail, Hail We're Glad You're Here was welcomed as a welcome song by the defeated aggregation; in response the victorious outfit sang That's Rotary. A rising vote of thanks was extended the women's society who so efficiently served the excellent repast. The meeting adjourned at 9.20 with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Mrs. Marian A. Baker and Miss Marie Simpson of Tolland were among passengers sailing from New York on the steamer Orduna, for England. They will be abroad all summer.

OBITUARY.

Enoch T. Grant.

Following a serious illness of nine weeks, Enoch T. Grant died Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home on the Canterbury turnpike.

Mr. Grant who had been in failing health for the past two years, was born in Freeport, Maine, July 28th, 1844, the son of the late Daniel W. and Eliza Soul Grant.

When a young man he resided in Hartford for about eighteen years, later coming to Norwich, where he was associated with his brother, Captain Woodbury Grant, in the grocery business on the West Side.

January 5th, 1893, Mr. Grant was united in marriage with Miss Martha A. Hull, of Norwich Town, the ceremony having been performed by Rev. Asher A. Wilcox, in the home where Mrs. Grant was born, and has always resided, on the Canterbury turnpike.

Mr. Grant was twice married; his first wife, whom he married many years ago, was Miss Abbie Blanchard-Bartol of Maine. She died about 33 years ago.

For several years Mr. Grant was a faithful employe of the Troy Steam laundry, until ill health compelled him to give up his work. He was a member of the 18th Regiment and of the G. A. R., of Maine, having served in the Civil war from 1861 to 1865, receiving an honorable discharge.

Besides his wife he is survived by three nephews and two nieces in Maine.

Mr. Grant was of a quiet disposition, always ready to assist others in time of need and regarded as a kindly neighbor and friend. He was especially fond of his home and his chief aim was to make home and those dear to him happy.

Joseph Warner.

Word has been received in Norwich of the death in Holland, Mich., Friday evening, of Joseph Warner, 96, formerly of this city and a well known landscape painter.

Mr. Warner was born near London, England, on Oct. 5, 1827. He came with his parents to America at the age of five and lived for many years in New York state where his family farmed. Young Warner, however, did not take to agriculture and he ran away from home in the romantic fashion of those days to become an artist. His struggles for art's sake form a romantic history and his wanderings all over America and Canada make interesting history. He was a prominent painter in Toronto and Montreal for some years, and in the early history of Chicago he was one of the best known portrait painters of the time.

It is said that in the heyday of his powers he was the best painter of the human eye in Chicago. This was before the day of the vogue of photography, but it was the development of the photograph that gave Mr. Warner the deathblow as a portrait painter. It took his business away from him and at the maturity of his powers he was forced to learn a new art, namely the art of landscape painting. This was about 30 or 35 years ago.

Mrs. Hattie A. Wheeler of 21 West Town street is a niece. Mrs. Wheeler has an oil painting of the old Bennett place and the entrance to the railroad tunnel at Taftville done by Mr. Warner over 50 years ago. This painting is 18x24 inches.

Following the service a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride at 80 Shetucket street some 25 relatives and friends attending.

The bride's gown was of brown with hat to match and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses. She received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, china, silverware, linen and furniture.

CITY MEETING TURNS DOWN SEVEN "EXTRAS"-TAX RATE MADE 22 3-4 MILLS

Economy prevailed in the annual city meeting held Tuesday night at the city hall over 800 voters crowding into the hall to vote upon regular appropriations and extras, and when adjournment was taken at 9.30 o'clock a tax of 22 3-4 mills had been laid for the city, a reduction of 2 1-4 mills from the tax rate in 1923.

All regular estimated expenses as recommended by the committee on finance were passed almost without question and out of $156,050 asked in extras only $84,950 was allowed, and seven of the extras out of 17 asked were voted down at a saving of $71,100. Out of the $84,950 voted in extras 6 items for construction of sewers totalled $23,950, a large part of which will ultimately be returned to the city treasury through assessments.

After several of the extras had been quickly voted the feeling began to prevail throughout the hall that things had gone far enough and from that time on the only extras to pass were those calling for sewer constructions, on the plea of public safety, and in view of the fact that assessments in proportion to benefits would bring back much of the money expended in their construction.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters and the call of the meeting was read by Weston C. Pullen, city clerk. The estimated expenses of the city for the year were first taken up and with a few exceptions was quickly voted.

No Increase for Police

The first break in the voting came when the item of $63,200 was asked for general expense of the police department. Attorney Charles V. James took the floor and recommended that this item be increased to $63,299 to provide a raise in pay for the members of the department. The policemen, he said, receive but $5 a day, in reality less, for they must pay 3 per cent. into the police pension fund, buy their own uniforms and lose pay when ill. Norwich wants good officers, said Attorney James, and good officers can only be had at good wages.

Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, police commissioner stated that $69,200 would not cover a raise of $1 a day for the police department officers and if this was to be voted the appropriation must be made $73,426. Attorney James then offered his motion to that effect and when put to vote was lost and the original $63,200 was voted, which is an increase over the amount voted last year, made to provide for one or more traffic officer.

In the election expenses an explanation was offered for the increase of about $1500 over last year. Mayor Waters explained that voters at the West Side and Greeneville in past years have been forced to vote in places unfit for using for polls and the city was asked to provide one permanent voting place at a cost of about $1500, the other to be provided by the town. This item of $3800 was than voted.

Sewer North Cliff street. 350.00

Sewer, Pratt street 4,000.00

Total $84,950

Everything went smoothly on the extras asked for until the item of $2300 for concrete paving of Ferry street was reached and Guy B. Dolbeare moved that this matter be indefinitely postponed, and his motion was carried.

Williams Street Voted Down

The movement to put a stop to all further appropriations came when the seventh item was reached on the extras calling for tar bound macadam on Williams street at a cost of $8,800. Daniel T. Shea took the floor and asked where the city was heading in this matter of voting everything asked in extras. If we vote everything asked on this list, he said, we will go out of this meeting voting $271,000 for street improvements. If we vote everything he said, Norwich must face a 52 mill tax, a tax that is a disgrace to any community. I don't want our people under a burden of 52 mills and therefore I move that all further items be indefinitely postponed. Mayor Waters informed him that this could not be done and that action must be taken on each item.

Hibberd R. Norman then took the floor and said that Williams street should be fixed as many cars used this street in going to the cemetery and many funerals passed over this street. He caused a laugh when he said that people taking their last ride should have a comfortable one, but the motion was lost, after Mr. Shea said that he favored fixing Main streets if necessary but believed all side street improvements should be postponed.

Other Appropriations Killed.

When the item for Uncas street was reached Charles D. Noyes requested that the voters be not stampeded into voting down everything listed, but select what was needed. He felt that Uncas street should be repaired as it is a mud hole and almost impossible to travel over in winter. The motion was lost, however, after others had spoken in favor of holding down the tax rate. The same action was taken regarding Fairmount street.

The Roosevelt avenue sewer was voted down while City Health Officer Dr. E. J. Brophy was trying to get the floor. However the voters gave him an opportunity to be heard. Dr. Brophy explained the deplorable conditions on that avenue and said that in the interest of public health this sewer should be constructed. Alderman Gebrath stated that of the $5,000 required for this work much of it would come back to the city through assessments on property owners benefited. A motion to reconsider was carried and the item was carried on a second vote. Similar action followed on sewer construction on Summit and Carpenter streets, North Cliff street, Asylum street and Pratt street, when the voters learned that a portion of the money expended would come back to the city through assessments.

All other items calling for magadamizing streets in various parts of the city were definitely postponed by practically a unanimous vote.

Resolutions were then taken up in order and passed as follows: That the common council be authorized to make appropriations requisite to defray expenses of the city in accord with estimates altered and approved by the meeting; that a tract of land 70 feet square near Baltic street be deeded by the city to Caroline E. Gerber, to allow her to straighten her property line.

When the resolution authorizing the borrowing of $50,000 by the Gas & Electrical department for expansion and extensions came up James L. Case, president of the board explained that heretofore this money had been taken from earnings of the department, but that it was deemed advisable to get this money through appropriation rather than take it from earnings. The resolution was adopted.

Laurel Hill Improvement.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the borrowing of $47,500 for expenses of permanent improvement on Laurel Hill and Main street and Thames square to Washington square, the same vote taking place to allow the borrowing from time to time sums not to exceed $225,000 to be repaid by city taxes during the year.

Approval was made of the abatement of taxes on the list and the matter of laying a tax on the last perfected grand list was then taken up. Corporation Counsel W. H. Shields offered a resolution fixing the tax at 22 3-4 mills on the grand list, payable October 10, 1924, on estimates approved and appropriations authorized at the meeting. The clerk was instructed to cast one ballot for the adoption of the resolution fixing the tax at 22 3-4 mills which is 2 1-2 mills less than the tax laid last year.

Tax Collector's Salary.

The last item of business was a resolution fixing the salary of Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson at 1 per cent., the same as last year. H. H. Gallup took the floor and said that although he had the greatest respect for the tax collector he felt that it is the interest of the taxpayers the resolution should be amended to read 3-4 of 1 per cent.

Charles D. Noyes spoke in favor of leaving the rate at 1 per cent, the same as last year, stating that the Robinson family had handled millions of dollars for Norwich and that the city had never lost one cent. J. J. Corkery also spoke in favor of keeping the rate at 1 per cent, a fair remuneration for the work being done by Mr. Robinson who has to pay clerk hire and cost of operating the office out of his salary as tax collector. John Woodmansee favored the lower rate stating that there were many men in the room who would gladly do the work for 1-2 of one per cent., and he was followed by Herman A. Bruckner who favored 1 per cent.

A vote was taken on the amendment as made by Mr. Gallup and Mayor Waters declared the amendment lost, but Mr. Gallup doubted and asked for a rising vote. This was taken and showed a lage majority against the amendment. The original resolution fixing the salary at 1 per cent. was voted and carried by a large majority.

Adjournment followed immediately at 9.30 o'clock.

KLANSMEN INITIATE 466 AT OUTDOOR MEETING

At a gathering of approximately 1,500 knights and guests of the Ku Klux Klan Tuesday evening in an open field on the outskirts of Norwich 466 candidates from New London county and Washington county (R. I.) were initiated by the klan degree team. As early as 3 o'clock klansmen began arriving from all sections of the two counties and as the evening progressed and the opening hour grew near there was a steady stream of machines making their way over the country roads. Guards robed in white greeted the arrivals at the entrance to the grounds and after they had been properly identified they were allowed to pass on. Other klansmen guided the machines to parking places close to the scene of the gathering. The meeting was in effect an open meeting and there were a number of guests, including a representative of the press, present upon invitation.

About 9.30 o'clock the gathering was called to order by F. P. Williams of Providence, a well known leader in klan activities, and the speaker of the evening. The meeting was opened with prayer offered by a clegyman. Then, speaking from the top of a huge boulder beside which had been erected three crosses, each about 15 high, Mr. Williams delivered an address to the large crowd assembled about him. Mr. Williams explained in clear cut language the aims and purpose of the klan

This is not an organization of hate, he said. Ours is not a "hate" programme. What is this movement? American, pure and simple. What does it expect to achieve? The restoration of the God given rights left to the native born Americans through heritage from their forefathers.

Why has this organization roused animosity from certain groups? Its membership is composed of the purest, noblest manhood and womanhood of America. We make our appeal to the native sons of America. We have incorporated in our platform white supremacy. For that reason we are called anti-negro. We are not anti-negro. The white race has ever been friendly with the negro. White supremacy means to maintain pure and uncontaminated the white blood of America. White supremacy must be elevated.

Separation of state and church is a right given us by the constitution of the United States We are termed anti-Catholic. We are not anti-Catholic. We are not anti-anything. But we are pro-everything that is American. We are going to stand back of the constitution which grants us the right, of separation of church and state. To any group that does not wish to obey the constitution we say "Hands off."

Mr. Williams said the organization is the soul of America throwing off the bondage of years of rotten politics. We are banded together, he said, to preserve the things that are sacred to us. We take into our membership native born, white, gentile Protestants. We are a Christian organization. This is our country, your country and it is time for the native sons to work for those things we know are right;

Touching on the public school plank of the klan's platform the speaker said: "The klan says the parochial school as a substitute for the public school, must go, is going, and in some places is on the skid.

Free speech was another point touched upon. There is no such thing for the klan, said Mr. Williams. It is a joke. The constitution says free speech for all. We have to get out in the open as we are gathered tonight to tell the truth to our people. Moreover the organization has become a power we have free speech.

Free press—there is no such thing as free press, he said. Who is causing these riots we hear about? The press. Why? Because it is controlled by the enemies of the native whites. We are going to have a free press.

Another matter touched upon by the speaker was the sanctity of the home. We must maintain the purity of our American womanhood. To those who come from foreign shores and through nefarious schemes attempt to destroy our womanhood we say they must go back or obey the law.

After speaking of the patriotic aims of the klan, Mr. Williams said in closing. The cornerstone of this organization is the Holy Bible. He was roundly applauded by the interested audience.

Preparations were then started for the initiation of the 466 candidates, 308 from New London county and 158 from Washington county (R. I.). The burning of the three fiery crosses, the klan emblem, about midnight, proved an impressive feature of the night's programme.

Set Fires Without Permit

John Chism of Eastford was presented before Justice C. M. Ferren at Woodstock last week on a charge of building fires without a permit. The state's case against his was prosecuted by Mr. Latham of North Franklin, acting for the state forestry department. The arrest grew out of two fires, one April 17, and the other May 17, for which he was said to be responsible. The testimony in each case showed that Mr. Chism started the fires near a lumber camp in order to burn away the surrounding rubbish, that the fires were left unguarded and that the results were in one case the lost of $28,000 worth of lumber owned by Healy Brothers of Manchester and in the other burning over of 300 acres. He was fined $20 and costs amounting to $41.16.

EAST ENDS SWAMP NUGGETS IN FIRST GAME OF TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Norwich Twilight league started off Tuesday night with a whoop and a bang when the East Siders swamped the Nuggets 16 to 5 in a slugging contest. A crowd of nearly [illegible] that packed the grandstand and thronged the sidelines, was on hand when Mayor Mahlon R. Waters pitched the first ball to it and opened the league season. The mayor's control was not so bad and Umpire Joe Chaney gracefully called one ball and one strike.

The crowd stuck to the finish and even at the end of the fifth inning when the game was supposed to have been called they pleaded for an extra inning. A bunch of more ardent fans would be hard to find even in the most rabid baseball towns. There was plenty of boosting for the favorites, but good natured rivalry was manifested by the two factions.

The game itself was one good to see for fine fielding and hard hitting from start to finish. Out of a total of 27 put up by both teams, 11 doubles registered an average of a double [illegible] innings. Not many parks can beat of this record. The [illegible] are largely responsible for the large proportion of extra base hits, in that beyond the outfield extends a swamp and any ball into this carried the hitter to two bases.

These were sorely needed [illegible] Madden had instilled his team [illegible] the extent of [illegible] runs in the second, acquired by means of two fielders choices and five hits. This turned out to be the Nuggets' big inning and they made the most of it. Another tally was added in the third. In this frame Mills caught a line drive and doubled up Burke at third who would have scored a moment later on Tombari's fly to left field which D. Pedace muffed. From this point on the Nuggets never again threatened, and the East Siders simply added to their lead.

With the score standing 12 to 5 at the [illegible] of the sixth, Madden ventured to the hurler's mound, in one of the earnest protests of several of his teammates. Big George received a huge ovation as he hurled the first strike. The first two hitters terrified by his express train speed, took three mighty whiffs at the air and returned to the players' bench. "Muggsey" Ellsworth next faced the hero and had two strikes when he got a Texas leaguer over third base. Madden fanned the next man. Madden still further added to his prestige by beating out an infield hit in the seventh frame. The game kept the crowd on edge every minute of the hour and a quarter it took. Mills, the winning pitcher, played good ball and deserved his fate. He also was a heavy hitter, getting three doubles in [illegible] at bat. Coullard featured [illegible] his fielding and

BARNES' AIRTIGHT PITCHING GIVES BRAVES VICTORY

Chicago, June 10.—Bib Falk's homer with none out in the thirteenth gave the Sox a three to two victory over Boston today. Piercy was hit hard, but the low scores against him was due to fast fielding. Cvengros and Schalk gave way to pinch hitters who tied the score in the 9th. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Is the shortstop supposed to be in the play?

This problem worries a good many teams for frequently a runner on second is able to start or third baseman noting it as they are engrossed in watching the ball or the batter. It is up to the shortstop to pass the signal that the runner is attempting to steal. Such a play is in front of him and he can't help noticing it. He immediately yells aloud enough to advise the catcher and third baseman that the steal is being attempted. In that way, the third baseman is able to cover the bag and the catcher to peg the ball to him in time to catch the runner.

SAINTS FORCE GREENEVILLE INTO TIE IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

Before a fair sized crowd of fans, St. Patricks school succeeded in defeating the Greeneville Grammar school lads on the Academy field yesterday afternoon, thus tying Greeneville and Broadway in the grammar school league and giving their own team an excellent chance to be included in the tie following their next game.

Yesterday seemed to be the off day for the Greenevillites who were outplayed by their rivals, who both batted and fielded the ball in a very capable manner. In spite of this, however, the game proved to be one of the most interesting of the league games played this season.

Shea's pitching was the outstanding feature of the game. He held Greeneville to three scattered hits while his teammates piled up 12 hits and augmented by six passes obtained 13 runs. J. Burns on second and W. Burns at shortstop both performed creditably. Dan Courbois' hitting also featured. The Greeneville team showed a great need of practice and teamwork, both of which largely contributed to the victory of the Saints. Bill McKnight, umpire in place of LaVarge, rendered complete satisfaction. The lineup of the Saints: Shea p, Mingo c, D. Courbois 1b, J. Burns 2b, W. Burns ss, J. Marks, capt., 3b, Ed Hamil lf, Dan Sullivan cf, F. Donovan rf, N. Murphy cf, Drew rf.

With Johnson pitching, Jack Roser hit his 13th home run of the season in the eighth inning. The score:

RICKARD WILL GO THROUGH WITH WILLS-MADDEN BOUT

New York, June 10.—Though his prestige suffered a sharp setback, in the opinion of most critics, when he failed to knock out Bartley Madden last night at the Queensboro stadium, Harry Wills, giant negro heavyweight, remains in the front rank of title contenders and probably will not lose his chance to pave the way for a fight with Jack Dempsey.

Tex Rickard intimated today that the result of the Madden-Wills bout would not alter his proposal to match the big negro in an elimation test with Luis Firpo at Boyle's thirty acres in August, but declared his plans were yet indefinite.

There were growing indications, meanwhile, that Wills, even if he hurdles Firpo, will not be matched with Dempsey before next season, if then. Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, insisted today that he still was open for a "big shot" but turned down an offer of $150,000 from the Queensboro A. C. for a match in July with Madden and intimated that he would abandon plans for any bouts this year unless he comes to a definite agreement with Rickard within the next few days. Dempsey's motion picture engagement is taking an increasing amount of his time. Kearns added.

ALBANY BREAKS EVEN WITH THE BRASSCOS

Albany, N. Y., June 10.—Albany and Waterbury broke even in today's double-header. Waterbury won the first game, 5 to 2, through Bishop's good pitching. Albany won the second 8 to 7, after Donahue's home run tied the score in the ninth inning of this an error, hit, and fielder's choice and contest. Albany filled the bases on Schinckel's single scored Taylor with the winning run. The hitting of Yordy and Donahue of Waterbury featured. Yordy made seven consecutive hits in the two games. The score:

VILLA EARNS DECISION OVER BUD TAYLOR

New York, June 10—Pancho Villa, worlds flyweight champion, went out of his class tonight, gave weight, height and reach to Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., bantamweight and won a judges' decision in a 12 round bout. Villa weighed 113 1-2, Taylor 117 1-2.

In the first round Villa's right split Taylor's lip and a wild lunging left brought blood from his nose later in the bout. Villa was unmarked.

During the eleventh and twelfth rounds the boxers were standing toe to toe nearly every minute.

Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., won a decision over Lew Hurley, New York featherweight, in the 12-round semi-final. Leonard was given seven of the twelve rounds, four went to Hurley and one was called even. Leonard almost had Hurley out in the ninth when he floored him for a count of nine but Hurley covered up and managed to stay the limit. In a six round preliminary Len Melady of Laramie, Wyo., fought a draw with Harry Felix of Brooklyn.

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN NEW ENGLAND TENNIS

Hartford, Conn., June 10.—Favorites advanced as expected in the first and second round matches of the New England tennis championship tournament here today. William T. Tilden, 2nd, national champion, played his first match, easily defeating Frank Smith of Waterbury, 6-3, 6-2.

DUNDEE ASKS FOR MORE TIME TO ANSWER KAPLAN

New York, June 10.—Johnny Dundee, featherweight champion of the world, today asked the state athletic commission to delay the time set for him to answer Kid Kaplans challenge for his title. The time limit set by the commission expires tomorrow but the commission granted a stay until Friday.

The commission also set $100,000 as the limit for the promoters of the milk fund show to spend on the card. The Tunney-Loughran fight, originally scheduled for Henderson's bowl on June 24, was postponed until early in July by request of the milk fund promoters to enable Tunney to fight Spalla at the charity show.

Johnson Wins Race

New York, June 10.—R. Earl Johnson of Pittsburgh, took first place in the final Olympic tryout in the cross-country run today, defeating a field of 35 starters. His time was 31 minutes 29 4-5 seconds, and the distance six miles and one-quarter.

James Henigan of Dorchester, Mass., finished second. John Gray of New York, third, and A. A. Studenroth of Philadelphia, fourth.

Such popularity must be deserved

LUCK may win an occasional match. But it never made a champ. Cups can't be won year after year unless they are deserved. There are cup-winning cigarettes, too.

ACADEMY EXPECTED TO WIN TODAY'S TITLE GAME WITH WESTERLY HIGH

Interscholastic baseball interest centers today on the Academy-Westerly championship game at the Academy campus this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. This game decides the title in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league and will be hotly contested from start to finish. Westerly in view of the fact that so much importance is attached to this contest has refused to accept Emory Davis, the regular Academy umpire as arbitor. Westerly's protest was made on Monday and two representatives of the Westerly team conferred with Coach Brigham on Tuesday afternoon.

Two umpires were agreed upon, one to officiate in back of the plate and the other on bases. The umpire behind the plate will be none other than Tommy Corcoran, veteran of the Cincinnati Red Stockings, and for a number of years umpire in the league as well as one time an arbitor in the southern association. Tommy is rightly rated the best umpire officiating in this section of the state and he will be master of the game from start to finish. On the bases Fred Ingham another veteran of the national pastime, will officiate. With this duo of umpires running the game it is looked to be exceptionally fast.

The Academy team has put in two afternoons of stiff practice against left hand pitching in anticipation that Coach Sherman will start Smith, a southpaw on the mound for Westerly. The boys have their batting eyes with them and if their work during the past two days means anything then the Westerly outfielders are due for a busy afternoon. The infield practice during the past two afternoons has been snappy and accurate, the boys handling themselves in finished style and it will take a world of extra base drive hits through this department to score.

Westerly expects to start Tuesday against the Academy smoke ball pitcher against the Rhode Island-Connecticut pitched a wonderful game against Stonington on Saturday and showed he in even better condition for today's game. Ellie Segal, who has been going stale in the past few games, will be the relief worker.

The regular lineup will be used in Academy-Sherman. The batting order will be the same as in the Stonington game combination that works well when runs are needed. Westerly will use the same lineup as played against Academy early in the season when Westerly won. The odds, however, favor Academy as is shown by the season record. The local team has shaped up better in all ways than the Westerly team.

YANKS SHUT OUT BROWNS IN CEREMONIAL GAME

St. Louis, June 10—Dixie Davis failed to hold the New York Yankees in check and the Browns were shutout today, 5 to 0, in the fourth and final game of the series.

A crowd of 20,000 overflowed the park in honor of George Sisler, popular Brown playing manager, who was awarded a handsomely mounted certificate designating him the most valuable American League player in 1922. The award was made amid elaborate ceremonies prior to the game, with members of both teams at the plate.

Sisler also was presented with a basket of flowers and he and Babe Ruth, possessor of the 1923 trophy, were photographed together.

The U. S. Blimps TA-1 and TC-3 circled over the field, from the first of which two baseballs were dropped. Ruth caught one and George Grant the other. Score:

NINTH-INNING RALLY NETS ATHLETICS GAME

Detroit, Mich. June 10.—Scoring three runs in a ninth inning rally, Philadelphia defeated Detroit in the game of the series 4 to 3. CROSBY SENDS BULKELEY TEAM DOWN TO DEFEAT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Waterbury, June 10.—The long string of consecutive victories hung up by the Bulkeley High school nine of New London was broken this afternoon by Crosby High at Hamilton park. The final score was 6 to 1 in favor of the home team. The visitors had difficulty to find Lally the Brass City hurler for hits and with almost perfect defense play by the Crosby infield he had an easy time coming out ahead.

Bulkeley played anything but baseball and after a ride of over eighty miles cramped in automobiles, one could expect very little more from the Orange and Black. Four glaring errors were made by the Bulkeley players that were each time converted into runs. It was not the same Bulkeley fighting team and with the majority of the heavy hitters, who were consistent in their hitting up until this contest, in a slump, the team simply went to pieces. Bulkeley escaped a shutout in the last inning by an error and a single.

Dazzy Parisi was on the mound opposing the brilliant Lally and he deserved a better fate. The Orange and Black were not in the playing mood and there was nothing that could shake them out of their lethargy. The Crosby team was the fastest of teams to stack up against Bulkeley this year. The infield, especially James and Mullens, made several plays that helped Lally out of holes in which he found himself.

The game was fast played and contrary to custom no walks were issued by either Lally for Crosby, or Parisi for Bulkeley. Both pitchers worked on their batters with unusual caution and the infield or the outfield of each team was given a chance to share their part of the burden of the game. The Crosby fielders did this willingly but the Bulkeley fielders were susceptible to poor playing and consequently the Orange and Black were sent down to defeat. The score:

KACEYS PLAY FAST BALL AGAINST THE SILKMEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 17.—By playing gilt edge ball in the pinches and taking advantage of their opponents' errors, the Knights of Columbus won their first game against the champion Coricelli team. The score was 6 to 3 with the Silkmen on the short end thus taking their second straight defeat. The champions of last year were playing under a handicap for three of their star players could not appear with them in the game last evening. Ryan and Coda, two of the best outfielders in the city, were confined to their homes by sickness and Sheflott, the best catcher in New London, was with the Bulkeley team in Waterbury. The Silkmen played well despite their loss and for looked like winners.

The Kaceys forged to the front in the fourth inning by pushing across four markers, which proved to be enough to win the game. Three hits sandwiched in between a wild throw accounted for the runs. The Kaceys' infield was working in perfect order and two fast double plays stopped what looked to be big innings for the Silkmen. With the infield working in such perfect accord, Joe McInnis had little to worry about. Joe Murphy's work around second base was of the highest order and he carried off all the fielding honors. The victory places the Knights of Columbus in a tie with the Fort Trumbull Stars for first place in the league standing.

New London Sport Comment

Fordham university will probably have a New London battery in the near future. With Johnny Dwyer at Fordham already, a catcher is now needed at the Bronx institution to make the battery complete. The catcher from New London is expected to be George Sheflott of Bulkeley. Sheflott's heavy hitting and fine work behind the bat has gained some recognition for himself and he recently received a letter from Fordham inquiring about his studies and inviting Sheflott to be present at the Fordham reunion exercises to be held on June 12. A scholarship will be awarded to Sheflott in his senior year, for he has one more year at Bulkeley.

Only on Saturday, Johnny Dwyer defeated Boston College by an 8 to 7 score. Johnny is going good for Fordham this year and is expected to show a vast improvement in his second year at this institution.

Three or four more players on the Bulkeley team this year have received letters or notices from the leading universities inquiring about the course of study taken by the players and also inviting them down to various exercises to be held during this week and next. Scholarships are expected to be awarded, although the boys have one more year at Bulkeley.

It is known definitely that Rert T. Aldrich, baseball and football coach at Bulkeley High school, will not return to the local institution as mentor next year. Mr. Aldrich, who deserves much credit for the way the Orange and Black is handling itself this year, has entered the insurance game and will make his home in Vermont in the future. Previous to his announcement of his intention to quit the coaching game, Mr. Aldrich planned to spend one more year at Bulkeley.

With the twilight leagues very firmly established in the city, there is something doing at Morgan park every night in the week. In the city league, the four teams entered are strong and stiff opposition is expected in all games. The Industrial league boasts of teams that will make the fans deprecate the contests they miss, for the teams are well fortified and with more additions expected by the annexing of players from the local high schools with the termination of school the teams will be ready for a long campaign.

Harvard Crews Have Light Work.

Red Top, Conn., June 10.—All the Harvard crews were given light workouts today going down the river to the three mile mark and back. Several short brushes were held each way. Due to illness, Weymor, number 4, in the junior varsity, was out and his place was taken by Iselin tonight. The air was raw on the water.

Mandell Beats Dundee

Chicago, June 9.—Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Illinois, defeated Johnny Dundee of New York, junior lightweight and featherweight champion of the world in a ten round contest opening the new $50,000 open air arena at East Chicago, Ind., tonight. Mandell in the opinion of the newspaper experts won every one of the ten rounds by a wide margin.

The only player who has won the United States open golf championship four times is Willie Anderson, who copped the title in 1901 and for three successive years beginning with 1903.

Nowadays, when as much as a quarter of a millions dollars has been offered and refused for star players, it is difficult to realize the sensation created in the baseball world back in 1888 when Boston paid Chicago $10,000 for King Kelly.

Bud Taylor, the little Terre Haute battler who began his career as a flyweight and for a time looked like a real contender for Pancho Villa's crown, has outgrown the flyweight class and in future will do his fighting in the bantamweight division.

From the viewpoint of gate receipts Philadelphia is credited with being the most profitable town on the pugilistic map. For more than a generation the fight game has flourished continually in the Quaker City.

The announcement that the Duke of York, King George's second son, has registered his racing colors with the Jockey club, recalls the fact that a Duke of York won the great Derby in the early part of the last century.

A legend has grown up that at one time Georges Carpentier worked in the mines in his native town of Lens. This is incorrect. Carpentier invested his savings in the mines of Lens before the war, but he began life as an office boy.

The mystic figure "9" played a conspicous part in the recent victory of the Boston Red Sox over the Detroit Tigers. Besides playing the regulation nine men and nine innings, the Red Sox made nine runs, nine hits and secured nine bases on balls

Josh Devore, manager of the Grand Rapids team of the Mint league, manages to get into the game once in a while. The former Giant still knows how to hit and isn't so slow for an old fellow.

If First Baseman Regan of Flint had not been in the Grand Rapids-Flint game of May 10, Pitcher Teske of Grand Rapids might have pitched a no-hit game. The Flint team secured four hits and they all fell to the lot of Regan.

President Williams expects this season to far surpass any previous year in the matter of attendance in the Coast league. So far, the crowds have been larger than at any time in Coast league history.

Frush and Bretonnel Matched

Paris, June 10.—Danny Frush, who on June 1 knocked out Eugene Criqui in the eighth of a twenty round bout here, has signed articles to fight Fred Bretonnel on June 24. Bretonnel in February was proclaimed lightweight champion of Europe by the international boxing union, which gave him the title held by Harry Mason, the British boxer, because Mason was alleged to have ignored a challenge of Bretonnel to defend the championship

A New Type of Low Price Car is Ready to be Announced

If you are considering the purchase of an automobile—WAIT!

In seven days a leading local dealer will be offering a new type of motor car—one that represents many months' closely guarded research on the part of a prominent manufacturer.

It will be a six cylinder car of distinguished appearance, comparatively light in weight, yet extraordinarily strong and enduring.

It will be powered by a new type of motor which provides a range of hill and highway performance that is unique in the light of existing design.

Its owners will never be compelled to use an oil can or grease gun on any chassis part.

"One Shot"

This phrase will be on every tongue for months to come.

It marks the end of the oil can and the grease gun.

It is the name of an exclusive feature on a car that will make motoring history.

What is it? Next week's advertisement tells all.

It will have as standard equipment—at no extra cost—genuine supersize balloon tires; and as optional equipment, four-wheel brakes of the most advanced design.

It will bear a name now known and respected wherever motor cars run.

It will be manufactured as a unit in a plant that is uncommon in size and unexcelled in the completeness of its equipment.

In view of this, we feel justified in urging all to withhold until next week any definite decision to purchase any motor car—however costly, however inexpensive.

A large advertisement appearing in this publication one week hence will reveal complete details and state where this truly marvelous new car may be seen.

POETRY

At Eventide

A mocking bird in the lilac tree
Warbles and trills notes leisurely
And the sun goes down in a fiery sea,
At eventide.

A bat wings by haphazardly,
Sunlight touches the poplars three,
As the last rays rocket slantingly
At eventide.

A warm wind rustles hushingly,
Blowing the breath from the lilac tree,
And the shadows deepen sombrely
At eventide.

The night comes walking silently,
The moon in raiment silvery,
And a hermit thrush flutes hauntingly
So ends the eventide.
—Arthur S. Bourinot in Ottawa Citizen.

A Commuter's Garden of Curses

In Winter I get up at night
To keep my furnace fire alight;
In Summer, quite the other way,
I have to cut the grass all day.

I have to cut all the grass and weed
The beds my wife has sown with seed.
And fix the water sprinkler so
That grass and weeds again may grow.

And does it not seem hard to you,
When I have other things to do,
To have to work with might and main,
To make those darn things grow again?
—George S. Chappel in Life.

The cultivated strawberries now grown in Europe and America owe their size to ancestors of Chili. Up to 1714, large fruited strawberries were not known in Europe; the native berries being small, but of good flavor. In that year, a Frenchman brought plants from Chili. These were crossed with the native sorts and with the Virginia strawberry introduced into Europe early in the previous century. By this crossing, plants were developed which combined large size with delicate flavor.

Orwell, Vt., has a lost and found story that the town vouches for. Guy M. Cooke lost a solid gold watch in the field near his home about eight years ago and prolonged searchings failed to bring it to light. Not long ago chickens which were yarded in the field by diligent scratching, uncovered the watch, which was lying face up, with the crystal unbroken. It was taken to the house and wound, whereupon it began again its accustomed duty of keeping correct time after a vacation of eight years.

ALL IN READINESS FOR GARDEN PARTY

Everything is in readiness for the Hippodrome and gardenr party to be given on the Knights of Columbus grounds, Broadway, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The members of the general committee have been industrious in the past few days, on the spacious grounds in the rear of the club house, placing posts for electric light wiring, and setting up accommodations for the big two-day frolic. Much more will be completed before the opening on Wednesday night and the grounds are expected to present a gala appearance, judging from the plans of the committee.

The entertainment will be opened on Wednesday night with a band concert and will take place at 7.30 o'clock, and the chairman of the entertainment committee has arranged a number of high class [illegible] that are sure to amuse all who attend. The great White Way is on a most elaborate scale and it is expected that this feature will [illegible] attractions.

The dancing entertainment on Wednesday and Thursday evenings is for the grown-ups, the kiddies have not been forgotten. A children's party has been arranged for Thursday afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock, to which all children will be admitted free. Mrs. W. K. Tingley and committee of women who are in charge of this feature have arranged a very pleasing programme of [illegible] games. Probably the most interesting part of the afternoon's entertainment will be the doll carriage parade which will take place at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Suitable prizes will be awarded the best appointed dolls and it is expected that a number of children will strive for these prizes.

Broadway Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Bert Keane, assisted by Miss Sims & Co in Action Unlimited, is an unusual comedy playlet in three scenes with four people.

The Two Stepchildren will present a unique novelty.

Wilbur Held is termed the Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Fun. Last but not least we will see the Dancing Janes Burke and Eleanor Burke, who offer "A Tete-a-Tete in Song."

Widely read as a novel, successful to a degree as a stage play, a veritable screen triumph as a motion picture, William deMille's Paramount picturization of the Saturday Evening Post story Rita Coventry, will have its premier presentation at the Broadway theatre tomorrow. Don't Call It Love is the producer's title, and well named it is, too.

Breed Theatre.

The heights of realism which can be achieved by motion pictures is vividly demonstrated in Flowing Gold, a First National picture, produced by Richard Walton Tully and directed by Joseph De Grasse, which is coming to the Breed theatre for a four days' engagement.

Flowing Gold is from the pen of Rex Beach, whose stories invariably are alive with thrilling action on an extensive scale. In this tale he included the sinking of an oil derrick by a bolt of lightning, the destruction of the well by fire, a cloudburst, spreading the burning oil over the countryside, and the wiping out of a town.

At first thought it would seem impossible to show such thrilling action on the screen, but Producer Tully and Director De Grasse have achieved the seeming impossible.

An uproarious Clyde Cook comedy and a News complete this program.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Last showing today, Blanche Sweet and William Russell in the greatest American drama in years, Anna Christie. Our Gang comedy. You'll scream at this one. Pathe News featuring the Gibbons and Carpentier fight.

From serving maid in a home of wealth to riches and a high social position is the big jump that Marie Prevost as Myra Hastings makes in her latest screen vehicle. The Wanters, the First National picture to be presented by Louis B. Mayer at the Palace this week.

This part in an all-star cast is said to be the biggest that the talented and beautiful Miss Prevost has yet been given.

Poor all her life, Myra is a "wanter" of the most confirmed sort. To be near the luxuries she craves, she obtains a position as maid in the home of the Worthingtons. Young Worthington falls in love with her and when, following her discharge, he brings her back home with him as his wife, she is met with their snobbish disdain and leaves the house. In the near-tragedy that follows she learns in the dramatic denouement that true happiness is never found through empty wanting.

The Wanters was directed by John M. Stahl. The scenario, by J. G. Hawks and Paul Bern, was based on the story by the famous novelist, Leila Burton Wells.

Added attractions, Chapter No 2 of The Telephone Girl with bewitching Alberta Vaughn. The screen's latest knockout series, latest Pathe Review and Palace Supreme orchestra.

Broadway Theatre.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, The Confidence Man, which opened at the Broadway theatre last Sunday, will take place there this afternoon and evening. Thomas Meighan is the star. Virginia Valli has the leading woman's role, and others in the cast include Laurence Wheat, Charles Dow Clarke, Helen Lindroth and Jimmie Lapsley.

Other pictures are also on the same program. Harold Lloyd, whose latest feature picture, Pathe-comedy, Girl Shy, will be seen next week at the Broadway theatre. Harold has fortunately discovered that "mixing them up a bit" is the secret of success. He has never made two comedies even somewhat alike, considering his big hits, Dr. Jack, Safety Last, Why Worry and now Girl Shy. He has jumped from small town situations to a South American revolution, from portraying a doctor to a ribbon clerk. Now in his latest he has again striven for something different from anything he has ever made. He is seen as a shy, unentirely novel character, as a bashful small town boy who is an apprentice to his uncle. He makes a secret study of [illegible] though not a very accurate one, and the more he studies them, the more he fears them.

Real Estate Sold.

FORMER NORWICH MAN IN NEW LONDON MAY DIE FROM EFFECTS OF LIQUOR

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 10—William Kellner, 97 Golden street, was taken into custody at the Arlington house, Green street Sunday night by Motorcycle officer William Babcock and Patrolman John Sulivan. Tonight Kellner was lying suffering from paralysis caused by taken to Lawrence hospital, apparent-indulgence in alcoholic drinks. The man's case has not been diagnosed, but it is believed that his condition is serious.

Kellner went to the lodgng house early Sunday evening and was intoxicated and his arrest was requested. Kellner was placed in a cell and he remained in a stupor throughout today. This evening City Physician Cheney was called to treat the man and Kellner was ordered transferred to the hospital.

Kellner has resided in New London several years, coming to this city from Norwich. He is about 47 years old and is a painter by occupation.

Revenue Cutter Seminole put into port last night with the speed launch Don Juan in tow, the latter craft being seized when she was found alongside the rum-laden trawler Gemma, off Block Island. The Don Juan did not have a semblance of crew aboard and the crew of the Gemma declared that they had found the launch adrift and had tied her alongside the trawler to await being claimed by the owner. The government officers, however, are of the opinion that the crew of the launch climbed aboard the trawler when the cutter was sighted to escape arrest. The Don Juan is registered in the name of "Robert Costello, 76 Thames street, Groton." There is no "76 Thames street" in Groton, neither is Costello known there. The Don Juan, which is about 25 feet in length, six feet beam and has a powerful engine, is being held at the customs house pier, under a charge of proceeding upon a foreign voyage without proper papers.

Charles Leiper, son of Mrs. Alec Leiper, of Waterford, and Miss Anna Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Thompson, of Gardner avenue, were married at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 9 o'clock. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. Fred Leiper, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Gertrude Thompson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Hotchkiss was crossing the street when struck and sustained among other injuries a four-inch laceration of the lower right leg. His sister, Mrs. Samuel Mehaffey, also of 143 Winthrop street, was informed of the injury of the young man.

Lawrence Crowley 4, son of Mrs. John P. Crowley, 48 Willetts avenue, strayed away from home this afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock and when the youngster was not located at 6 o'clock a request was made of the police by the boy's father to assist him in finding the child. Patrolman Clarence Martin discovered the youngster on Pequot avenue a half hour later and returned the child to his parents.

Bearers have been selected who will bear John R. Latham, late cashier of the New London City National bank to the grave tomorrow. They are City Manager William A. Holt, Boy Scout Executive Frederick E. Burdick, Arthur H. Shurts, J. Harry Meandnis, Ira C. Avery and Alfred H. Forbes, the last named being senior and junior [illegible], respectively, at the bank for a number of years.

In the police court today violators of the traffic ordinances of the city numbered eight, when not one would be expected because of the publicity that has been given to the matter. Judge Prince fined the offenders uniformly $5 each and the costs were kept on the fines so as to make the lesson more impressive. Herbert A. Johnson, of East Hartford, parked his automobile more than thirty minutes on State street though he had to go in between signs forbidding the parking. Cosmos Michael told a silly story to the effect that he had stopped on State St to collect a bill and that it required an hour and a quarter to make the collection. He paid pretty well for his experience. A Rakoshy parked his car on Masonic street regardless of the fact that the Nameaug fire apparatus might be called out at any moment and that to get out the fire apparatus would be stopped or run against his auto. He said his parking place was the only parking place there, which was proof that he intended to park where he was forbidden to stop his automobile. Armadino Thomas was speeding along the street and paid no attention to the fact that he was approaching an intersecting street. He knows all about the rule of the road that forbids that sort of thing now. Henry Elienisch, a New York salesman traveling by automobile, parked his car on State street for a period of fifty minutes while he was doing business. Patrolman Clyde Murphy happened along and took note of the facts so that when the driver of the car appeared he found a tag ordering him to court. His car carried number plates so there was nothing for him to do but obey the summons and he appeared to take the [illegible] line. Harriet Seelbe of Waterford drove down near the railroad station and parked her car outside the cluster of cars within a prescribed territory. She was absolutely oblivious of the fact that she did not have the right to park anywhere that she found the space. A fine came to her. X. C. H. Booth was arraigned for parking his car on State street last Thursday. He endeavored to dodge the penalty, but was not successful because Patrolman Murpry had the facts in his little memorandum book. Mr. Booth tried standard time and daylight time to get away, but a fine was imposed.

Herwing Shaw, a sailor from the submarine base, was terribly intoxicated on Bank street about 11 o'clock Monday night. Patrolmen Babcock and John Sullivan danced him off to the police station in jig time. Today Judge Prince turned him over to the base for discipline. Shaw's wife is a waitress in a restaurant and she declared that he had been on a spree since last Thursday.

Louis Finelli and Fred Damarco, both New Haven crooks, as alleged, were released from custody because the police had no reason for holding them longer. The men were arrested while the Barnum circus was in town last Thursday. They were held in bonds of $3,000 each while they were in custody here. The father of one of the men and the attorney for the other came here to see that the accused received as lenient treatment as the court would give them.

Grace Collins and Nathaniel R. Clark were married this evening at the home of the bride on Montauk avenue Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' church. Only relatives and intimate friends attended the ceremony. Mrs. Collins is the owner of a pretentious place on Montauk avenue and there the couple will reside when they return from a brief wedding trip. Each had been before married.

Parking cars on Bank street is a disputed subject. A public hearing is to be held Wednesday evening to endeavor to decide upon a course to pursue.

For some reason the completion of the roadway in Shaw street has been stopped just as there is but a days work to complete the task of putting the road in condition for use.

Captain Charles Mitchell, master of the steam lighter Sabina, which was seized in this port, together with 2,000 cases of Bass' ale and stout, was presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich, at the customs house this afternoon, charged with violation of the maritime laws, in proceeding upon a foreign voyage without filing manifest and obtaining clearance papers. Probable cause was found and Mitchell was held in bonds of $20,000 for trial in the United States district court, the bond being the highest ever exacted for an offense of a like nature. The crew of ten were held in bonds of $500 each.

The Sabina arrived in port early in the morning of the 13th inst., and proceeded to the Central Vermont wharf where the valuable cargo of liquor, which was consigned to North Adams, Mass., and New York was placed in freight cars for delivery to destination. A watchman at the dock observed that the cases were labeled "sulphur," but a short time later detected the odor of liquor. His superior was informed of the discovery and the customs house officers were given the information. Inspectors Jeremiah Dillon and William R. Pollock boarded the freight cars and opening several cases found them to contain two dozen bottles of the valuable liquer. The boat was seized and tied up at the United Coast Guard academy while the liquor was placed in storage at the customs house.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Leary, recently married here, have returned from their wedding tour. Mr. O'Leary is employed in the freight service of the New Haven railroad.

Patrick B. McNamara has sold a parcel of land on Uncas avenue to Mabel C. McWhinney.

Hazel Potter Selden has sold a house and lot on the former United States Housing Corporation plat, off Jefferson avenue, to Charlotte I. Nelson.

Harry E. Hudson, of East Lyme will be in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the city traffic ordinances prohibiting parking more than 30 minutes on State street. Hudson was ordered into court this afternoon by Patrolman John Hogan.

Mrs. F. D. Benedict, of Quogue, L. I., was ordered to appear in court by Patrolman William Graham this afternoon when the officer detected Mrs. Benedict's car parked a considerable distance from the curb on Bank street. Mrs. Benedict will not be compelled to present herself before Judge Prince, however, for she explained to Captain Charles A. Pinney that she was en route to Hartford to consult a physician, so was excused from court appearance.

Following the custom of New London lodge of Elks, 360, Flag Day exercises will be held this year. The event will take place Friday evening with elaborate exercises at the Lyceum theatre. Among the speakers will be former Congressman Augustine Lonergan, of Hartford, Cornelius C. Costello and Morris Lubchansky. The Philharmonic orchestra will be in attendance. Following the exercises a dance will take place in the lodge room, Washington street.

The superior court will reconvene in New London tomorrow morning when the trial of Boleslaw Dwojakowski, of Norwich, charged with carrying concealed weapons, is scheduled to start. Dwojakowski was originally charged with manslaughter, but since the arrest of the accused the charge has been amended to the less serious offense.

Next Sunday at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church there will be the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood of Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. Ceremonies to mark the anniversary are being arranged by a committee composed of leading members of the church. Father Crowley will celebrate high mass at 10.30 o'clock and in the evening exercises will take place in the church while the remainder of the evening will be devoted to sociability. Father Crowley has been rector of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church about 15 years, succeeding the late Rev. Thomas P. Joynt.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Mrs. Hibbard N. Alexander, 254 Jefferson avenue and Albert Hickman, 233 Ocean avenue, to be suspended. The drivers operated cars recently that were in collision with other machines.

Philip James, a former resident of New London, is seriously ill in Bellevue hospital, New York. This morning the New York authorities requested the New London police to notify Robert James of his brother's condition. Robert James was located at his place of residence, 25 Bank street, and went to New York without delay.

Automobiles thieves were more active in New London last night than they have been in many weeks, for during the night three machines were stolen on the highways and from a garage. Two of the cars were recovered, but efforts of the authorities to locate the third car were unsuccessful.

Tonight the police were informed that a Hudson machine was ditched near Lake Brandegee, Waterford. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky who were instructed to go to the place found that the car was that of Stabert. The owner of the machine was notified and had to engage the services of a wrecker to get the auto from its position in the mire.

The theft of the three machines, it is believed, was the work of sailors who took the cars for a joy-ride, more than for any act of thieving.

Mrs. Frances Marooney, of Cohanzie, reported to the police this morning at 8 o'clock that during the night the garage at her home was forced and that her Maxwell car was stolen. About an hour later Mrs. Philip Butleman, 83 Tilley street, reported that an automobile parked in front of her home at 2 o'clock was still alongside the highway. The police inspected the machine and ascertained that it was the property of Mrs. Marooney. The owner was notified and shortly afterwards took possession of the car.

Frederick Stabert, a lodger at the Fornier house, 147 Bank street, retired about 11 o'clock last night, leaving his Hudson car in front of his rooming place. When Stabert awoke about 7 o'clock this forenoon he discovered that the automobile had been stolen and notified the police. A request of police departments throughout the state was made to maintain a watch for the stolen car, but no trace of it was found.

BURTON ANNOUNCES ACHIEVEMENTS AND POLICIES OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

Cleveland, June 10. — Following is a [illegible] address delivered by Chairman Theodore E. Burton here today at the opening session of the republican national convention:

Chairman Adams, ladies and gentlemen. I greet this vast throng. I speak for the citizens of Cleveland, irrespective of party affiliations, when I bid you a cordial welcome. The people of this city wish you Godspeed. They rejoice to receive you in their midst. They hope for success in your deliberations and for your pleasure and benefit while you stay. We are in the midst of bricks and the mortar, the dust, and the smoke, of a busy industrial community, but the blue arch of heaven is around and above us and a friendly spirit is everywhere.

It is appropriate that a republican national convention should assemble in Ohio. Of the 11 of our party who have held the great office of President, seven were natives of the Buckeye State and one was elected from our midst. You will recall the name of Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Taft, and Harding. There is a special appropriateness in meeting in this city, for the area in which all roads [illegible] and there [illegible] memorials which speak for the achievements and fame of the leaders of our party.

Historic Reminders

[illegible] are the nearing places of [illegible] McKinley, Hayes and Garfield. The tomb of James A. Garfield is a monument to his memory [illegible] the city limits. He was [illegible] a log cabin farm in this county, growing step by step from [illegible] highest executive [illegible] world fame displayed [illegible] than be the wonderful [illegible] of American life. Leaders in peace and war, he was the viewless fury of a disorganized [illegible] worst [illegible] had contemplated such a [illegible] would have shrunk [illegible] and might have said [illegible] peoples this Garfield [illegible] faculties to mock.

[illegible] Ill was enacted in 1921 [illegible] ened 10 over $800,000,000 [illegible] would have [illegible] prior law [illegible] passed, though [illegible] rounding in defects, very materially diminishes the burdens of the people, [illegible] entirely does away with some of the more vexatious.

A tariff act was passed adapted to the situation prevailing since the war and based upon the fundamental idea that our labor and our enterprise should not be handicapped by differences between foreign and domestic costs, but with no aim to promote monopoly or extortion, and with a very useful provision that in the event any rates prove to be lower or higher than they should be, the president by proclamation, on the advice of the tariff commission, can make necessary changes and adjustments. Contrary to the pessimistic forecasts confidently made by opponents of this measure both exports and imports have substantially increased since its passage. As a revenue measure it has amply justified itself, for the customs receipts in the year 1923, amounting to the unprecedented sum of $562,000,000, exceeded those from any Democratic tariff ever written before or since.

An act for the funding of foreign debts was passed. These debts rested upon agreements or obligations hastily drawn in the stress of war and lacking definite terms. Already England, for centuries proud of her credit, has executed bonds for $4,600,000,000, on which interest is, for the third time, to be paid today. Payments have also been made upon principal. Bonds for much smaller amounts have been executed by Finland and Hungary, and it is hoped that other countries will make like settlement.

Comprehensive legislation has been adopted for the veterans of the late war, coordinating a great variety of conflicting and inharmonious methods and bureaus in the Veterans Bureau. For the soldier [illegible] who was [illegible] dependents, [illegible] must be ready [illegible] to the last [illegible].

Peace With Germany

There was a [illegible] of peace with Germany [illegible] way was paved [illegible] with the countries with which we had been at war. Our participation in the great struggle was not prompted by any hatred of the enemy peoples or by the feeling that their rulers, in their overweening ambition, had forfeited their ability. Against them we cherish no feeling of revenge, but welcome them back to the great family of nations, in the hope that after defeat and bitter loss they may enjoy the blessings of a new and better era.

We appropriated twenty millions for the starving in Russia, an act in which we may well take satisfaction, in that it was a declaration to the world that with abounding good will we were ready to succor the suffering and the destitute, though living under a regime inimical to all the traditions of this government. Our compassion for the helpless and the miserable is not restrained by differences of race or form of government.

We have passed and the president has approved the so-called Rogers bill, placing our diplomatic and consular service, with its rapidly increasing importance, on a higher plane and giving opportunities to others than millionaires to occupy the more important positions.

The construction of good roads has been aided and stimulated as never before, thus meeting the demand for improved conditions of communication and transit, especially with a view to the needs of the farming population. Better means of access from community to community and from state to state have accomplished wonderful results.

Two immigrations act have been passed. While we recognize invaluable benefits to our country from the infusion of immigrants from other lands who have added variety and strength to our national life, we have added variety and strength to our actions to realize that the number landing on our shores has been too large for proper assimilation. The so-called melting pot has boiled over. Therefore limitation and selection must be the order of the day.

It is to be regretted that in the passage of the recent bill the request of the president for time for further negotiations with Japan was refused. For that great nation with which we have been so friendly we have no feelings but those of admiration and respect. The adoption of policies for the exclusion of Japanese immigrants by no means implies any claim of their inferiority, but rests upon essential differences, notably in standards of living, which render them uncongenial to our industrial life. It is our fervent hope that this reason may be understood, and that these two nations on either side of the Pacific may banish all causes of friction or misunderstanding and permanently cherish sentiments of friendships and of peace.

Condition of Agriculture

The condition of agriculture is today one of our most perplexing problems. This basic industry, with its broad expanse of homes scattered over the farms of the land, has furnished a chief reliance in peace and war for it gives us a stalwart population always ready to respond to the needs of the country, with its tens of millions who adhere to the best traditions of the nation, now and from its very beginnings. We deplore the depression which rests upon various branches of production.

The present situation pertains to certain staples and is characterized by overproduction in very essential articles of food, by lack of effective demand from abroad for our surplus, and by disadvantages arising from keen competition from outlying portions of the world. With a sincere desire to render assistance, legislation was adopted in the Sixty-Seventh Congress in generous measure. That great Democratic leader, Mr. Bryan, though denying credit to any political party, has stated that the Sixty-seventh Congress accomplished more for the farmer than any Congress for 50 years. There was an act passed for continuance of the War Finance Corporation, and nearly $60 millions were advanced to farming communities; an emergency tariff act on leading grain and other products was adopted; legislation was enacted in a so-called packers' bill to protect the rights of the stock raiser, also one limiting dealings in grain futures to prevent the farmer from being the victim of manipulation; twenty-five additional millions were advanced for the Federal Farm Loan Board; an agricultural credit act was passed at the end of the Sixty-seventh Congress, providing for both public and private agencies to aid the farmer in securing credit, atressing perhaps too much the need of facilities for borrowing, but still far-reaching in its provisions. A cooperative marketing act was passed, a beginning in the furtherance of methods for organization and distribution which, it is hoped, will place the farmer in the enjoyment of the same advantages in narrowing the gap between the producer and the consumer as those enjoyed in other branches of endeavor. It can not be too strongly emphasized that in this direction there surely lies the most encouraging prospect for bettering the condition of the agricultural interests of the country. A private corporation with ten millions of capital was organized at the instance of the administration and has rendered substantial aid to the farmers of the Northwest.

Will Aid the Farmer

The Republican party has shown its willingness to extend liberality to the last degree in the enactment of legislation which will aid the farmer, but it can not respond to impracticable theories or accept measures, which will only aggravate the situation. Any artificial stimulus to prices which are depressed by irresistible causes can only postpone the evil day and add to the distress. Inexorable law demand, however, that in favor of certain staple products and a wider diversification. Numerous remedies proposed for relief fail utterly when subjected to careful analysis. If I were to follow the appealing demands of my own own feelings, I would say grant tens of millions for farm relief, but no legislation or subventions from the Treasury can be effective in the case. It is a condition which is world-wide, due to the sharp reaction from the unprecedented demands for agricultural products which lasted during the World War and for a time thereafter. Prices are now out of line with those of many of the commodities which the farmer must buy, but so sure as the inevitable laws of supply and demand are operative this relation must change and the time is coming when conditions will be reversed and the course of migration between city and farm will experience a revolution.

A most substantial benefit would be conferred upon the farmers by the construction of the Great Lakes-St Lawrence waterway, thereby opening up a new transportation outlet for the agricultural products of a very extended area. Material benefit would also be gained by the more adequate improvement and utilization of divers interior waterways, though here as elsewhere these improvements should be carefully limited to such as are capable of profitable development. Now as always pork-barrel appropriations should be sedulously avoided.

A readjustment of freight rates and a consolidation of existing agencies of transportation afford promise of aid President Harding and his advisers labored incessantly for the abolition of long hours and the seven-day week in the steel industry and other trades. He called industrial and labor leaders into conference. Almost on the very day of his death his efforts were crowned with success, and happy indeed would he have been if he could have witnessed the complete accomplishment of his hopes.

Labor Has Been Benefited

Labor has been especially benefited by the restrictive immigration law. This Republican administration brought the country out of the depths of depression. The great mass of employees find their chiefest benefit in steady employment and those prosperous times which make high wages possible.

Congress has voted to submit a constitutional amendment giving adequate authority to legislate against the employment of child labor. A bill for the continuance of plans for the rehabilitation of workers disabled in industry, an effort which has met with very great success, has recently passed the House of Representatives. The well-being of labor, the happiness of millions of workers are inextricably interwoven with the prosperity of the people; no separate or antagonistic road can be traversed by those who toil or by those who employ; the country's prosperity is the prosperity of each and of all.

Problem of Taxation

Among the pending issues of the day economy in public expenditures and reduction of taxation must assume the utmost importance. The Federal Government, States, and communities have been engaging in a riot of lavish expenditure, attended by mounting indebtedness. The burden of greatly increased taxation must shackle enterprise and diminish employment. It adds almost crushing weight to the cost of living and closes the doors of opportunity. Excessive public expenditures create a fatal example, stimulating prodigality and waste among all the people in every form of activity. Public economy promotes individual initiative and prevents that reliance upon paternalistic government which weakens the morale of any people and brings with it the depressing rule of bureaucracy.

As an illustration of present conditions, the per capita expenses of the United States government in the fiscal year of 1910 were $7.74; in 1919, the year of the peak of expenses, they were $173.54; and for the last year they were $35.64, more than fourfold those of 1910. So phenomenal an increase must arouse the attention of every patriotic citizen. It is not at all probable that any rates will be increased or new taxes imposed, but the recent revenue law is not the last word.

To secure these most desirable objects of economy an active campaign of education must be conducted similar to that in the free-silver contest of 1896. There are certain persistent fallacies which must be dispelled. One of them results in thoughtlessness or indifference to the evils of swollen taxation. Another is that the final burden of public levies rests upon those who first make payments to the tax collector. On the contrary, the general tendency of all taxation is to diffuse itself upon the consumers whether taxpayers or not with considerable additions as the burden is passed along.

Still another fallacy is a prevalent opinion that excessive surtaxes are desirable and result in larger revenue. That excessive rates are not helpful under ordinary circumstances can readily be demonstrated, but this is startlingly true so long as investments in tax-exempt securities are possible. As a proof of the futility of these high rates, it is to be noted that in 1916 when the total surtaxes were $131,-900,000 and the highest rate 13 per cent, $81,400,000 of these taxes were collected from incomes in excess of $300,000; but in 1921 when surtax collections were $411,300,000, over three times as great under a maximum rate of 65 per cent., the collections from incomes of $300,000 and over were only about $3,000,000 more than in 1916, or $34,700,000. No one here will advocate a system which would relieve wealth from paying its proper share, but careful thinking will show the ly justifiable in time of war but not absurdity of the present rates, entirein time of peace.

The demagogue may say to the unthinking, "See how we are taxing the rich"; and then in a soft aside say to the great capitalist, "How excellent an avenue of escape we are providing for you." The indirect effect of high surtaxes in withholding funds from such investments as would quicken industrial expansion is even more serious than the diminishing revenue. Present problems of revenue and expenditure are so commanding in importance as to call into action the highest sentiments of patriotism, for economy in expenditures and a rational fiscal system are alike essential for the prosperity and for the happiness of the people.

The Federal Reserve System, which serves as a bulwark in the financial life of the Nation and was of such helpful during the war, should be left alone. It should be free from the touch of the political spoilsman, and all its operations should be managed for the accomplishment of the excellent purposes for which it was intended.

Law Enforcement

The Republican Party stands now as always firmly for law enforcement. Laws are not to be observed merely by those who favored their enactment but by everyone in this broad land. Disregard of existing enactments breeds disrespect and disorder and even tends to anarchy. Furthermore, hasty changes in existing laws or regulations can not be approved. If that is the case, all our policies would be like the shifting sands of the sea, which are scattered by wind and wave.

The frightful crimes of lynch law have shown some decrease in recent years, but it is for us to make every effort to remove this disgraceful blot upon our civilization.

There is absolute necessity for an intelligent policy of conservation of our natural resources for the prevention of waste and of the even more dangerous evils of monopoly. Let us have no lack of vision for the future. This means the conservation of our forests, of our water power, of our minerals, of our coal and our oil, of the fish of the sea and the birds of the air. No hundred-year franchises should be given, nor should any grant be made of that which the nation should reserve for its future protection.

We have abhorred war, and never more than now. But if again that which we deplore should happen, and we should be involved in another deadly conflict, let us establish a system which will mobilize all our resources for victory. We can not afford to allow the slacker to shirk his duty or give the profiteers an opportunity to pile up fortunes when those who stand for patriotism are suffering and dying. We must establish the great ideal that in the emergency of war every agency of industry and commerce, our man power, and the activities of men and women shall be such as to accomplish the single purpose of saving our country from danger. President Harding spoke eloquently in his inaugural address in behalf of such a plan.

Must Provide for Bonus

We have recently witnessed the passage over the veto of the president of a so-called bonus or adjusted compensation bill, providing for paid-up insurance policies to soldiers of the late war. While recognizing the inestimable debt which the country owes to those who fought in the bloody contest in 1917 and 1918 and with satisfaction in the thought that for insurance, for the care of the injured and the sick, and for their training and betterment we are expending an amount which in one year reached almost 450 millions of dollars, there was a substantial minority in congress who sought to sustain the president. But the bonus act is now the law of the land. Conditions created by it must be met and its provisions must be willingly accepted.

A constitutional amendment has passed the senate providing for the beginning of the terms of the president and of members of congress early in the January following the November election. There is certainly an incongruity in the present interval between election and induction into office. This lengthy period was based upon conditions existing in the century before the last, when means of communication were so limited. Under the law as it now stands it would be possible for an outgoing administration, prior to the 4th of March, to prevent or very seriously impede its successor from accomplishing the purposes for which the people elected it. President McKinley advocated this change in his inaugural of 1897.

Presidential Strain

One urgent reform demanded is that the president be relieved of part of his most exacting duties. A constitution of iron can hardly bear up under the strain imposed upon the chief magistrate. There could be no more practical step in accomplishing this than to diminish the demands upon his time for the settlement of questions of patronage. This great framework of government was not devised for the dispensation of the flesh pots of office. The mighty problems of a nation in its foreign and domestic affairs, the decision fo which must bring weal or woe to tens of millions, are enough to absorb the attention of any statesman.

Nor is the distracting influence of patronage confined to the executive department alone. Legislators, whose time could be more profitably employed in the making of laws, and establishing policies for the nation, lose much of their time and subject themselves to constant irritation from the same source. An extension of the merit system is urgently needed and this is especially true in view of the enormous increase of federal employes.

In the relation of the economic activities of the people to their government three methods are possible.

Three Methods of Economics.

1. The old and now discarded theory of giving to private initiative free and untrammeled play, laissez faire as it is called.

2. The control and management of a central government with all the incidents of public ownership and operation. To this there must be a fatal objection, for it would threaten the rule of bureaucracy, with its deadening influence and interference in every home, and the destruction of that personal initiative which with restless energy has unchained the wheels of progress and given our country its foremost position.

3. A third and more rational course presents itself in sane regulation, based upon wise legislation and administration, repressing the power of great corporations or combinations of any type, which else might threaten to overshadow the state itself, and with equal care guarding against the evils of unrestrained competition.

Let us secure for every individual the greatest possible equality of opportunity and leave to the states and minor political divisions a broad field of activity in their proper sphere. Thus we shall avoid an unwieldy central government in constant danger of toppling over. We shall prevent state boundaries from becoming mere vanishing traces on the map, and avoid the dangers of disaster which have beset many nations smaller and with problems less complex than our own.

Aftermath of War.

In every era conditions and facts of surpassing importance must be recognized which stand out like headlands in the landscape. Today the most important conditions are those created by the war or emphasized by it. That terrible convulsion left the world disjointed in all its activities—social, political and economic. War always has a brutalizing effect, and most splendid exhibition of heroism, brought into play sordid motives, the demoralization from which has cast shadows which will rest on the world for years to come. Again we are in the midst of an unparalleled material development which, beneficial as it is, threatens a lowering of moral and spiritual standards, the true grandeur of nations. This is an age of whirlwind speed, of luxury, and the pursuit of pleasure. New inventions and fresh diversions chain attention every hour. In an atmosphere of excitement and hurry there is danger of a lack of clearness of vision and fairness in judgment on the most important issues of the day. Indifference in the performance of public duties rests like a blight upon the body politic. In nothing is the effect of existing conditions more manifest than in disregard of the political obligations of the citizen. The proportion of electors who take an active interest, especially in preliminary contests, was never so small. When such indifference exists unwholesome forces poison our public life. A well organized minority is often more powerful than that inert mass of citizens whose patriotism is only aroused in times of grave emergency. To these causes are traceable the formation of blocs and the vehement assertion of individual or sectional interests. Swarms of lobbyists infest every capital seeking the promotion of some special interest with callous disregard of that paramount benefit, the general welfare. Not merely by veiled threats but with brutal demands they threaten candidates and political parties with defeat unless their wishes are complied with. These demands are so persistent that refusal arouses opposition against the administration or party in power, so that now the strongest force in political contests is the reaction against those who have responsibility in shaping governmental policies, though the "outs," or those in opposition, would be compelled to take the same unyielding stand if they were intrusted with authority. It is easier to criticize than to construct; far easier to promise than to perform. The propagandist is everywhere—would that their numbers might diminish—and so partisan is he that arguments favorable to his cause are eargerly accepted as heavenborn injunctions, while opposing arguments are treated as emanations from the depraved. Under the cloak of patriotism irrational agitation based upon hypocrisy or ignorance sometimes displaces reason and truth.

"Oh that there might 'mongst
A duty on hypocrisy,
A tax on humbug,
An impost on dready platitudes,
A stamp athwart the mouth

Demands for Special Privileges

Never more than now have there been such insistent demands for special advantages, privileges of every nature, bonuses, pensions, increased salaries—some of which are well deserved—new bureaus with troops of officials, and relief measures, as they are called. All these are based upon the erroneous idea that our government is a paternalistic institution doling out favors without stint to all comers who can muster votes. The tendency is to impose burdens too heavy to bear upon the ordinary citizen, "the forgotten man," who, toiling quietly at home, seeks no favors, but only asks the friendly protection of a government which is just and fair. If this tendency is not checked, we shall become a people abounding in preferred classes, the burden of whose privileges must rest with crushing weight upon the great body of our citizenship. It is necessary for us to meet this present situation with a clarion call to all to think more of duties and less of rights and privileges, more of duties to the state and to humanity.

Corruption Not Widespread

Speaking for all good and thoughtful citizens of every political creed, I must enter a solemn protest against the impression, recently created, that there is widespread corruption in the Government at Washington. It is true that out of all the investigations pursued in every direction, there have been exposed to the scorn of the country instances of bribery and dishonesty on the part of public officials and of cupidity and overreaching on the part of those who are ready to use their opportunities to debauch those in office. It is true that the whole world was shell shocked by the war and has not yet recovered its equilibrium; that the effect of this great conflict, with its convulsions and changes, its untried and stupendous problems, has temporarily weakened the moral fibre of humanity and diminished here and there that high regard for the dictates of loyalty and honesty in public and private station which has ever been the ideal of the Nation. Violent changes have brought to light unworthy motives and a grasping avarice. But the heart of the American people is sound, and the gross influences that accompany and follow every war will pass away. Our highest duty in the midst of all these rumors of iniquity is to punish the guilty, but at the same time condemn exaggeration and protect the innocent. It is an infamous crime to seek to destroy the confidence of the American people in the Government under which they live. There is no criminal whom any investigation could expose who is more false to decency and honor than the man who would besmirch the name of honest citizens or distort the truth for partisan advantage or personal exploitation. It is a most grievous wrong to broadcast to the nation and to the world the mouthings of criminals and slanderers who would seek to scatter the slime of their own imaginations and hatreds. Among the thousands of public servants in Washington, in legislative halls, in administrative positions, in all the complicated machinery of the government, it was never true, and it is not true today, that there is any considerable number recreant to their trust. The vast majority of public officials, from the highest in the land to the humblest clerk in any department, are working honestly and faithfully for the public good. It is time to call a halt upon indiscriminate scandalmongering, which is largely designed to insult the intelligence and undermine the patriotism of the American people. But let us not be misunderstood. This is no reflection upon any investigator who in good faith is seeking to expose crime or any other dereliction among public servants. The guilty individual, whether he be high or low, Democrat or Republican, must suffer the severest punishment. Upon this proposition the Republican Party stands firm as a rock. Yet let it be known that guilt knows no party. Those who seek to bring malign influences upon public servants make no political distinction, either in the officials whom they approach or in the lawyers whom they hire.

Should Not Become Pessimistic

Let us not take a pessimistic view of this situation. From an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust and from manifestations of dishonesty we may confidently believe that the country is emerging and we may be sure that it will yet respond to those nobler instincts to which Lincoln appealed and to the causes to which the patriots and the good must always repair.

I would that I could say as much for the courage of all public men as for their honesty. There is no lack of wisdom, of patriotism, or of desire to serve the people; but courage to stand up against hasty conclusions and currents of superficial public opinion is often absent. The public fancy is sometimes caught by those who are most vociferous and at the same time most radically wrong. There are too many that listen to these voices and try the impossible contortion of keeping both ears to the ground and listening to notes to which their ears should be deaf. What is most needed is eligislative halls and elsewhere is courage to withstand the sudden spasms which are created by groundless rumor or injudicious agitation. Candidates for office often fail to realize how much the people respect courage and common honesty.

A tendency toward third-party movements is manifest wherever parliamentary government exists. This has been true in most of the countries of continental Europe for years. The effect is inevitably demoralizing, involving failure in constructive policies and oftentimes control by a minority or a combination of minorities. The whole theory of orderly and effective parliamentary government demands that the people divide into two parties on questions of supreme importance, thus forming political organizations based upon certain fundamental principles, while minor considerations are relegated to a secondary position. If we should tread the path which so many other countries have trod with disastrous results inefficiency and confusion would be the outcome and there would be an expression, not of the majority will, but of the will of groups and of sections.

The word "republican" is not a mere name: it is not a label which anyone can wear. It is not a cloak for individual vagaries. The strength and usefulness of the Republican Party must depend on the maintenance of endorsed principles in the advocacy of which triumph can only be secured by party solidarity and an organization whose members unite in closed formation to do battle to every foe.

Much of the blame which is visited upon republicans in the present congress is not deserved, because on many major questions their party has not commanded a majority in either branch. Let us not for a minute forget the importance of a republican majority in the next congress, made up of members tried and true, who will stand united.

With some disappointment as one whose public service has been in a legislative position, truth compels me to say that so far the greater share of our citizenship looks to President Coolidge rather than to congress for leadership.

Coolidge a Real Leader

The people—and all the people—have confidence in Calvin Coolidge. It is a time when there is a hunger for simple, robust virtues, for a leadership which shall be based on no cheap or selfish motives. In the great array of rulers, kings and prime ministers intrusted with power, there is none who can surpass him in honesty of purpose, in courage, or in high devotion to the welfare of his country.

As a candidate for the presidency, and this in the midst of temptations stronger than those by which the angels fell, he has shown no truckling, no scheming for votes, but has gone calmly and steadily on his way unaffected by the lure of expediency or the promise of success.

The mountains of Vermont with their green commits encircled his early boyhood and gave direction to that stalwart character of which there have been so many illustrations in the rural life of America. In every station to which he has been called it may be said of him that—

Before a thousand peering littlenesses, and
In that fierce light which beats upon all
In high position and blackens every blot."
He has performed every duty and merited no reproach.

Foreign Relations

Our foreign relations are assuming an importance never known before. We are by no means lacking in interest in what is happening in the rest of the world or are we unwilling to cooperate in the most friendly way with less fortunate nations. It was our conception that American experts in finance and economics, neutral in spirit but keenly interested in aiding other countries, should join in a nonpolitical conference for the settlement of the troublesome problems of reparations, a settlement which would promote the cause of peace and lead to sounder financial conditions and better trade relations in Europe. It was at the suggestion of our own Secretary of State and of President Coolidge that the Dawes commission was convened. We await the result with earnest hope that the clash of conflicting interests may cease and that the spirit of repulsion and revenge may be abated. What would happen in case of failure we dread to contemplate. Whenever the various nations can agree, whenever they are willing to look to the future rather than to the past, America's aid will be given without stint and our boundless resources will be available in the way of loans for their rehabilitation and development.

But the beginnings of peace must be in Europe itself. No nation of the New World can solve the problems of the Old. It is necessary that a calmer spirit prevail, that peace and not power be the goal, and that cooperation, based on the consciousness of common interests akin to that which exists among the 48 States of the American Union should be recognized as essential. Unfortunately that which seems to be most desired in the settlement of discordant claims in Europe is not an impartial friend but a partisan ally.

It is to be regretted that the treaty of Versailles was framed at a time when the very natural desire for punishment was still a dominating thought in the minds of the Allies. Imperialistic ambitions were clearly in evidence. Long-standing animosities, intensified by the horrors of war, had not been stilled.

League of Nations

Although the covenant of the League of Nations was made a part of this treaty, nevertheless at the very outset the organization was handicapped and its prospective usefulness most seriously impaired. An instrument designed to secure peace should never have been made a part of a treaty bristling all over with provisions for punishment and for the dominance of the victors. Two objects so inconsistent can not stand together. It is partly for this reason that developments since the treaty was signed have not been favorable fo the effectiveness or usefulness of the League in larger matters. It has not been able to settle any of the great questions. Plans for the abatement of military expenditure and for reduction of armies have failed. Smaller nations have not been treated on terms of equality. It was well said by General Smuts, one of the leading proponents of the covenant, that over some provisions of the treaty the sponge of oblivion might well be drawn.

We have refused to join the League of Nations, and this is in full accord with the wishes of the vast majority of the American people, as I believe. As one, however, who favored our entrance into that organization with proper reservations, I may speak of it dispassionately. A meeting of the representatives of various nations around a table for the adjustment of differences and securing a common viewpoint is a splendid conception. We welcome whatever of good may be accomplished by the League, and we recognize that in humanitarian and non-political matters it has accomplished beneficent results. In some of these activities we have taken part, and will no doubt in the future. But this does not mean that we should assume membership. We are still confronted with the fact that Europe has a system of offensive and defensive alliances which are entirely alien to our most cherished policies. Our traditions and our hopes are widely different. We can not relinquish that independence which is the natural result of our detached position. So long as the League remains a political body, inevitably dominated by the larger nations of Europe, poisoned with the tradition of age-long animosities, membership is not for us.

Limit of Armaments

I think, however, I speak the sentiment of the people in saying that we are ready to join in any conference the aim of which is to limit armaments or banish wars. We are indeed the friends of all. We covet none of their territory and harbor no jealousies of their progress. The Conference for Limitation of Armaments at Washington was more successful than any attempt in this direction for many years, because it was far removed from the rivalries of Europe, because its aims were clean cut, definite and generous. When the time is ripe, President Coolidge has promised that another conference shall be called to meet at Washington. But with the question of reparations still unsettled, with bitter animosities between the victors and the vanquished in Europe still alive and burning, we can have little hope that our intervention, still less our membership in the league, would aid. We can not enter a conference in which the main request will be to release the obligations of foreign countries to us in the was of debts contracted; for if I can judge correctly of the sentiment of the American people, they are opposed to a release of these obligations. Our hopes are that the recommendations of the Dawes Commission will be accepted and that there will be a profound reaction in Europe against the enmity and strife which have survived since the peace. In a conference called when these objects have been accomplished, may we not trust that with America's leadership there will be a more settled world, an abiding desire to secure the peaceable adjustment of disputes between nations and to introduce a better order in which international law and mutual cooperation will everywhere prevail.

What can be accomplished where age-old animosities and recollections of a bitter past do not occupy the center of the picture is well illustrated by the part played by this administration in the framing of a treaty in which 16 nations of the New World have joined, each promising all the rest that the sword shall not be taken up until after commissions of inquiry have been chosen and full opportunity given to adjust their controversies without collision or the threat of war. This was a more forward step than any ever yet taken in securing peace in the Western Hemisphere. The New World, in its peaceful attitude and promise of permanent good will, is a shining example for the old.

World Court

Let me earnestly recommend participation in the World Court now functioning at The Hague. The League of Nations is political, and the action of the representatives of the respective members must be taken according to directions from the chancelleries at home. The Court, on the other hand is judicial, and the august judges receive dictation from no one. Our attention should be called to the fact that this court is essentially an American idea and more than that a Republican idea. Our own Elihu Burritt, the "learned blacksmith," nearly 100 years ago argued for it on both sides of the Atlantic. A more substantial step was taken when Secretary Hay, in giving instructions to our delegates to The Hague Conference in 1899, set forth in the strongest language the far-reaching benefits of such a tribunal and directed our representatives to advocate it before that body. In 1907 Secretary Root again gave instructions to our delegates to support the proposition. Such a court was specifically indorsed in the Republican platforms of 1912 and 1916 and at least impliedly in others. Both Presidents Roosevelt and Taft advocated it. The late President Harding, on the stump in 1920, stated his unqualified indorsement of the Court. The plan for adherence to a tribunal now functioning and rendering most satisfactory decisions is one which must have the strongest possible appeal for us. It must be remembered, also, that 54 nations are members of the League and that most of them have adhered to the separate protocol for the Court. It is not for us to assert that the League is a wicked institution, and in any case the provisions set forth in the protocol for the Court itself remove it from any domination on the part of that body. The reservations which were made a condition of joining the Court by President Harding and Secretary Hughes, whose action has since been approved by President Coolidge, make it certain that our adherence will not involve us in the League. These are sufficient safeguards and reservations to protect our own interests, and they do not affect the great purposes of the Court. The Republican Party, in accord with its expressed policy, should make every effort promptly to establish our membership in this great tribunal.

Other issues might well be touched, but the time would fail me. The strength and grandeur of our country in the future can only be attained and our mission in the world can only be fulfilled by constructive accomplishments which will meet the demands of an era in which new problems are crowding upon us with maddening rapidity.

Must Abandon Selfishness

In international affairs let us remember that a chastened world can not be lifted out of the depths of suffering and sorrow by the selfish insistence of any nation upon the acceptance of a maximum of its claims. That conception was banished from the earth when ambitious monarchs desiring absolute sway were driven from their thrones. Some ambitions must be relinquished to secure the larger benefits of international cooperation. A spirit of concession and of regard for every people, great and small, near or remote, must dictate the policies of statesmen everywhere. If this is a new rule in foreign affairs, let America proclaim it.

In our domestic concerns let it be known that the people take stock of individual conduct as never before. Admiration no longer rests so much upon the triumphs of success and power as upon devoted service to country and humanity.

Nation Looks to Republican Party

For the glad accomplishment of these most noble aims at home and abroad the nation looks to the Republican Party.

Just 70 years ago this was a small but gallant band, actuated by the highest ideals; then, in 1856, a multitude, defeated but alive and undaunted. Next, a mighty conquering host, which through a long train of years shaped and guided the destinies of this republic, leading it always to new heights of greatness and renown.

History has recorded no party organization whose achievements can compare with ours. In its triumphant course it has stood unshaken for the Union and the Constitution. It removed the curse of slavery, instated repudiation and powerful currents of opinion which threatened folly in our economic life, and has upheld the rights of all, however humble. In every emergency, in days that were dark as well as those that were bright, it has been a party of broad vision, full of hope and of faith.

The past at least is secure. In the future there is no lamp to guide so safe as that of experience and history, and the people will surely repose their trust in those principles and in that party organization which has played so preeminent a part in the upbuilding of the Nation and in the prosperity and happiness of all its citizens. Thus we may be confident that when the ballots are cast in November in numbers like the falling leaves of autumn this Nation will elect Calvin Coolidge with a Republican Congress and again crown our efforts with victory, thereby assuring a yet more splendid future of progress and of peace.

MARKET WAS FIRM

New York, June 10—Stability of the steel shares in the face of an unusually large decrease of nearly 600,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation last month. Combined with a further easing of money rates, brought about widespread short covering in today's stock market, which displayed a firm tone in rather listless trading.

Buying orders were well distributed throughout the list with the rail, oil and sugar shares giving the best demonstrations of group strength. Brokers reported that some of the late buying was inspired by developments at the republican national convention, particularly the temporary chairman's proposal for further tax reduction next year.

While the unfilled orders of the steel corporation are now at the lowest point since November, 1914, and further reduction this month is widely regarded as likely, professional traders showed little disposition to renew their selling attack against the steel shares. U. S. Steel common closed a point higher at 95 3-4, with slightly higher net gains by Republic and Gulf States. Republic Steel preferred dropped 1 1-2 points in the early trading to a new low record for the year, but the turnover in this stock was small.

Active short covering took place in Railways just before the close, that stocks as a group gained up two points to 100 3-4. Developments in the sugar market proved [illegible] to those stocks, [illegible] gains of [illegible] or more being recorded by [illegible] Sugar [illegible], American Beet [illegible] and Sugar, Penn Sugar.

Reports that bankers are planning an ambitious development program for the Missouri Pacific system sent not the common and preferred stocks to new 1924 highs at 16 3-8 and 48 3-4, up 1 1-8 and 2 5-8, respectively. Texas & Pacific advanced two points to 31 3-8, also a new high, and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico sold as high as 99 1-2, or two and a half points above yesterday's close.

Oil shares continued to respond to improved trade conditions, Mariand, Sinclair, Cosden and General Asphalt closing a point or so higher. Other outstanding strong spots included Du-Pont, General Electric, American Water Works, Savage Arms and U. S. Rubber first preferred, all up 1 1-2 points or more.

Call money ruled at 2 per cent. all day, this being the lowest renewal rate since August 6, 1917. Time money against stock exchange colateral was available up to 90 days at 3 1-2 per cent., four and five months loans being quoted at 3 3-4 and the longer dates at 4. Some prime commercial paper was available at 4 per cent., the bulk of the business, however, being transacted at 4 1-4.

Foreign exchange trading was relatively light, with slight recessions in rates. Demand sterling ruled just under $4.31 and Francs francs eased only slightly to around 5 cents despite some selling on the rebuff of the French ministry.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 10—Bond prices rallied vigorously today as Wall street's flood of surplus funds found employment in the investment market. Spirited trading in the final dealings carried the average prices of domestic issues into new high ground for the year and sent several foreign and United States government obligations, as well as numerous popular railroad liens, to new 1924 top prices.

Although profit-taking tendencies cropped out at times, the prevailing rate of 2 per cent for call money and the drop in short tme loans to 3 1-2 imparted a strong undertone to the market from the start. Reports that $1,000,000 was being offered on the stock exchange at 2 per cent without finding takers was given color by the brisk activity in the final hour of bond trading when all types of investment securities were snapped up at rising prices. Total sales exceeded exceeded $18,000,000, one of the largest volumes of any day of this year.

The high levels attained by government issues diverted a large portion of today's buying orders into the railroad list. The treasury 4 1-4s, however, established a new record high prices of 103.14 and the Liberty first and third 4 1-4s sold at 1024 top prices. Other issues hovered around recent high levels.

Broad buying of railroad mortgages, mostly of a speculative character, brought a variety of these issues to peak prices for the year. These included Western Pacific First 5s, Central Pacific 4s, St. Louis and Southwestern 4s, Northern Pacific 3s, St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern 5s and New York, Westchester and Boston 4 1-2s. Substantial gains also were recorded by New York Central, New Haven, Seaboard, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, Erie and "Katy" issues.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 10—Wheat went up with a rush today, nearly five cents a bushel. The impetus came from flurried buying due to the government crop report indicating that the United States would have but little wheat to export this season. Closing prices for wheat were strong, 4 to 4 3-4c net higher, July 1.08 1-4 to 1.08 3-8 and September 1.09 7-8 to 1.10, with corn 1 3-8 to 2 3-4c up, oats at 3-4c to 1 1-8 and 1 1-4c gain and provisions varying from 2c. Decline to a rise of 12c.

Most of the big advance in wheat values, the liveliest seen in many months, took place almost as soon as trading began, but the tiptop was reached on a fresh wave of buying just before the finish. The government report as to winter what showed so been looked for that the trade was much greater loss than had generally taken by surprise. Heavy selling to realize profits led to only moderate reactions from the bulge in prices and the demand expanded with sufficient energy to force the market to equal th highest prices yet touched this season by the December delivery.

Foreigners were said to have had a considerable share in the purchasing that so suddenly lifted the wheat market. They were also credited with having taken future deliveries on a liberal scale, as well as acquiring wheat available for immediate shipment. Other buyers included eastern houses that of late had been doing little in the market. Miscellaneous purchasing, too, was of unusual extent.

Corn and oats responded readily to the rapid upturn of wheat. Continued cold wet weather was an additional bullish factor sending December corn to a new high price record for the season.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there has been a marked increase in the building activities in Norwich and vicinity, especially in the districts just over the city line. This is noticeable in the Norwich Town section and the East Great Plain district where a large number of new dwellings are being erected. However, there is considerable building being done in the city, a number of new houses being nearly completed and others just being started.

The local contractors report that there has been a steady increase in buildings and the plans will be ready and that from present indications this will be a banner year provided there is not a sudden slump during the next few months. Work is being rushed along on all projects and contractors have much work ahead. Local architects are figuring plans for several new buildings nad the plans will be ready for estimates within a few weeks.

There has been a steady progress on the work at the Norwich state hospital where three buildings are being erected. Other work has made like progress.

NEW LONDON

Plans are being prepared for a garage on Williams street, owner's name withheld. The building will be 100x20 feet, with an ell 40x20 feet arranged for 15 separate stalls. The construction will be of hollow tile and concrete, and the roof will be of tar and gravel.

The permit has been issued to W. J. Brady, 59 Sherman street, for the erection of a frame building at 464 Ocean avenue. The building will be 31x35 feet, arranged for two stores, with modern fronts. The estimated cost of the building will be $2,500.

The frame is being raised for the church at Flanders for St. Matthia's R. C. parish, Rev. Edwin A. Flynn, Niantic, pastor.

The contract has been awarded for a frame addition to the dwelling of Mrs. Henry Levin at 130 North Bank street. The addition will be two stories high and the work will include new plumbing and electric wiring.

In Norwich during the past week there were 16 sales of real estate as compared to 17 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $46,275 and $44,100.

There were 6 sales of real estate in New London during the past week exactly the same number as during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $48,700 and $52,350.

State Building

Building permits for the week totaled 369 as against 329 in the like week of last year, and 250 in 1922. Total construction for the week amounted to $1,075,207, a slight increase from last year and a still larger decrease when compared with the figures for the same week in 1922.

(d) Persons who joined the service after November 11, 1918, and who had no service during the actual war period—April 6, 1917, to November 11, 1918.

(e) Service as a commissioned officer above the grade of captain in the army or the marine corps, lieutenant in the navy, first lieutenant or first lieutenant of engineers in the coast guard, or past assistant surgeon in the public health service, or service by anyone having the pay and allowances, if not the rank of the grade just specified. This section does not bar a person who served as captain and major, for example, from drawing compensation for the period of his service as a captain.

(f) Service while holding a permanent or provisional commission or a permanent or acting warrant in any branch of the regular forces of the military or naval establishment; or while holding such commission or warrant serving under a temporary commission in a higher grade. This provision does not apply to non-commissioned officers.

(g) Service as civilian officer or employe of any branch of military or naval forces, contract surgeon, cadet of United States Military Academy, midshipman of United States Naval Academy, cadet or cadet engineer of those named member of Reserve Officers' Training Corps, Philippine Scouts, Students' Army Training Corps (except enlisted men detailed thereto) Philippine Guard of Hawaii, Insular force of the navy, Samoan native guard or band or Indian scout.

(h) Service as commissioned or warrant officer performing home service not with troops and receiving commutation of quarters or of subsistence except where such service subjected the individual in question to exceptional hazard. The secretaries of war and of the navy determine if the service was exceptionally hazardous.

(i) Time on farm or industrial furlough.

(j) Time spent on work on roads or other construction work for the period during which veterans' pay was equalized to conform to pay of civilian employees in the same or like employment.

(k) Service as a member of the public health service while not attached to the army or the navy.

(l) Any service after June 30, 1919.

(m) Persons discharged or otherwise separated from the draft for the period terminating with such discharge.

Three principal qualifications determine the eligibility of a dependent of a deceased veteran to benefits of the act:

(a) The dependent must be a veteran's widow or widower who is unmarried or a veteran's child or mother or father.

(b) The person claiming compensation as a dependent must have been dependent on the veteran for support at the time of his death. A child is presumed to have been dependent if the [illegible] affidavit to that effect [illegible] at the time of application [illegible] previously.

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED
BUT NO YEARLY MODELS
Dodge Brothers Motor Car retains its basic design year after year.
Improvements are made constantly, but there are no radical, annual changes.
This policy protects owners from the rapid depreciation-loss which invariably attends the periodic announcement of new types.
It also enables Dodge Brothers to effect an appreciable saving in manufacture; and this saving is faithfully returned to the buyer in the form of surplus value.

Public Economy.

We demand and the people of the United States have a right to demand rigid economy in government. A policy of strict economy enforced by the republican administration since 1921 has made possible a reduction in taxation and has enabled the government to reduce the public debt by two and a half billion dollars, and today vigorously enforced, has resulted in a progressive reduction of public expenditures until they are now two billion dollars per annum less than in 1921. The tax burdens of the people have been relieved to the extent of $1,250,000,000 per annum. Government securities have increased in value more than three billion dollars. Deficits have been converted into surpluses. The budget system has been firmly established and the number of federal employees has been reduced more than one hundred thousand. We commend the firm insistence of President Coolidge upon rigid government economy and pledge him our earnest support to this end.

Finance and Taxation.

"We believe that the achievement of the republican administration in reducing taxation by $1,250,000,000 per annum; reducing of the public debt by $2,432,000,000; installing a budget system; reducing the public expenditures from $5,500,000,000 per annum to approximately $3,400,000,000 per annum, thus reducing the ordinary expenditures of the government to substantially a pre-war basis; and the complete restoration of public credit; the payment or refunding of seven and a half billions of public obligations without disturbance of credit or industry—all during the short period of three years—presents a record unsurpassed in the history of the public finance.

"The assessment of taxes wisely and scientifically collected and the efficient and economical expenditure of the money received by the government are essential to the prosperity of our nation. Carelessness in levying taxes inevitably breeds extravagance in expenditures. The wisest of taxation rests most richly on the individual and economic life of the country. The public demand for a sound tax policy is insistent.

"Progressive tax reduction should be accompanied through tax reform. It should not be confined to less than four million of our citizens who pay direct taxes, but is the right of the more than the 100,000,000 who are daily paying their taxes through their living expenses. Congress has in the main confined its work to tax reduction. The matter of tax is still unsettled and is equally essential.

"We pledge ourselves to the progressive reduction of taxes of all the people as rapidly as may be done with due regard for the essential expenditures of the government administered with rigid economy, and to place our tax system on a sound peace-time basis.

"We endorse the plan of President Coolidge to call in November a national conference of federal and state officials for the development of the effective methods of lightening the tax burden of our citizens and adjusting questions of taxation as between national and state governments.

"We favor the creation by appropriate legislation of a non-partisan federal commission to make a comprehensive study and report upon the tax systems of the states and federal government with a view to an intelligent reformation of our systems of taxation to a more equitable basis and a proper adjustment of the subjects of taxation as between the national and state governments with justice to the taxpayer and in conformity with the sound economic principles.

Reorganization of Executive Departments.

"We favor a comprehensive reorganization of the executive departments and bureaus along the line of the plan recently submitted by a joint committee of the congress, which has the unqualified support of President Coolidge.

Civil Service.

"To improvement in the enforcement of the merit system both by legislative enactment and executive action since March 4, 1921, has been marked and effective. By executive order the appointment of presidential postmasters has been placed on the merit basis similar to that applying to the classified service.

"We favor the classification of the postmasters in first, second and third class post offices and the placing of the prohibition enforcement forces within the classified civil service without necessarily incorporating the present personnel.

Foreign Debts.

"In fulfillment of our solemn pledge in the national platform of 1920, we have steadfastly refused to consider the cancellation of foreign debts. Our attitude has not been that of an oppressive creditor seeking immediate return and ignoring existing financial conditions but has been based on the conviction that a moral obligation such as was incurred should not be disregarded.

"We stand for settlements with all debtor countries, similar in character to our debt agreement with Great Britain. That settlement achieved under a republican administration, was the greatest international financial transaction in the history of the world. Under the terms of the agreement the United States now receives an annual return upon four billion six hundred million dollars owing to us by Great Britain with a definite obligation of ultimate payment in full.

The Tariff.

"We affirm our belief in the protective tariff to extend needed protection to our productive industries. We believe in protection as a national policy, with due and equal regard to all sections and to agriculture, industries and occupations. It is only by adherence to such a policy that the well being of the consumers can be safeguarded and that there can be assured to American agriculture, to American labor and to American manufacturers a return to perpetuate American standards of life. A protective tariff is designed to support the high American economic level of life for the average family and to prevent a lowering to the levels of economic life prevailing in other lands. * * *

"The tariff protection to our industry works for increased consumption of domestic agricultural products by an employed population instead of one unable to purchase the necessities of life. Without the strict maintenance of the tariff principle ... farmers will need always to ... compete with cheap lands and ... labor abroad and with lower standards of living.

"The enormous value of the protective principle has once more been demonstrated by the emergency tariff act of 1921 and the tariff act of 1922.

"We assert our belief in the elastic provision adopted by congress in the tariff act of 1922 providing for a method of readjusting the tariff rates and the classifications in order to meet changing economic conditions when such changed conditions are brought to the attention of the president by complaint or application. * * *

Foreign Relations.

"The republican party reaffirms the stand for agreement among the nations to prevent war and preserve peace. As an important step in this direction we endorse the permanent court of international justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge. This government has definitely refused membership in the league of nations and to assume any obligations under the covenant of the league. On this we stand.

"While we are unwilling to enter into political commitments which would involve us in the conflict of European policies it should be the purpose and high privilege of the United States to continue to cooperate with our nations in humanitarian efforts in accordance with our cherished traditions. The basic principles of our foreign policy must be independence without indifference to the rights and necessities of others and cooperation without entangling alliances. This policy overwhelmingly approved by the people has been vindicated since the end of the great war. America's participation in world affairs under the administration of President Harding and President Coolidge has demonstrated the wisdom and prudence of the national judgment. A most impressive example of the capacity of the United States to serve the cause of world peace without political affiliations was shown in the effective and beneficent work of the Dawes commission towards the solution of the perplexing question of German reparations. The first conference of great powers in Washington called by President Harding accomplished the limitation of armaments and the readjustment of the relations of the powers interested in the Far East. The conference resulted in an agreement to reduce armaments, relieved the competitive nations involved from the great burdens of taxation arising from the construction and maintenance of capital battleships, assured a new, broader, and better understanding in the Far East; brought the assurance of peace in the region of the Pacific and formally adopted the policy of the open door for trade and commerce in the great markets of the Far East.

Limitation of Armaments

"This historic conference paved the way to avert the danger of renewed hostilities in Europe, and to restore the necessary economic stability. While the military forces of America have been restored to a peace footing, there has been an increase in the land and air forces abroad which constitutes a continual menace to the peace of the world and a bar to the return of prosperity.

"We firmly advocate the calling of a conference on the limitation of land forces, the use of submarines and poison gas, as proposed by President Coolidge, when through the adoption of a permanent reparations plan, the conditions in Europe will make negotiations and cooperation opportune and possible.

"By treaties of peace, safeguarding our rights and without derogating those of our former associates in arms, the republican administration ended the war between this country and Germany and Austria. We have concluded and signed with other nations during the past three years more than fifty treaties and international agreements in the furtherance of peace and good will.

"New sanctions and new proofs of permanent accord have marked our relations with all Latin-America. The long standing controversy between Chile and Peru has been advanced toward settlement by it ssubmission to the president of the United States as arbitrator and with the helpful cooperation of this country a treaty has been signed by the representatives of sixteen American republics, which will stabilize conditions on the American continent and minimize the opportunities for war.

Relations With Mexico

"Our difficulties with Mexico have happily yielded to a most friendly adjustment. Mutual confidence has been restored and a pathway for that friendliness and helpfulness which should exist between the government and the government of our neighboring republic has been marked. Agreements have been entered into for the determination by judicial commissions of the claims of the citizens of each country against the respective government. We can confidently look forward to more permanent and more stable relations with this republic that joins for so many [illegible]

[illegible] giving practical aid to other peoples without assuming political obligations has been conspicuously demonstrated. The ready and generous response of America to the needs of the starving in Russia and the suddenly stricken people of Japan gave evidence of our helpful interest in the welfare of the distressed in other lands.

Traffic in Women

"The work of our representatives in dealing with subjects of such universal concern as the traffic in women and children, the production and distribution of narcotic drugs, the sale of arms, and in matters affecting public health and morals, demonstrates that we can effectively do our part for humanity and civilization without forfeiting, limiting our restricting our national freedom of action.

"The American people do cherish their independence, but their sense of duty to all mankind will ever prompt them to give their support, service and leadership to every cause which makes for peace and amity among the nations of the world.

Agriculture

"In dealing with agriculture the republican party recognizes that we are faced with a fundamental national problem and that the prosperity and welfare of the nation as a whole is dependent upon the prosperity and welfare of our agricultural population.

"We recognize our agricultural activities are still struggling with adverse conditions that have brought about distress. We pledge the party to take whatever steps are necessary to bring back a balanced conditions between agriculture, industry and labor, which destroyed by the democratic party through an unfortunate administration of legislation passed as war time methods.

"We affirm that under the republican administration the problems of the farmer have received more serious consideration than ever before both by definite executive action and by sympathetic national action not only in the field of general legislation but also the enactment of laws to meet emergency situations.

"The restoration of general prosperity and the purchasing power of our people through tariff protection has resulted in an increased domestic consumption of food products while the price of agricultural commodities are now on the war price level by reason of direct tariff protection.

"Under the leadership of the presidents at the most critical time, a corporation was organized by private capital making available $100,000,000 to assist the farmers of the northwest.

Disturbance in Export Market

"In realization of the disturbance in the agricultural export market, the result of the financial depression in Europe, and appreciating that the export field would be enormously improved by economic rehabilitation and the resulting increased consuming power, a sympathetic support and direction was given to the work of the American representatives on the European reparations commission.

"The revival in 1921 of the war finance corporation, with loans of over $30,000,000 averted in 1921 a complete collapse in the agricultural industry.

"We have established new intermediate credit banks for agriculture and increased the capital of the federal farm loan system. Emergency loans have been granted to drough stricken areas. We have enacted into law the cooperative marketing act, the grain futures and packer control acts; given to agriculture direct representation on the federal reserve board and on the federal aid commission. We have greatly strengthened our foreign marketing service for the disposal of our agricultural products. The corner stone of the problem from the standpoint of the farmer is the net profit he receives after his outlay. The process of bringing the average prices of what he buys and what he sells closer together can be promptly expedited by reduction in taxes, steady employment in industry and stability in business.

"This process can be expedited directed by lower freight rates, by better marketing through cooperative efforts and a more scientific organization of the physical human machinery of distribution and by a greater diversification of farm products.

Reorganization of Market System.

"We promise every assistance in the reorganization of the market system on sounder and more economical lines and where diversification is needed government assistance during the period of transition. Vigorous efforts of this administration towards broadening our exports market will be continued. The republican party pledges itself to the development and enactment of measures which will place the agricultural interests of America on a basis of economic equality with other industry to assure its prosperity and success. We favor adequate tariff protection to such of our agricultural products as are threatened by competition. We favor, without putting the government into business, the establishment of a federal system of organization for cooperative marketing of food products.

Railroads.

"The people demand and are entitled to have prompt and efficient transportation at the lowest rates, consistent with good service and a reasonable return upon the value of the property devoted to the public service.

"We believe that the American people demand, and we favor a careful and scientific re-adjustment of railroad rates schedules with a view to the encouragement of agriculture and basic industries, without impairment of railroad service.

"The present laws regulating railroads which were enacted to meet best war conditions should be modified from time to time.

"The consolidation of railroads into fewer competitive systems subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission should be provided for.

"The labor board provisions of the present law should be amended wherever it appears that such action is necessary. Collective bargaining, mediation and voluntary arbitration are the most important steps in maintaining peaceful labor relations and should be encouraged. We do not believe in compulsory action at any time at the settlement of labor disputes.

"The interests of the public require the maintenance of an impartial tribunal which can in an emergency make an investigation of the facts and publish its conclusions. This is essential as a basis for popular judgment.

"We favor a stable consistent and constructive policy toward our railroads.

Highways.

"The federal aid road act, adopted by the republican congress in 1921 has been of inestimable value to the development of the highway system of the several states and of the nation. We pledge a continuation of this policy of federal cooperation with the states in highway building. * * *

Labor.

"The increasing stress of industrial life, the constant and necessary efforts because of world competition to increase production and decrease costs has made it specially incumbent on those in authority to protect labor from undue exactions.

"We commend congress for having recognized this necessity in its prompt adoption of the recommendation of President Coolidge for a constitutional amendment authorizing congress to legislate on the subject of child labor and we urge the prompt consideration of the prompt consideration of that amendment by the legislatures of the various states.

"There is no success great enough to justify the employment of women in labor under conditions which will impair their natural functions.

"We favor high standards for wage, working and living conditions among the women employed in industry.

"We pledge a continuance of the successful efforts of the republican administration to eliminate the seven-day, 12-hour work week in industry. We regard with satisfaction the elimination of the 12-hour day in the steel industry and the agreement eliminating the seven-day work week, of alternate 18 and 11 hours accomplished through the efforts of Presidents Harding and Coolidge. We declare our faith in the principle of the eight hour day. * * *

Government Control.

"The prosperity of the American nations rest on the vigor of private initiative which has broad spirit of independence and self reliance. The republican party stands now as always against all attempts to put the

Conn. as a Factor in The Rep. Convention

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Cleveland, O., June 11.—Authorized by the new rules and regulations adopted at the convention today, the state delegation is to meet tomorrow morning for the purpose of electing a state committee woman. This state has permitted a woman national committee woman acting on its own authority. It will now act in accord with the vote, and it is probable that Mrs. S. O. Prentice will be elected under the new rule.

Lieutenant Governor Bingham has had a strenuous session as a member of the resolutions committee. He has made a strong effort in behalf of certain features. He has stood in the committee against the amendment regarding child labor and believes that there should be a getting away from centralization in the federal government, and he is understood to be prepared to carry the matter to the floor of the committee. He aroused the only cheer of the session of the resolutions committee's public hearing when he denounced what he alluded to as "benevolent autocracy" in a speech having as its leading characteristic an appeal for the liberty of the subject in which he said "we do not believe in increasing the power of the central government."

Alternates who were permitted to act today were W. H. Putnam, R. T. Gates, Mrs. Katherine Pickett, Mrs. Norman C. Beers, Miss Alcorn, Henry Hunt and Lewis D. Stanton. Occupying places on the platform back of the national committee are State Senator E. A. Rogers of New London, and Henry L. Frisbie of Norwich.

The Connecticut delegation is planning to start its return trip Thursday night if their connection permits.

Audacious Daylight Banditry in New York

New York, June 11.—In one of the most daring daylight holdups this city has known, 10 automobile bandits today waylaid a customs truck on the outskirts of Greenwich Village, kidnaped the driver, terrorized a score of spectators and escaped with 29 packages of imported jewels and watches of an estimated value of $125,000.

The loot, in a sealed mail pouch, was consigned to Tiffany & Company on Fifth avenue and 27 importers in the Maiden Lane district of Lower Manhattan. It had arrived on the steamships Leviathan and Paris.

While a traffic policeman was issuing a summons to a law-breaking taxi driver, another taxicab cut off the mail truck and forced it to the curb and a sedan drew up on the opposite side of the street.

Two armed men leaped from the taxicab to the truck. Eight others issued from the sedan and with waving pistols cowed the spectators. Edward Foy, driver of the truck was hauled to the sedan, a prisoner, while his companion on the driver's seat, Daniel Keahon, vice president of the trucking corporation which was transporting the government mail under contract, was brutally clubbed with pistol butts and flung into the gutter, unconscious.

The bag of valuables was transferred to the taxicab, which speeded off as the sedan, with Foy a prisoner, darted in another direction.

Keahon was first to telephone an alarm. A few minutes later Foy phoned from Washington Heights, seven miles from the scene of the holdup, that he had been dumped out at 14th street and Broadhurst avenue, unharmed. His captors headed north, he reported.

Evidence that the taxi driver who was being summoned for traffic law violation when the robbery took place was an accomplice of the actual bandits caused police to begin a search for him and his cab, as well as the taxi and sedan which figured in the holdup.

Detectives compared the robbery to the famous million dollar mail truck theft for which Gerald Chapman was sentenced to the Atlanta penitentiary. Chapman escaped from the prison sometime ago, and has since been reported in New York state.

Officials of the trucking corporation said the loot represented a comparatively small shipment, the average value of such consignments customarily running into million dollar figures.

First Great Demonstration of the Republican Convention Came When Chairman Warren of the Platform Committee Mentioned the President's Name — Delegates Leaped to Their Feet and Jammed the Aisles, Shouting, Prancing and Hurrahing for Coolidge—Cheering Broke Out Afresh When Somebody Started Singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's Here ! All Except Wisconsin."

State standards were stretched up from their places, delegates leaping to their feet with cheers, and soon the aisles were jammed with a shouting, prancing, whistling, noise-making throng hurrahing for Coolidge.

During all the demonstration the delegates from Wisconsin remained silent in their seats surrounded by jeering throngs. It was fifteen minutes before Chairman Mondell began to get order restoring order.

The organ and the band tried to break in but the din on the floor drowned them out. While all the other delegations were milling and prancing round the hall the Wisconsin delegates were sticking to their seats. Neighboring delegations tried to snatch away the Wisconsin standard and take it into the parade but the delegation chairman took down the standard instead for safekeeping. After they had tired themselves out pushing and twisting about the tempestuous aisles the bearers of the state standards massed them in front of the speakers' stand. The din of the demonstration increased rather than diminished when the paraders came to a halt and the outburst had been in progress nearly fifteen minutes before the standard bearers began to file back to their places. Chairman Mondell then rapped for order but got none. Repeatedly he pounded the desk with his gavel and Col. Thayer, the sergeant-at-arms, came down to the front of the platform to help restore order.

A corps of the standards had been assembled by that time to form a circle around the Wisconsin delegation. As a last expedient to get the LaFollette men on their feet numbers of delegates surrounded them and sang the Star Spangled Banner. The Wisconsin delegates solemnly arose and stood at attention during the singing and then with the aid of Col. Thayer and a dozen assistants the others surrounding them were persuaded to return to their places.

Somebody in another part of the hall started up a song running, "Hail Hail, the Gang's All Here!, All Except Wisconsin" and the cheering broke out afresh.

When quiet had been restored Chairman Warren resumed his reading. There was frequent handclapping as he read the economy section of the platform and the convention did not let a single reference to President Coolidge go by without some applause.

The plank for placing the prohibition force under classified civil service got a cheer.

The world court plank too got a demonstration and there was another movement later when the chairman read a declaration that the United States had declined to assume any obligation under the covenant of the League of Nations.

All eyes were turned on Wisconsin once again when Mr. Warren raised his voice in reading the final paragraph of the platform calling on the country to elect not only a republican president and vice president, but senators and representatives who will remain faithful to the party cause.

The delegates stood and cheered and before the noise subsided Representative Cooper who ranks next to Speaker Gillett in point of service among republican members of the house appeared on the platform to present his minority report.

Chairman Warren then moved the adoption of the majority report and the motion was seconded by Representative Martin Madden, of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee. Representative Cooper, to be certain not to miss his opportunity, stepped to the front of the platform and addressed the chair amid a chorus of "boos," mixed with cheers.

Chairman Mondell recognized the Wisconsin leader and asked unanimous consent that he be given 10 minutes in which to address the convention. There was no apparent objection and the delegates good-naturedly applauded as the chairman retired and left Mr. Cooper in charge of the speaker's rabl.

The Wisconsin representative began by reading an extract that he said came from a speech by a great Republican of years ago, condemning the "tyranny of the party," and declaring that "no person can do a greater service than to resist the majority when he believes it wrong."

Then he announced that the author of the quotation was Whitelaw Reid, and there was a pattering of applause.

Planks that were booed and hissed in the convention of nineteen hundred and eight, Mr. Cooper declared now are the law of the land and he recalled that he had helped to frame som of them.

Admidst the confusion aroused by the speech Governor Blaine from his place with the Wisconsin delegation called out a request that the time of the speaker be extended beyond the 10 minutes limit. The crowd applauded and cried to them to go on.

But the venerable Wisconsin representative decided instead to conclude his speech by reading the La Follette platform.

"And when I have read it—he added, with a smile—"I shall [illegible] adoption. I don't pose as [illegible] prophet—I'm a better [illegible] prophet—but from the attitude of the convention I should say I will be in a substantial minority."

He then went on to read the planks which were made public from Senator La Follette's headquarters several days ago.

Safety Lunches.

When animals like cows, sheep or deer go through the performance of "chewing the cud" they are carrying out a function which their ancestors discovered was a means of aiding them to escape from their enemies. These animals of long ago were always in danger of attack, so they got into the habit of eating as much grass and herbage as they could in a short time, and then retiring to a place of safety. The grass was stored in a special chamber, and, once out of harm's way, the animals proceeded to rechew the food and swallow it again.

Willimantic's second store burglar was frustrated Tuesday night about nine o'clock, when about to pay an evening call at the home of Wesley G. Ide and family at 85 Valley street. Working in the immediate neighborhood of the home of some of his former victims, the thief repeated his method of entering the house by the veranda door on the second story rooms. He had started to crawl through the bathroom of the veranda roof when he happened into the room and electric lights. The intruder make a quick turn and leaped to the ground, a distance of about fifteen feet and disappeared in the darkness. Mr. Ide saw the form of a man turning from the window and he made a rush to capture him but was too late. Captain Thomas Grady of the police department was notified and Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria was despatched to conduct an investigation, but he could find no trace of the man. The Ide home is just opposite the street from the home of Louis Gordon where some $300 worth of silverware and jewelry was stolen from a trunk during a circus parade at midday, a few weeks ago. The crook who was seen Tuesday night is believed to be the same who conducted a half doren breaks in this city within a few weeks. One of the heavy horses owned by the American Railway Express company suddenly broke into a breakneck run about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon and raced down North street, made the turn around the silent policeman at the intersection of that street and Main and started down the main thoroughfare. The half-loaded wagon to which the steed was hitched swung around and the right rear wheel caught in the front bumper of a Buick sport touring car owned by Costas Stamaton, which was parked in front of the Palace of Sweets. One of the brackets on the bumper was snapped off, the left front fender was slightly bent and the front wheels were put out of line when the axle was slightly sprung. The horse was thrown and in his struggle to rise broke the shaft and the harness in such a manner that he was free from the wagon. Before he could start on another rampage William Whiton jumped from his automobile which was parked across the street and caught the animal by the bridle. The driver, Euclide Ledoux, a supernumerary policeman of the local department, was in a store delivering a package when the horse bolted dragging a small weight along with it.

WARNING AGAINST HIRING UNLICENSED NURSES

A warning against unlicensed nurses as a safeguard against incompetent nursing is contained in a statement issued by State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn. The warning states that under existing conditions it is possible for an incompetent nurse with incomplete training to become listed with a private nurses' registry, and points out that if nurses registered with the state board of examination and registration are hired, that there will be no opportunity of a mishap.

Commissioner Osborn's statement follows:

"A complaint recently made to the state department of health brought to light a rather interesting situation with reference to the need of registration and licensure of nurses as a safeguard against incompetent nursing in Connecticut. A health officer reported that a nurse employed to care for a scarlet fever patient in his town had failed to take adequate measures to prevent the spread of the disease. It was said, for example, that instead of burning dressings from a suppurating ear or gland, she had thrown them behind the bathtub. After termination of her services it was said that she left the house without taking a bath or changing clothing or without permission from the health officer.

"It was found upon investigation that the nurse had been obtained through a private registry that had listed her and sent her out on cases as a registered nurse upon the recommendation of some of her nursing friends but without any further inquiry as to her qualifications. In fact it appears that listing with the registry had been conducted entirely by telephone and the manager had never seen the nurse who was being sent out to take cases.

"The nurse in question came to the office of the state department of health by request and explained that she had taken a course of training in a small hospital in a far-away state where nursing standards are lower than in Connecticut and that her training did not even entitle her to register in the state where the hospital is located. She stated further that she had had 15 years' nursing experience but explained her failure to obtain permission from the health officer to leave a quarantined area by saying that she had not been in Connecticut very long and did not know the requirements.

"This instance shows that it may be possible under conditions in Connecticut for an incompetent nurse with incomplete training to become listed with a private nurses' registry and sent out to care for cases at the same fee received by the best trained registered nurses. The state department of health has compiled a list of registered nurses which will soon be published. By reference to this list, managers of registries and other persons interested can readily ascertain whether of not a nurse is registered in Connecticut.

Faithful Church Attendants.

From various facts recorded in the course of the old Sagas one gathers that in Catholic days the Icelanders fasted rigorously, especially in Lent and Holy week, which last they called the "Tumb-bell Days," writes Darley Dale in the Ave Maria. One also learns that they were very strict about going to mass on Sundays and holy days, despite the terrible storms of wind and rain and snow in winter. In 1118, in the time of Bishop Gizor, there was so terrible a snowstorm in Holy week that none could attend the religious services. On Easter day, however, which fell on April 14, man could get to mass, though some of them died of the cold.

"RINSO brings them out spotless and they wear so much longer"

Makers of the "World's Smartest Collar" say

"Wash your Van Heusens with Rinso"

"YOUR Van Heusens will come out white and crisp as ever, and spotlessly clean," says the manufacturer of this popular collar, "and because there is no hard rubbing their naturally long life is made even longer. That is the reason we recommend RINSO for washing Van Heusens.

"Even if the collar is subjected to a good deal of dirt actually ground in—office dirt, train dirt, perspiration, etc.—Rinso will wash it out as good as new.

Just try it out for yourself. You'll understand why the manufacturer of "the World's Smartest Collar" endorses Rinso. See for yourself how easy it is to get that obstinate line of dirt out of a soft collar with Rinso.

YOU'LL find it is the same way with other specially soiled places in the family wash—neck-bands, cuff-edges, hems, and the like—Rinso soaks the dirt out of them.

You don't have to change your regular washday method—whether you soak, boil or use a washing machine. Wherever you used to use bar soap, now just use Rinso.

Of course you would know that Rinso must be wonderful for it is made by the makers of Lux. Made to do your family wash as perfectly as Lux does all your fine things.

Try Rinso yourself and be freed from the old hard rubbing. Get a package—regular size or big new size—from your grocer today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

With every Van Heusen Collar you buy, you get suggestions for washing them in Rinso. If the collars are washed with the regular family wash, follow directions on the back of the Rinso package.

SOAKS DIRT OUT—that's what RINSO does—in its rich soapy solution even edge dirt has to let go!

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyocena, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my twins were born because my sister used it and recommended it to me. I was so I could scarcely go about my daily work I was in such misery. But after I began taking the second bottle I was feeling lots better. I took three bottles and a half before I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."—Mrs. Ida Gmeitz, Wyocena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after childbirth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after childbirth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

SCHOOL AND TOWN CELEBRATE VICTORY OVER NORWICH

Westerly, R. I. June 11.—The winning of the Interscholastic Baseball league championship by the Westerly High school baseball team resulted in a jubilee celebration in Westerly on Wednesday evening by the team, student body and supporters.

As soon as the players returned from the 12-inning game at Norwich, in which the 11 to 9 victory of the Blue and White of Westerly "lifted" the championship cup to Westerly as the [illegible] place, plans for a parade were begun. A trombone band [illegible] bass drum accompaniment [illegible] at the high school building and marched to Dixon house square, where there were cheers for the team, officials, players and the score was counted out before an increasing assemblage.

The impromptu band with student accompaniment paraded to the home on High street of Baseball Coach Joe Sherman, to whom so much credit is due for the successful year and he was summoned outside for a speech. Next Football Coach Rogers was visited on High street and a speech called for. Meanwhile someone visited the Westerly band rooms where a weekly rehearsal was being held and the Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, leader, at the conclusion of rehearsal went to Dixon house square where several lively numbers were played. The Westerly band and returning serenaders joined forces and marching past Coach Sherman's home, went to pay their respects to High School Principal Laura E. McLaughlin on Maple avenue.

Words of visit to the principal was [illegible] Christ Episcopal church [illegible] were sounded and selections played, with the score counted on the big bell. This was mistaken for the Westerly fire alarm and many hurried to the fire house on Union street, before it was learned that the cause was only the fires of school spirit and no conflagration. Automobiles in procession brought their guests to fill the square and again the band caused them to return while the student body joined hands for a war dance. Coach Sherman was captured and led to the center of the square for more cheers and the bandsmen were greeted with a salvo of chairs and [illegible] Night, Ladies" was played and another championship year, this time 1924, passed into history.

THE CAMPAIGN KEYNOTE.

Three notes ring strongest in the keynote speech made at the republican national convention by Congressman Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, temporary chairman of the convention. These are pressed for national economy, war taxes and party unity. "Economy" and "reduction of taxation" are made the issues of utmost importance. Republicans are warned that they must preach a national crusade in their behalf, an "active campaign of education," such as was made against the free-silver heresies of 1896. It is in this part of the Burton address that the voice of Calvin Coolidge is loudest.

The keynote speaker reminds the convention that "the word 'republican' is not a mere name; it is not a label which any one can wear. It is not a cloak for individual vagaries. The strength and usefulness of the republican party must depend upon the maintenance of enduring principles in the advocacy of which triumph can only be secured by party solidarity and an organization whose members unite in closed formation to battle with every foe." The place for obstructionists is somewhere else than in the party of which they are members in name.

In the years of recent republican rule there have been many things to which he could point with pride which were solid achievements, but in the same period a republican congress has been at odds with a republican in the White House. The results have not been fortunate for the party and the nation. It was congressman Burton's task to deal with the situation from a party standpoint. So far as a party spokesman may do, he has laid before the republicans at Cleveland the recent record of their party and has charted a hopeful course for the future.

HIS THIRD ATTEMPT.

Nothing daunted by two previous attempts that failed just when they seemed on the point of success, Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan is preparing to make his third trial to cross the United States in an airplane in a flight from dawn to dusk. The permanent of this young aviator promises not to be crowned with victory. Results in the two previous trials proved to aeronautical engineers that there is nothing impossible in the feat. This time he proposes to make a change from his plans of the past, in both of which his attempt was to fly from sunrise to sunset. This time it is his intention to fly from dawn to dusk, thus gaining in actual flying time. The longest day of the year, June 21, has been selected for the flight, when the time from dawn to dusk is nineteen hours and nineteen minutes. With all stops included, the flight time will be nineteen hours and twenty minutes. It is a narrow margin but it will suffice if all goes well.

It is rather surprising that a nation which is so poorly equipped for war in the air continues to make such rapid aeronautical progress in other lines. There are not enough planes in the air service to defend New York successfully against attack, but those in commission appear to be doing good work in raising the standard of fliers. If Lieutenant Maughan succeeds in his coming attempt and if the round-the-world fliers are likewise successful, most of the honors of this year in aviation accomplishments will go to the United States and its hardy young men are striving for aviation records that are just on the edge of possibility.

MORE SCHOOL HOUSES.

The recommendation of the town school board [illegible] and two modern school houses to replace those outworn or poorly adapted at Norwich Town and on the East side is no more than was to be expected by those who have been at all in touch with the consideration that the board has been giving to this subject. The amount that is called for looks large, but it is to be considered on that score that, with the exception of the Elizabeth street school, the erection of new school houses has cost the town nothing for many years and the expense of any present plans must soon be a debt can be spread over many years by a bond issue. Naturally the board will be expected to give to the citizens the full information it has as to the needs of these new buildings in the educational system of the town. In no country in the world is education more highly regarded nor more generously provided for than in America and those communities which are most progressive set their standards of education high, in equipment and personnel. Norwich is certainly not disposed to be a laggard in either respect. When the school board lays its case before the public, it should be given judicious consideration as a ground for the wise action that the situation demands.

FACING THE FACTS.

At length Germany seems willing to face realities. There has been a noticeable diminution of talk in high places of escaping war burdens which will bear heavily upon that nation. The vanquished will not alone be those to bear these burdens for they have been, and will continue to be, borne alike by the victors. There is no escape from paying the fiddler for those who dance. Five years' experience with inflated currency, five years of evasion of obligations and five years of disordered industry have served to bring all concerned to a more reasonable state of mind, as reflected in published statements everywhere. Action that ought to proceed logically from such a change in temper will be a welcome sign that there is to be peace in fact as well as in name.

Chancellor Marx has rendered a service to his own people, as well as to the world, in urging that there be full cooperation in carrying out the terms of the report prepared by the Dawes reparation committee. He declares it is "Germany's last chance of salvation," and it might be said further that there are many reasons for believing that it is the final opportunity for France to collect from her late enemy for damage done in battle. The financial and industrial situation in Europe has reached such a state that rejection of such a well thought out and fairly balanced arrangement is to invite commercial and possibly political, chaos.

Shifting and temporizing policies have brought loss to every country concerned and the effect on the whole international structure of trade and commerce has been decidedly disastrous. With the German leaders prepared to accept and carry out the provisions of the Dawes report, there now seems to be a prospect for a settlement among the powers that so long have delayed the necessary and inevitable post-war adjustment. The immediate need is to get the reparation machinery running, and after that the task will obviously be a continuing one.

THE FRANKS MURDER CASE.

The approaching trial in Chicago of Loeb and Leopold, the murderers of young Franks, will provide a wonderful opportunity for psychologists, psychoanalysts and other "experts" to display their wares—and perhaps reap a golden harvest. We have been told that it will be a battle of millions, but the parents of the two young men, who at least have the sympathy of the public in the terrible awakening that has come to them, have likewise earned more of the respect of the public through their declaration that there will be no "battle of millions," at least not in the sense that unlimited amounts will be spent to prevent a fair trial of the case.

It ought to be possible to get a judge and jury in the city of Chicago that would approach the case as a legal proceeding, and not as an arena for psychoanalysts and psychologists. That is all that is asked, and surely it is a reasonable request—or demand. If this case becomes involved in a cloud of so-called science there is no telling what may happen. Millions may play their part, and they probably will. But so will the experts referred to. There is, of course, no doubt that Franks was killed, and none that Leopold and Loeb killed him. There is as little doubt that they knew what they were about. The question of motive is not important. Nor is it important that certain people—including some experts—find it impossible to account for the action of the murderers. All such matters are irrelevant.

Though the case is unusual in many ways, it is still only a murder case, and surely it will be so dealt with. It may be suggested that people remember that the child Franks was killed under the most cruel circumstances, that the killing was premeditated and deliberately planned. If there is any feeling of sympathy it should be directed to the parents of the victim, and not to the wretches who slew him. Of them it can not be said that they did not "have a fair chance."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says June is beginning to show it has the recipe for perfect days.

POWER OF WORDS

"This settles it!" cried the gay young man who had been looking over the first page of the newspaper. "When I get married I am going to choose my wife by a conversational contest. The girl who proves that she can talk loudest, longest and most fluently wins the fur-lined bath tub and the privilege of arising at 6 o'clock every day to get my breakfast!"

"Does your head feel just right?" queried the astounded listener, who had been brought up on all of the old jokes and really believed that a dumb woman was a great catch.

"Right as a bell!" declared the gay young man. "Here's a law case going to be tried over because the woman defendant talked so much that the jury has concluded it was unable to think and is dubious about its verdict in her favor. Think of the progress a man could make with such a helping hand!

"'Gentlemen,' says the stern, cold-blooded prosecutor, 'look at the accused! I shall prove indisputably that he embezzled $10,000,000, robbed the baby's penny bank, eloped with his friend's wife and murdered two or three persons, and I ask the full penalty of the law!' Whereupon up bursts friend wife and starts talking, and the united efforts of judge, jailers and whatnot cannot stop her.

"She talks on and on and the whirl of words so bewilders the confused jury and their eardrums hurt so that they hand over a verdict giving the accused half a million damages, a new car and a vote of thanks and call it a day.

"Or when a bill collector calls. Instead of hiding in the back pantry and pretending not to hear the bell or sending your wife to the door to explain that you have been called on a six-month trip to the Kamchatka, you admit the man genially and ask him to have a cigar. Just as he begins telling you about the seven months the bill has run and what is going to happen to you, you wink at your wife and the dam breaks. Swept off his feet, the bill collector clings desperately to the parlor mantel trying to keep his nose above the flood, and his calls for help grow fainter and fainter, until finally you toss out the remains and mop up the floor, telling your wife she is a great girl and what should you do without her!

"A wife like that would be invaluable at dinner parties. A guest never gets enough to eat at a dinner party, whether it is in his own house or not. It seems to be etiquette that when the nicest possible food is set before you, you must be stricken with a dainty loss of appetite. No matter if you realize that never again in your career shall you meet a soup like that one of which you were apportioned six brief spoonfuls, you wouldn't dare ask for more. Even when the molded lobster sits before you for a few seconds and after one taste you feel that heaven has no attractions without lobsters cooked exactly that way, it vanishes.

"However, if you have trained your wife to burst into violent and prolonged conversation under cover of which you can eat your head off and the entranced, stunned and hypnotized guests cannot remove their eyes and ears from her freshet of words, that would be something like it! There would be some use in a wife like that!

"Or when the family relatives called on Sunday just as you were making ready for a nice long nap—why, you could sleep peacefully and unobserved in any corner while she held their attention with her flood of remarks!

"There never would be trouble with cooks because she could talk them down and grocers and butchers would run to cover on her approach after hurling towards her their choicest cuts and greatest delicacies. The way I see it life could not fail to be one perfect song married to a wife with a gift like that!"

"Mebbe," grudgingly agreed the astounded listener. "Only don't forget you'd hafta wear cotton in your own ears, my boy!"

"Well," admitted the gay young man shaking his head, "of course there are a few minor points to the plan like that which have got to be worked out, you know, before it would be popular!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Charles Mills Gayley, who has accepted the directorship of the American University Union in Europe, ranks with the foremost living American scholars. For many years he held the professorship of English and literature in the University of California, and latterly has been dean of the university. Before going to California he had served for some years as an instructor at the University of Michigan. Shanghai was Dean Gayley's birthplace, his parents being engaged in missionary work in China. His early education was received in a private school in England. After a year of study in Belfast he came to America and entered the University of Michigan, where he received his B. A. in 1878. He then returned to Europe for several years of special study at some of the great universities in Great Britain and on the Continent. The American University Union, of which Dan Gayley is to become the director, is an organization devoted primarily to the interests of Americans studying in Europe.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Old Red Rooster

"Yes, I must drive over to get the Old Red Rooster early tomorrow morning," said Uncle Lucky, as he finished his cabbage leaf cigar in the last story. "I'll stop on the way for Little Jack Rabbit," and, placing his old wedding stovepipe hat on his head, the old gentleman rabbit kissed Lady Love goodbye.

"Come along, Little Miss Mousie," he cried. "We must be going."

from the table where she had been playing tiddledy winks with the bunny boy, and tying on her bonnet with the purple pansy on it, she said goodbye and followed the old gentleman rabbit down the path through the bramble bushes to the luckymobile which stood just outside the white picket fence on the Sunny Meadow.

As soon as his little mouse housekeeper was seated beside him, he honked his horn and, waving goodbye to Lady Love and Little Jack Rabbit, guided the luckymobile up the old cow path and over the hill top.

Mr. Merry Sun was going down behind the western hill, gilding the tree tops as Billy Breeze whistled sleepy music through the leaves. Mrs. Cow with the tinkling bell on her leather collar was walking slowly through the gate in the farmyard fence, followed by her long legged calf.

The kind farmer was just coming out of the kitchen door with the milk pail in his hand and Old Sic'em, his good watch dog was stretching his hind legs, all ready to follow him to the shed.

The nicest place for a sleepy head."

Away went the lucymobile—perhaps it wanted to get back to the little red garage, or maybe Uncle Lucky had turned on more power. At any rate, pretty soon, not so very far, they came to Lettuce avenue. Just then Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy, shouted:

"Extra! Extra! All about Danny Fox's dreadful gout!"

"What's he saying?" asked Uncle Lucky anxiously, "I declare I'm growing deaf!"

"Danny Fox has the gout!" answered Little Miss Mousie, opening her vanity bag for a carrot cent.

"Hey!" shouted Uncle Lucky, stopping the luckymobile, just like that, quicker than bills on the first of the month.

As Reddy Comb handed up the Runnybridge Bugle and after Little Miss Mousie dropped the carrot cent in his purse, she opened the paper. But, Oh, dear me! Billy Breeze was too playful all of a sudden. He blew this way and that way, crumpling up the newspaper until poor Little Miss Mousie was almost wrapped up in it.

"Let's wait till we get home. You can read aloud while I put on my old slippers," suggested dear Uncle Lucky, and in a few minutes they were back in his little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street.

A history maker— and still the Leader!

The World's Largest Producer of Quality Automobiles

THE STUDEBAKER Light-Six—a history maker—the first fine six-cylinder car under 3,000 pounds at a four-cylinder price.

A car with followers, imitators and adapters by the score—but with no rival in quality, popularity or sales volume. It is still the Leader!

A car built to fulfill the ideal of producing the greatest automobile value in the $1,000 field—the car which started the stampede from fours to sixes.

A car with a specially designed offset valve motor of remarkable quietness, economy, freedom from vibration—and with tenacious resourcefulness of power on the hills, the straightaway and the pickup!

A car comfortable, roomy, good-looking, very easy to handle on the road, in traffic or in parking—long-lived, low in first cost and especially low in up-keep costs. The market's one best bargain for the man who wants all the car he can get at about $1,000.

A car that is an investment, not an expense, because it can be bought on very liberal terms, sold or traded in at a very high resale value on a market always ready and waiting for a used Light-Six Studebaker—its popularity and demand as a used car are the most convincing evidence of its goodness as an automobile.

Mark Twain's Dreams and Debts.

Following rainbows of riches over the country, Samuel L. Clemens found wealth, only to be plunged into debt again.

Born in Florida, Mo., he was 11 years old when his father died. He became a printer's apprentice on a weekly newspaper, then a compositor in St. Louis, then New York and Philadelphia.

Visions of wealth along the Amazon led him as far as New Orleans, but he became a Mississippi river pilot at 21, and quit when the Civil war began.

After a brief service in the Confederate army, he went to Carson City, Nev., as secretary to his brother, then territorial secretary.

He staked out a timber claim, dug for gold, worked in a quartz mill for $10 a week, and finally walked 125 miles to become editor of the Virginia City Enterprise at a salary of $25 a week. His writings had been desultory, but here he became Mark Twain, the author.

Next a reporter in San Francisco, his articles enraged the police and he had to hurry to the hills, where he just missed a rich gold strike, but heard the frog story. He wrote The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County, a New York newspaper published it, and his fame spread.

He visited Hawaii for a newspaper, then became a lecturer and won success. Publishers refused to consider his collection of stories and he, at 32, published his first book. A trip to the Holy Land as correspondent inspired Innocents Abroad that brought rich reward.

When 35 he married, bought an interest in a Buffalo newspaper, sold out at a loss, and had to lecture to get out of debt.

He wrote Roughing It, then Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn. Europe welcomed him and [illegible] Success came bountifully. He started a publishing business, invested in a typesetting machine and other inventions, then retired. The company failed, the inventions proved impracticable. At 58 he was $70,000 in debt. Four years later he had paid everything, then made enough to live comfortably the rest of his life.

Mark Twain was a name known over the world and he was beloved and esteemed as one of America's greatest humorists.

A Different Kind of Motorman

This is to explain why traffic was interrupted in a city street on a recent Sunday afternoon.

A young woman and her father sat reading in the parlor of their home. The constant noise from motor cars made little impression on their ears, an occasional lull in the hurrying traffic being more noticeable than the noise itself.

Suddenly there was the screeching sound of the brakes of a street car. With visions of a collision between the car and an automobile, the young woman and father jumped to the window.

The car was being brought under control by the hand of a big-hearted motorman, just as a rabbit jumped from its path to the lawn of their home.

A Veiled Remark

Little Betty is three years old and very observant. While looking out of the window one day she noticed a woman pass the house wearing a veil. Turning around she called to her mother, who was upstairs: "Oh, mamma, come here quick and see the lady with a hair net on her face."

HELD SPLENDID EXHIBIT OF NORWICH PRODUCTS

A splendid exhibit of goods manufactured in Norwich was a feature of the meeting of Norwich Grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, Wednesday evening at Steiner's hall, Main street. The exhibit, which was arranged by the lecturer, Mrs. Ida Richardson, was admired by many who took occasion to inspect the many products turned out by local industries. There was general surprise expressed at the variety of goods shown. The exhibit, made possible through the efforts of Mrs. Richardson, proved not only interesting but instructive as well.

Among the firms represented either by products or statistics were the following: Ponemah Mills, United States Finishing Co., C. H. and F. L. Osgood Co., Norwich Belt Co., International Silver Co., Davis Warner Corp., Brainerd & Armstrong silk mill, Dupont DeNemours paper mill, Atlantic Carton Co., George P. Madden, cigar manufacturer; Rodes Bros., pants manufacturers; Ideal Pants Co., Uncas Paper Board Co., Richmond Radiator Co., American Woolen Mills, Saxton Woolen Mill, Reliance Yarn Co., Lester & Wasley Co., J. B. Martin Co., The Falls Co., Vaughn Foundry Co., Turner & Stanton Co., Reliable Cap Mfg. Co., Valley Drug & Chemical Co. (insecticides), Ufford Textile Co., Totoket Mfg. Co., H. H. Allyn Rubber Co., L. L. Hartson Woodworking Co., A. Werner & Sons' shoe factory, United Metal Mfg. Co., Ulmer Leather Co., Connecticut Belting Co., and American Thermos Bottle Co. The exhibits were attractively arranged on tables around the sides of the hall.

Following the regular business meeting, Carl W. Brown gave a very interesting talk on the products shown in the exhibit and incorporated in his talk a brief historical sketch of the various Norwich industries. There was a good sized attendance at the meeting.

Wednesday night marked the opening of the big Hippodrome and Garden Party of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women on the grounds in the rear of the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway. Several hundreds of people visited the grounds during the evening, the 10 booths being well patronized. The unusually cool weather had its effect on the size of the crowd.

The grounds presented a most attractive picture, with hundreds of electric lights strung about the booths and the many colors used in decorating the booths and stands added to the setting.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the people began to arrive at the grounds and soon the garden party was in full swing. Those in charge of the booths were kept fairly busy disposing of the articles offered for sale. While the party was in progress the Italian-American Band, Inc., under the leadership of Prof. Pasquale Puca, rendered a pleasing programme. The numbers selected by the band ranged from opera to the lighter and popular selections, the varied program being the most pleasingly rendered, calling for consistent and receiving hearty applause from the delighted audience.

Sempre Vittarie,	Manente
Italia,	Chibbaro
Minnetto,	Boccherini
Polka,	Savin
March De Molar,	R. B. Hall
March Militaire,	Ines
Leave Me With a Smile.	Koehler
Angel Child,	Silver
Cavalleria Rusticana,	Mascagni
Star Spangled Banner,	Keyes

The booths were arranged in two lines extending on the south and north sides of the grounds while the stage was placed in the center of the grounds. At the extreme east was one of the most popular booths, most properly called a tent, this being the home of the fortune teller, the lady within being kept busy by many people desirous of peering into the future, or finding out if "he," or "she," [illegible] them.

[illegible] a change in the program [illegible] of the entertainment for the evening was omitted but there was plenty to take up the evening. Promise of an added attraction this (Thursday) evening was made during the evening.

Today's program calls for two features—one in the afternoon which is of especial importance to the kiddies, and another in the evening for the [illegible]. In the afternoon from [illegible] o'clock there will be a children's parade in charge of Mrs. W. K. [illegible] and her committee of women. YOUTHFUL BURGLARS CAPURED BY OFFICER DANIEL O'NEIL

Two juvenile burglars, one 9 and the other 12, both living on the West Side, were captured on Franklin street about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning by Officer John O'Neil while making his rounds. Officer O'Neil noticed the boys walking on the street, one with a roll of pressed ham under his arm and the other with a loaf of bread. He stopped the boys and after questioning them took them to police headquarters. Questioned by Captain D. J. Twomey and Sergeant Thomas Murphy the boys admitted that they got into the City Meat Market on Franklin street.

At first they told the officers that they had bought the ham and bread but afterwards they admitted they took the goods from the store. A search of their clothing revealed $10.85 in small change in one of the boy's pants pocket. Several bars of chocolate and jars of tongue were brought to light. The older of the boys has been in trouble before and was slated for appearance in the juvenile court Saturday morning in connection with another matter. Both the boys will be presented in the juvenile court.

As the boys are under 16 years of age they could not be presented in the city court owing to the provisions of the juvenile court law. Officers Patrick Shahan, Elmer Allen and John O'Neil went to the market after the boys had been taken in charge and conducted an investigation. It was found that the boys had gained entrance to the store through a rear window.

POLICE RECOVER GOODS STOLEN IN DUDLEY

The local police have recovered for the Dudley, Mass., police a gold watch and a Gillette razor case, alleged to have been stolen in Dudley sometime ago by Earl Davis Jacob, who is now under arrest in Dudley charged with the theft. The chief of the Dudley police department requested the local police to make a search for the missing articles which they had reason to believe Jacob had brought to this city.

The watch and razor case were found by the police in a West Side house where Jacob boarded while in this city. It is understood that he had disposed of the watch at the boarding house as a means of raising money. The watch and razor case will be used as evidence against him.

TRYING SUIT BROUGHT TO COLLECT COMMISSION

At the morning session of the superior court in this city Wednesday the arguments in the case of George W. Carroll vs. The Shetucket Co. were heard. At the conclusion of the arguments Judge John R. Booth took the papers. A brief recess was taken after which the trial of the case of Cornelius P. Donohue of New London vs. Alton T. Miner of New London was started. The jury which is hearing the case follows:

Charles W. Dow, Norwich; Charles I. Haskell, Jesse O. Crary and William A. Bennett, Preston; Dwight C. Gillette and John Purcell, Colchester; Frank Davoll, Lebanon; Ellsworth C. Gray, North Stonington; William A. Kilroy, Bozrah; Charles W. Grant, Franklin; Joseph Boucher, Sprague; William R. Darling, Salem.

The first witness was the plaintiff, Cornelius P. Donohue. He told of being a salesman for The Humphrey-Cornell Co., and of Alton T. Miner, defendant, owning two stores in New London. In the middle of April, 1922 the plaintiff went into the Williams street store and Mr. Miner told him that if he could sell his store the witness was then told by Mr. Miner that if he could sell his stores the commission for the same would be paid. The witness then went to the store of Mr. Cochrane and told him that Mr. Miner wanted to sell his store. Later Mr. Miner told the witness that Mr. Cochrane had come to his store and that apparently the deal was made but that following that Mr. Cochrane had called off the deal over the telephone.

A few days later the witness talked with Mr. Cochrane again. Another visit was made to Mr. Miner's store the result of which the sale was made. Mr. Miner then told the witness that he (the witness) had done more for him than any real estate man and that he would pay the witness the same commission as any real estate agent would get. This would be within a few days.

The commission, however, never was paid.

The defendant, Alton T. Miner, then took the stand. He gave the date of the transfer and the price as $13,500. A real estate and insurance broker testified as to five percent being the commission customarily paid on sales of stores. John T. Burns, real estate and insurance broker, offered the same testimony. The plaintiff rested at 11.41 and the jury was excused for luncheon.

John W. Cochrane testified at the afternoon session. A motion for nonsuit was denied by Judge Booth. Both sides rested at 3.21 p. m. after which the arguments were started. Court adjourned for the day shortly before 5 o'clock.

FINED $50 AND GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Wednesday morning in the criminal common pleas court, with Judge C. B. Waller on the bench, the trial of the case against Felix Prokop, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, was resumed. The counts with intent to sell. The arguments were made after which Judge Waller were actual sale and keeping liquor charged the jury. A verdict of guilty on the second count was returned. The accused was fined $50 and given a 10 day jail sentence.

ROTARIANS AND LIONS HOLD JOINT MEETING

The Norwich Rotary club and the Lions club held a joint meeting Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel with about 150 present. The meeting was one of great enthusiasm and was thoroughly enjoyed, so much so that it is planned to have another in the not far distant future. Included in the attendance were several members of the state park commission who were guests of Herbert M. Leroy, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, who are in this section to inspect a possible site for a state park.

President Hugh B. Campbell of the Norwich Rotary club presided at the meeting and the song leaders were Joseph C. Worth for the Rotarians and Lion Tyler Stanton. Quartette selections featured the singing and there was a pleasing duet by Doc Thompson and George A. Finn of the Lions club. Several of the visiting guests also were called upon for vocal selections.

President Campbell appointed George L. Ingalls, Charles A. Saxton and William H. Oat as a committee to act with similar committees of the Commercial Travelers, Chamber of Commerce and Lions club in promoting an organization for the betterment of Eastern Connecticut.

The entertainment feature of the meeting was a spirited and cleverly argued debate on the subject: Resolved, That the Flapper of Today is Superior to Her Grandmother." The affirmative was capably as well as humorously handled by Judge Nelson J. Ayling and Arthur L. Brown for the Rotarians while Judge John Barry and Kopland Markoff presented the negative side. Both sides presented strong and convincing facts relative to the two types of women and was a good draw but James Hammond of New London, who was chosen judge, ruled in favor of the negative side.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 11.—There was an enthusiastic meeting of storekeepers and property owners on Bank street, in the council chamber, this evening to discuss a proposed ordinance regulating traffic on Bank street. Three suggestions were made, viz. To make Bank street a one-way street for all traffic, including the trolley cars, from Tilley street to State street, north, with parking on both sides of the street; to alternate parking monthly from one side of the street to the other; to station police officers at Golden and Pearl streets to direct and govern traffic. All the plans were discussed at length, merchants and others speaking. Finally a vote was taken and the meeting decided that the one-way street idea was the best one; 35 of the 40 or 50 persons in attendance on the meeting decided on the one-way, north, plan.

It developed that police officers now were restricting the parking of automobiles at present without authority and the city manager gave promise that they would be stopped. There were all sorts of suggestions how best to relieve the congestion, but some of them were regarded of a selfish nature and they received little consideration. It was suggested, and the city manager promised to bring about a change that would result in parking on one side of Pearl street only. The sentiment expressed as to the trolley cars was not very favorable, and an appeal to the public utilities commission was suggested to secure co-operation with the city in any arrangement that might be made. It was pointed out that the Connecticut company operated its cars by way of Washington and Truman streets when there was a rush on the cars and the meeting wanted them to graciously conform to the opinion of citizens and taxpayers in this matter. It was declared by some that in five years or more there would be no trolley cars as the automobile was fast taking the business that has gone to the street cars.

Two men charged with intoxication will be presented before Judge Prince in the police court tomorrow morning. One of the inebriates was picked up on Bank street by Patrolman James McKenna and the other was gathered in by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky on John street.

Several drivers of automobiles will be presented for infractions of the law. Julia A. Winn, New London, was taken into custody by Patrolman William Graham and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with operating an automobile without having a license to do so. Angelo Tresso, 20 Weeden street, Providence, was apprehended on Bank street for overtime parking by Traffic Officer John Courtney and John Klein, 1572 St. Nicholas avenue, New York, and Willie A. Sandlach, 21 Clinton avenue, Jersey City, N. J., were arrested for parking overtime on State street. Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy making the arrest of Klein and Traffic Officer Frank Linehan apprehending Sandlach.

George Young, of Gales Ferry, was taken into custody tonight by State Trooper Edward Kinnison of the Groton barracks charged with breach of the peace. He was locked up at the police station in default of a surety bond for appearance in court in Gales Ferry tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Young became involved in a fight late this afternoon and attacked several persons. Complaint was made to the state police and Officer Kenyon was sent to Gales Ferry and locating Young, placed him under arrest and brought him to New London.

It is the belief that the woman was brought to New London from New York or some other near city by her male friends for the purpose of exercising her talents among the sailors now stationed at this port.

The annual meeting of the Connecticut Probation Officers' association took place in the juvenile court room, in the municipal building here, today, the session convening at 11 o'clock. The principal business transacted was the election of officers, as follows: President, W. T. Lynch, Hartford; vice president, Joseph McConnell, Bridgeport; secretary and treasurer, Miss Cora M. Beale; executive committee, Richard W. Mansfield, New London, chairman; Mrs. Clara Learned, Putnam, and P. M. Kidney, Middletown. The meeting voted to hold an outing during August at Hammonasett Beach. Delegates were selected to represent the association at the convention at Toronto, Canada, this summer. Owing to the inability of George E. Fisher to address the gathering, Deputy Judge Perry J. Hollandersky of the police court, spoke, taking for his subject, "The Superiority of Present Over Past Methods of Dealing With Delinquent Offenders."

The condition of William Kellner, painter, formerly of Norwich, but for a number of years a resident of New London, where he had been employed by contracting painters, is stated to be critical at Lawrence hospital, to which institution Kellner was transferred from the police station last evening. It is now said that the primary cause of his disease is cerebral hemorrhage and but little hope is held out for his recovery. The man, who is 47, has been in a comatose state since admitted to the hospital and in that condition he had remained about 48 hours before the seriousness of his ailment was realized.

Mary McLoughlin, of Washington, D. C., has sold the dwelling house at 7 Bishop court, to Mary A. Reardon.

An automobile, owned and operated by Lloyd D. Potter, 106 Green street, and a machine, owned and driven by Harry Johnson, 10 Reed street were in collision this afternoon on Ocean avenue, near the corner of Bellevue place. Both cars were damaged somewhat.

Three more New London motorists suffered the loss of operators' licenses this morning, temporarily, for Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel suspended them. The drivers are Harry Gridley, 813 Bank street, public service operator; Norman Thomas, 28 Cassett street and Joseph Silva, 145 Green street. The drivers were guilty of infractions of the automobile laws recently.

An automobile operated by Mrs. A. E. Payson, 249 Broadway, Norwich, was in collision this afternoon with an automobile, owned by John MacMullen, of Black Hall, which was standing beside the curb on State street. The machine operated by Mrs. Payson sustained the greater damage.

Latham, cashier of the New London City National bank, took place this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at Mr. Latham's residence, 42 Summit avenue and were attended by many mourners, among whom were representations of members of Northwest Hose company and Boy Scouts, for the welfare of which organizations Mr. Latham had been a faithful worker. Also present were the working force of the New London City National bank and the trustees of that institution. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First church. The bearers were Ira C. Avery and Alfred D. Forbes, senior and junior cashier, respectively, of the bank, City Manager William A. Holt, Boy Scout Executive Frederick E. Burdick, Arthur H. Shurts and J. Harry Meadnis. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Miss Corbin of New Britain, a daughter of the well known hardware manufacturer, a student at Connecticut college, was before the police court this morning, charged with a violation of the parking ordinance of the city. She was ordered into court for parking more than thirty minutes on State street. The officer who tagged the Corbin car was a bit too exact for Miss Corbin had overstayed the time limit by ten minutes. That was a natural error for her to make as in the city from which she comes automobiles are allowed to park for a period of forty minutes. Miss Corbin was of the opinion that she might park her car here forty minutes. The complaint was nolled as soon as the explanation was made.

Two companies of officers in the employ of the New Haven railroad, about 75 in number, paraded through State street this forenoon on the way to Morgan park where they were drilled in the duties of their position. They were dressed in dark-drab uniform and wore puttees, making a most favorable appearance as they passed along. The officers are uniformly young men, apparently capable of good service.

A decayed telephone pole on North Bank street is said to be in a condition that may lead to its falling, during a blow, or strain from other cause.

The police are of the opinion that the numerous arrests for violation of the traffic ordinances of the city during recent days will put a stop to defiance or disregard of the laws as to parking cars in the principal streets. The officers expect that the lesson has been learned and that violations will be few and far between in the future.

The drive for $8,000 for the Boy Scouts in New London netted about $2,000 the first day, and it is hoped that a like amount was subscribed today. The canvassers are making a determined effort to raise what is needed and are of the opinion that they will succeed.

Henry E. Hudson was fined $5 for violation of the traffic rules. He admitted that he saw signs giving warning, but he did not heed them. He paid his fine and went away wise as to the parking rules in this city. Mr. Hudson belongs in East Lyme.

The republican party pledges a continually and increasing solicitude for all those suffering any disability as a result of service to the United States in time of war. No country and no administration has ever shown a more generous disposition in the care of its disabled or more thoughtful consideration in providing a sound administration for the solution of the many problems involved in making intended benefits fully, directly and promptly available to the veterans.

"The confusion, inefficiency and maladministration existing heretofore since the establishment of this country agency has been cured and plans are being actively made looking to a further improvement in the operation of the bureau by the passage of new legislation. The basic statute has been so liberalized as to bring within its terms one hundred thousand additional beneficiaries. The privilege of hospitalization in government hospitals, as recommended by President Coolidge, has been granted to all veterans irrespective of the origin of disability and over fifty million dollars has been appropriated for hospital construction which will provide sufficient beds to care for all. Appropriations totalling over one billion one hundred million dollars made by the republican congress for the care of the disabled evidences the unmistakable purpose of the government not to consider costs when the welfare of these men is at stake. No legislation for the benefit of the disabled soldier proposed during the last four years by veterans' organizations has failed to receive consideration.

"We pledge ourselves to meet the problems of the future affecting the care of our wounded and disabled in a spirit of liberality, and with that thoughtful consideration which will enable the government to give to the individual veterans that full measure of care guaranteed by an effective administration machinery.

Conservation.

"We believe in the development, effective and efficient, whether of oil, timber, coal or water power resources of this government, only as needed and only after the public need has become a matter of public record, controlled with a scrupulous regard and ever vigilant safeguards against waste, speculation and monopoly.

"The natural resources of the country belong to all the people, and are a part of an estate belonging to generations yet unborn. The government policy should be to safeguard, develop and utilize these possessions. The conservation policy of the nation originated with the republican party under the inspiration of Theodore Roosevelt. We hold it a privilege of the republican party to build as a memorial to him on the foundation which he laid.

Education and Relief.

"The conservation of human resources is one of the most solemn responsibilities of government. There is an obligation which cannot be ignored and which demands that the federal government shall as far as lies in its power give to the people and the states the benefit of its counsel. * * * To meet these needs we approve the suggestion for the creation of a cabinet post of education and relief.

Universal mobilization in time of war: the nation should draft for its defense not only its citizens but also every resource which may contribute to success. The country demands that should the United States ever again be called upon to defend itself by arms the president be empowered to draft such material resources and such service as may be required, and to stabilize the prices of services and essential commodities, whether used in actual warfare or private activities.

Mining.

"The mining industry has experienced a period of depression as the result of the abnormal economic conditions, growing out of the war. This administration has accomplished much in improving the conditions affecting this great fundamental industry and pledges itself to continue its efforts in this direction.

Hawaii—Alaska.

"We favor a continuance for the territory of Hawaii; of federal assistance and in harbor improvements, the appropriation of its share of federal funds and the systematic extension of the settlement of public lands by the Hawaii race.

"We endorse th policy of the present administration in reference to Alaska and favor a continuance of the constructive development of the territory.

Immigration and Naturalization.

"We favor the adoption of methods which will exercise a helpful influence among the foreign population and provide for the education of the alien in our language, customs, ideals and standards of life. We favor the improvement of naturalization laws.

"In accepting the obligation which came to them with the control of the Philippine Islands, the American people has only the wish to serve, advance and improve the condition of the Filipino people. * * * A careful study of the conditions in the Philippine Islands has convinced us that the time for independence has not yet arrived.

Reclamation.

"Federal reclamation of the arid and semi-arid lands in the west has been the subject of intensive study in the department of the interior during the past fiscal year. New policies and methods of operation have been adopted which promise to insure the successful accomplishments of the objects sought. * * *

Commercial Aviation.

"We advocate the early enactment of such legislation and the taking of such steps by the government as will tend to promote commercial aviation.

Army and Navy.

"There must be no further weakening of our regular army, and we advocate appropriations sufficient to provide for the training of all members of the National Guard, the citizens' military training camps, the reserve officers' training camps, and the reserves who may offer themselves for service. We pledge ourselves to round out and maintain the navy to the full strength provided the United States by the letter and spirit of the limitation of armament conference.

The Negro.

"We urge the congress to enact at the earliest possible date a federal anti-lynching law so that the full influence of the federal government may be wielded to exterminate this hideous crime.

Orderly Government.

"The republican party reaffirms its devotion to orderly government under the guarantees embodied in the constitution of the United States. We recognize the duty of constant vigilance to preserve at all times a clean and honest government and to bring to the bar of justice every defiler of the public service in or out of office.

"Dishonesty and corruption are not political attributes. The recent congressional investigations have exposed instances in both parties of men in public office who are willing to sell official favor and men out of office who are willing to buy them in some cases with money and in others with influence.

"The sale of influence resulting from the holding of the public position or from association while in public office or the use of such influence for private gain or advantage is a perversion of public trust and prejudicial to good government. It should be condemned by public opinion and forbidden by law.

"We demand the speedy, fearless and impartial prosecution of all wrong doers, without regard for political affiliations: but we declare no greater wrong can be committed against the people than the attempt to destroy their trust in the great body of their public servants. Admitting the deep humiliation which all good citizens share; that our public life should have harbored some dishonest men, we assert that these undesirables do not represent the standard of our national integrity.

"The government at Washington is served today by thousands of earnest, conscientious and faithful officials and employes in every department. It is a grave wrong against these patriotic men and women to strive indiscriminately to besmirch the names of the innocent and undermine the confidence of the people in the government under which they live. It is even a graver wrong when this is done for partisan purposes or for selfish exploitation.

"The republican administration has already taken charge of the prosecution of official dereliction, and it will continue the work of discovering and punishing; but it will not confuse the innocent with the guilty, nor prostitute for party advantage the enforcement of the law.

Law and Order.

"We must have respect for law. We must have observance of law. We must have enforcement of law. The very existence of the government depends upon this. The substitution of private will for public law is only another name for oppression, disorder, anarchy and the mob rule.

"Every government depends upon the loyalty and respect of its citizens. Violations to the law weaken and threaten government itself. No honest government can condone such actions on the part of its citizens. The republican party pledges the full strength of the government for the maintainance of these principles by the enforcement of the constitution and all of laws. Vice president we urge them to elect to the senate and house of representatives men and women who believe in the republican principles, acknowledge party responsibility and who can be relied on to keep faith with the people by carrying out the programme which the republican party presents and pledges itself to fulfill."

HELPS MAKE RICH, RED BLOOD

There are thousands of people who are ageing and breaking down at a time of life when they should be enjoying that perfect health which carries defiance to disease simply because they are not awake to the condition of their blood. Without organic iron your blood carries no oxygen; and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food so what you eat does you no good. It is like putting coal into a stove without fire. You can now obtain organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples from any druggest under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active, living nerve force; it is, therefore, a true blood and nerve food. It helps create and rebuild new and stronger red blood cells. It feeds the body the substances which nerve force must have to give it that vital, electromagnetic power which is stored in the nerve and brain cells of man. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown men and women in two weeks time. The manufacturers guarantee successful results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, June 11.—Stock prices developed impressive strength in today's session o the stock market, one of the most active in recent weeks. Two dozen stocks established new high records for the year, including Union Pacific, Atchison, Texas & Pacific, Pere Marquette, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, International Paper and Missouri Pacific common and preferred.

Bullish sentiment was created by the continuance of easy money rates, the more optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews and indications that the republican national platform would contain planks favorable to business.

The reduction in the local federal reserve rediscount rate from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent. was not announced until after the market closed. While the main purpose of the change undoubtedly was to the bank rate more in line with the open market rates local bankers pointed out that it also places New York in a better position to compete with London for several of the international loans now pending.

[illegible] Steel common generally regarded as the market leader, closed [illegible] a point under its best. [illegible] Motors and Mack [illegible] Baldwin Locomotive, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Maryland Oil, Tobacco Products, Sinclair Oil and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Selling of large blocks of stocks, [illegible] of large [illegible] where [illegible] would [illegible] imparted impetus to the advance. Brokers also reported that several pools were operating, particularly in the [illegible] and [illegible] specialties.

[illegible] several announcements [illegible] the close, [illegible] while practically general, were most pronounced in the steels, public utilities, motors and tobaccos with sugar and copper stocks trailing behind because of lower commodity prices.

Call money held at 3 per cent. all [illegible] available up to [illegible] per cent., the highest on several years, while 4 and 4 1-2 per cent. were quoted at [illegible] accommodations to 4 Bank of England dealers reduced [illegible] per cent. on all maturities [illegible] thus [illegible] them to record [illegible] levels.

A [illegible] in foreign exchange, [illegible] that the resignation of Premier Millerand of France would hasten the acceptance of the Dawes report, was the feature of the foreign exchange market. The Paris franc jumped [illegible] points to around 5.40 cents with a [illegible] smaller gain being recorded [illegible] the Belgian currency which is now quoted slightly above 4 [illegible] cents. CASE AGAINST DWOJAKOWSKI IS NOLLED IN CRIMINAL COURT

The criminal session of the May term of the superior court, that has been in session in New London several weeks was concluded Wednesday afternoon when the final cases ready for trial were disposed of and the jury discharged. The first case to be disposed of was that of Bolesław Dwojakowski of this city, charged with carrying concealed weapons, the complaint having been made a few days ago to that charge from that of manslaughter. After brief testimony had been introduced, Public Defender Stewart made a motion that a nolle be entered on the ground of insufficient evidence. Judge Christopher L. Avery allowed the motion and Dwojakowski was discharged.

The other case disposed of was that of William McKenzie, Sprague, charged with forgery. McKenzie entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to a year in jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended and McKenzie placed in charge of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

The charge against Dwojakowski resulted from the fatal shooting of [illegible] Rozanski, also of Norwich, at the Lisbon club on the night of Jan. 26, last. The case was partially tried before a jury Wednesday morning, nolle being entered upon motion of Public Defender Charles L. Stewart, counsel for the boy, at the conclusion of testimony given by County Detective William Lewis, and State Policeman James Palmer, who investigated the case.

The case is the first of the present term in which the state failed to secure a conviction. The only evidence introduced by the prosecution to show that Dwojakowski carried a concealed weapon in the town of Norwich was that of the two officers, who told the court of the confession that the youth had made, in which he admitted carrying a gun from his home to meet Rozanski, Raymond Thompson, James Barry and another youth named Anderson in a pool room on Franklin square, Norwich. The testimony of the officers regarding the confession of the defendant showed that he had taken the gun from his home for the purpose of selling it to Rozanski. Under section 10 of the statute governing the carrying of concealed weapons, revolvers carried as merchandise are exempted from concealed classification. Inasmuch as the state was unable to introduce testimony other than that of the confession of the youth and because that it was unable to show that the revolver had not been carried for other than merchandise purposes, Judge Avery accordingly entered the nolle, stating however, that the defendant might be arrested on information charging with sale of a weapon without a license and arraigned in court in the September term.

The trial Wednesday morning was marked by frequent clashes between Attorney Edmund Perkins, Assisting Acting States Attorney Thomas E. Troland and Public Defender Stewart, the latter claiming that events occurring in Lisbon had no bearing on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon in Norwich, and that the line of questioning being followed by Attorney Perkins was highly prejudicial to the defendant, and was likely to at least by inference connect the defendant with the shooting of Rozanski.

Rozanski was shot during a brawl of some sort at the gun club in Lisbon on the night of Jan. 26, last. He died two days later. Dwojakowski was arrested charged with his murder. The charge was later changed to manslaughter, and when the state deemed the evidence insufficient to warrant a conviction on this charge submitted the charge on which he was arraigned Wednesday.

The case was one of the most peculiar and interesting that has occupied the attention of the court this session. The defendant's confession as related by the state officials showed that all members of the party had been drinking prior to leaving Norwich for Lisbon, and that more liquor had been consumed en route. At the gun club, Rozanski became intoxicated, and the defendant having sold the gun to him, became alarmed over the possibility of something happening in an intoxicated condition, and determined to get the gun away from him. State Policeman Palmer testified that Dwojakowski told him that Rozanski fell, and that he fell on top of him, but that he heard a shot as he was falling. The revolver was about a foot from the head of Rozanski, and the defendant picked it up, and thinking that someone might be accused of the shooting, started for the door to get rid of the gun. Several of the men present grabbed him, and one of them wrenching his arm, caused the gun to fly out of his hand and into the cloak room.

John Hird, coat checker at the club, testified that he had seen an object fly past him, and had called the attention of Constable Aubrey Potter to the same. Potter testified to finding the gun in the cloak room.

Although the shooting occurred on the night of the 26th, it was not until the following night that he was summoned, according to the testimony of Dr. William T. Driscoll of Norwich. The physician testified that he had been called by telephone to a house on Boswell avenue, where he found Rozanski in a critical condition. He had been told, he said, over the telephone that the man was suffering from an overdose of Jamaica ginger. His preliminary examination convinced him that something more serious was the matter with the man, and disrobing him, found a bullet wound in his back. He described operating on the victim of the shooting, and described the course the bullet took in penetrating Rozanski's body.

The statement of the defendant as related by the police officers, relative to the sale of the revolver, was that he had gone to his home at the request of Rozanski who wished to purchase the gun, early on the evening of the shooting, and while en route to Lisbon gave it to Rozanski, and the latter agreed to give him $4 at a later date.

TREASURE.

Wicken lies, a seaport town,
Where the fen land surges down,
Where the noisefem billows pour
Soft green color to the door
And the cottage panes look out
On green stillness round about.
Some are brown with thatches old,
Some are brown with shingles old,
Colors harmonizing well
Like the hues of tortoiseshell.
Wicken has a mighty store
Of profound and ancient lore
She can tell of treasure trove
Hid in marsh and dyke and drove,
Things most beautiful and fair
Dwelling undiscovered there:
Insects brilliantly gay
Rocked in flowers as bright as they,
Downy moths and butterflies
With the colors of the skies
Painted on their powdered wings,
Everything that crawls or clings
Hides among the waving sedge,
Lurks beside the water's edge.
Herons float across the mere
On horizons lemon-clear
Till their sweeping flight is stayed
Over pools of darkest jade,
On the sky-enamelled lode
Water lilies make a road
Set with pearls for suns to ride
To their rest at even-tide.
All these sights has Wicken known
Through the ages that have flown;
All this wonderful and rare
Lies, before her vision there
Till night draws her veils of rose
And then leepy eyelids close
And the night enfolds again
All the secrets of the fen

RUM-RUNNING CAR AFIRE NEAR SO. WILLINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 12.—Interval explosions and a blaze, at the entrance to the village of South Willington, attracted the attention of early risers Thursday morning, shortly after 4.30 o'clock. They investigated and found a deserted Packard twin six touring car, 1917 model, burning merrily. The machine had all the earmarks of being a rum-running car and the suspicions of the natives of the town were confirmed after the fire had died down and 33 five-gallon containers were found in the ruins. The alcohol which they had contained had gone up in flames. Word was sent to the state police barracks at Stafford Springs and Officer Henry Heinold was despatched to Willington. The registration markers were taken from the machine and they were found to be those of a car owned by a New Haven man. From out of the smouldering cushions and woodwork registration markers from other states were found. The wreckage was hauled to a garage at West Willington, by order of Officer Heinold.

YOUTH OF THE COUNTRY SPIRITUAL ILLITERATES

Storrs, June 12.—About 250 delegates were registered at the 24th annual Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, at Connecticut Agricultural College, this morning. This convention represents 100 affiliated clubs in the state, with a membership of 7624, a branch of the National Congress of Mothers.

After singing of the Mothers' hymn as the opening exercise of the afternoon session, Rev. E. P. Cutler, of East Hampton, made the invocation. This was followed by the address of welcome, by President Charles Lewis Beach, of the college. Miss M. E. Sprague, dean of women of the college, gave the greeting. The response was by Mrs. Francis Bolton, founder of the Connecticut Congress of Mothers.

Religious Education was the subject of the address for the afternoon, given by Professor William A. Weber of the International Council of Religious Education. He spoke of the growing tendency to separate religion from the school, and some of the disadvantages of such a separation, which tended to make the youth of the country spiritual illiterates. He outlined the plan that is in effect at Dayton, Ohio, where the children are allowed to receive religious education in their own faith as a regular part of their school work. He also spoke of the comparative amounts spent by the nation for religious education and luxuries.

Short talks were given by Walter Stemmons and A. J. Brundage, of the college staff, on the work and functions of the college. M. E. Alling, of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, explained to the congress the proposed church and community house for Connecticut Agricultural College. With the adjournment of the afternoon session, a tour of inspection was taken around the college campus.

TOOK AUTO WITHOUT PERMISSION OF OWNER

Willimantic, June 12. — Rockwell Lyons, 26, of Central Village, who pleaded guilty to breaking and entering in Moosup at the January session of the Windham county superior court, and was sentenced to one year in jail with sentence suspended and placed on probation for that time by Judge George E. Hinman, has again come into the limelight of police circles. Lyons violated his probation recently when he took an automobile without the owner's permission in Central Village and left the machine. He was fined $100 and costs May 9 last for driving while under the influence of liquor in connection with the accident.

The warrant was made out for his arrest this week on charges of violating the liquor law. County Detective William E. Jackson and Deputy Sheriff Frank C. Tillinghast of Central Village instituted a search for Lyons Tuesday. They were told by his brother that Lyons had left for Canada and would remain there for some time. A few hours after this Investigator Jackson received a tip that Lyons had friends in Hartford whom he might be visiting and Detective Hickey of Hartford was notified. Lyons was located in the Capitol city and Wednesday morning he was taken before Judge Hinman who was presiding over the superior court session in that city. Upon learning the facts of the case, Judge Hinman revoked the probation sentence which he had imposed and Lyons was committed to Windham county jail for one year, when the old sentence was put into force.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

As ever of public interest, the organization having so many friends and well wishers, the reports of the secretary, treasurer and visiting nurse of the Civic Federation are presented herewith this (Friday) morning. The federation has had a successful year and has been encouraged by the increased interest of the public in the great work it is doing for humanity:

Secretary's Eleventh Annual Report.

The Civic Federation comes to the end of the eleventh year of its organization with a feeling of optimism as to the future, because there has ademed to be an increasing realization among our people of the importance of the work that the federation is carrying on in this community. The proof of this lies in the fact that never was there been such a large return from tag day, never so large an amount realized from the sale of the Christmas seals as during the year now closing. The former gave $532.95 to the treasury, while the latter added $409.76 to the tuberculosis fund. These results were most gratifying to those who have the success of the work at heart. The detailed financial statement will be found in the treasurer's report.

The work of the nurse has maintained the efficiency of former years. The lines of work already established have been carried on; and at least one new one added. A total of 1136 nursing visits, and 308 social service calls would indicate that this part of the work has been adequately administered. The physical examinations in the public schools have been made as in the past with a total of 1036 children examined. Aproximately 100 hours have been given to this work. As a direct outcome of these examinations Miss Boomhower took ten children to the Day Kimball hospital for treatment at the throat clinic held last summer. Another direct result of the work in the schools has been the establishing of a dental clinic at which the teeth of 156 children have been examined. A notice is sent to the parents as to the conditions found and they are responsible for the further care. In this connection the federation would express its great appreciation to Dr. J. C. Maslen who has made the examinations free of charge. The teachers of the town have shown a splendid spirit of cooperation in the health work carried on in the schools and have given valuable assistance in all times.

The tuberculosis clinics have been held by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich. These have been well attended and the advantage derived by many from the advice of this specialist has been of incalculable value.

The visits to the Town farm have been continued during the year. Miss Boomhower has distributed Thanksgiving offerings and acted as chairman in the Girls' club in dispensing Christmas cheer.

That its outlook may not be confined to the limits of this community alone, the federation maintains its membership in the State Public Health Nursing Association. Miss Boomhower is also, under the authorization of the federation, a member of the welfare council of New London and Windham counties. She has attended this year a meeting of the New England Tuberculosis Association, and the yearly Organization of Public Health Nursing.

Some additions have been made to the equipment room so that at the present time there are two hospital beds completely equipped. A Betzco lamp has also been purchased this year and is available for the use of patients when deemed necessary by physicians. Other accessions to the supplies make it possible to meet all ordinary needs for sick room conveniences.

In addition to the money raised on Tag day and by the sale of the Christmas Seals, the federation would acknowledge the generous gifts of $100 from the Quinebaug company, $100 from the Goodyear company and $300 from the Danielson chapter of the Red Cross. We should also express our appreciation for improvements at the school made possible through the efforts of the health officials.

The present membership of the organization is 47 active members, 18 associate members. There have been 7 meetings and 1 executive board meting with an average attendance of 10.8.

It is with a feeling of great loss that we record the death of five members during the past year, Mrs. F. A. Jacobs, Judge and Mrs. M. A. Shumway, Mrs. C. A. Russell and A. H. Armington. Rarely if ever has there been the loss in one year of so many prominent in the life of the community, and so vitally interested in its welfare.

It is with keenest regret that we accept the decision of Mrs. E. H. Keach that she can no longer serve as president of the federation. For nine years she has worked with untiring zeal for the success of the organization. During all of these years she has never been absent from a meeting. To Mrs. Keach we accord our heartfelt appreciation for the splendid service she has rendered to the federation, and through it to the community. To her we trust has come the compensation of the realization of having rendered such service, for in the last analysis, do not those who best serve, most truly live.

To the Windham County Transcript and to The Norwich Bulletin thanks are due for the publicity given to the work of the federation from time time and appreciation of the real value of its work.

This, in brief, is the record of the past year of the work of the Civic Federation. Much that is most valuable cannot be made public because of its personal character. Many and many a one in this community has reason for genuine gratitude that there is a visiting nurse, and that there is a group of men and women who make her work possible. May not the federation have not only the money but the personal interest and cooperation of every individual in this town?

Graduating exercises held at the town hall Thursday afternoon marked the end of their grammar school studies for many eighth grade pupils in schools of the town of Killingly. Attendance was drawn from all communities of the town to this function. The hall was decorated, there was music by an orchestra, presentation of diplomas and other features that also will mark the high school graduation next week, all combining to give dignity beyond that known a few years since in this town to grammar school graduation. Of all this the public interested in the work of the schools was duly appreciative and found the program of the afternoon very interesting.

Prince is lost! The fact was broadcasted Thursday on the front page of a Boston daily, under double leaded headlines. Prince is a Doberman Pincher—sometimes referred to as a French police dog, a sleek, black creature that is the pet of Charlotte Bullard, daughter fo Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Bullard of 456 Beacon street, formerly of Danielson.

Romping about with his pal, Ginger, an Airedale, belonging to Miss Bullard, Prince went astray the first of the week. Failure to find him resulted in advertisements appearing in all the Boston and suburban papers Thrusday and featured news stories relative to him in some of the issues.

Special news value attaches to the search for Prince because Mr. Bullard has offered as a reward to any man, woman or child who returns him a five days' vacation on an 80 acre country estate, where there are stables, automobiles, an aeroplane, a two-acre pond and a trout brook, all of which indicates that the lucky finder of Prince may have his choice of a variety of diversions as compensation for bringing the missing dog back home.

Following is a list of the pupils to be graduated from St. James' school on Wednesday of next week:

English address, Margaret B. Monahan; French address, Pauline Chartier; French welcome address, Oliver Bessette; English welcome address, Louis Tetreault.

Mrs. Walter Anderson of Broad street is to have the members of the Roundabout club at her home for a meeting this (Friday) afternoon.

PUTNAM

The annual convention and meeting of the Windham County League of Women Voters, held in Odd Fellows' hall, Putnam, Thursday, drew together women from all parts of the county regardless of political party affiliation, a gathering of representative women, earnestly seeking to interest their sisters in obtaining the franchise by being made voters and in casting their ballot when that privilege has been secured by making application and being made.

At the business session reports were read and accepted and officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Mrs. William Valentine, Pomfret; vice chairman, Mrs. Francis U. Johnstone, Woodstock; secretary, Mrs. George Nichols, Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. S. B. Overlook, Pomfret; 25th senatorial district leader, Miss B. Stoutenburg; 29th senatorial district leader, Mrs. Charles O. Thompson, Pomfret.

Among the speakers were: Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, Hartford, Julia Margaret Hicks of Ohio, who spoke on "Preparation for the Fall Elections" and N. D. Light, director of Rural Education, whose theme was "Rural Schools and Their Problems."

Luncheon was served for the league members at noon. The afternoon session was open to the public.

In the course of the next few days Putnam Chamber of Commerce will begin sending out to members questionaires asking for three answers to the question—What in your opinion are the three most important things that the Chamber of Commerce should work for during the coming year? This is in accordance with a vote passed at the annual meeting. The replies will be analyzed by the directors and will be held strictly confidential so that members may express themselves freely on any subject. When it is determined what three things are suggested by the greatest number complete consideration will be given them and ways and means devolved to carry them into effect.

Every week requests are received for information regarding the advantages of Putnam as a location for the establishment of cotton manufacturing industries. These inquiries seem to refute the idea that New England is becoming obsolete as far as the cotton industry is concerned. Only a short time ago a manufacturer was shown about the city and all available mill properties were pointed out to him. The man is not seeking capital, but desires a small factory for the manufacture of fancy goods. The man was impressed with what he saw and will return again for a more detailed investigation.

Another manufacturer, looking for a site to manufacture woolen goods, will come to Putnam shortly, to make an investigation of local possibilities. Still another company is looking at the now idle Morse mill property. This concern is a large one and would have a long payroll. Its business is of a different kind from any now established here, but is closely allied to the cotton goods trade.

While present depression in the manufacturing business is deplored, the more optimistic believe the prospect is brightening.

Local horsemen are looking forward to the opening of the light harness season at Readville next week. After that the Bay State Short Ship circuit will get under way. The newly organized headquarters company of the 43 division, C. N. G., is using the hall at the municipal building for its first drills. It was reported that Union hall would be used, but a member of the Union Block corporation states that no steps have been taken to secure the large hall in the third story of Union block by military officers or state representatives. The men are taking keen interest in the company and are awaiting eagerly the arrival of their outfits, clothing, shoes, caps, rifles, etc. They purpose to be in readiness for the summer camp and in order that this may be accomplished intensive drilling will be kept up for a month or more as many of the recruits have never before had military service and are unfamiliar with military tactics, both as to the manual of arms and the positions of a soldier.

Alderman Simeon LaRose has become a member of Putnam's finest. He was sworn in as a policeman by Mayor Victor Chapdelaine the first of the week and has just been assigned to night duty by Captain William Jarvis. LaRose has lived in Putnam most of his life and was at one time a motorman for the Connecticut Company. The fact that Patrolman Ryan is on leave of absence and that vacation time is approaching has somewhat crippled the department and this led to the new appointment.

Hayward, formerly of Putnam and a graduate of Putnam high school, a sophomore at Dartmouth, has won a managerial position for next year in the Dartmouth athletic organization. Each successful sophomores is then assigned to one of the various teams as manager for the coming year. The assignments are announced at the commencement exercises next week at which time Mr. Hayward's position will be known. In view of the stiffness of the competition such an appointment is considered a high college honor. Mr. Hayward will sail Saturday for Europe with fifteen of his classmates who will make up a crew on a cattle boat crossing from Montreal. He will spend most of the summer in France.

CHOOSING COOLIDGE.

With the calm assurance that it was naming the man of the hour in the republican ranks, the national convention at Cleveland has nominated Calvin Coolidge to be its candidate for president. The nomination was by a majority so overwhelming as to be an unmistakable endorsement of the man and his policies of the past and likewise of the future as expressed in the platform upon which he has consented to run for election.

From the time Mr. Coolidge sent his first message to congress last December the public recognized a different type of voice in public affairs and that it was welcomed became significantly apparent as soon as the early primaries were held and his candidacy was endorsed in states that were supposed to be hostile. For honesty of purpose, for courage and for high devotion to the welfare of his country he has steadily gained the confidence of the people and has become the opportunity and the hope of his party.

To General Charles G. Dawes of Ohio, nationally known as the man who under President Harding worked out the budget system for the government, and internationally known for his report on German reparations, goes the second place on the ticket, a fit running mate for his inspiring leader.

CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT.

All political organizations in the country long have been committed to the idea of an amendment to the federal constitution that would empower congress to deal adequately with the evil of child labor. It is pretty certain that public sentiment overwhelmingly favors some anti-child labor amendment. The approval of congress to the submission of the proposed amendment to the state legislatures, makes it incumbent upon the citizens of every state to study the language of the amendment and satisfy themselves as to the chances of abuse and pervasion in child labor legislation.

As the amendment stands it gives congress authority "to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age." It is worth while to inquire whether this will be anti-child labor legislation or practically anti-work legislation for all under 18. Even lifelong advocates of proper protection for childhood have severely criticised this sweeping grant of power. Under it are manifestly possible all manner of absurd regulations and prohibitions covering robust boys and girls on farms and in city life, high school and college students and others. Just why congress has ignored rational objections and refused to modify that section has not been explained. It may be that no convincing explanation can be given.

It is easy to claim that congress will never go to preposterous lengths in framing laws under the proposed federal amendment and that its prohibitions and regulations will always be reasonable. But that is assuming a good deal. There is no occasion to confer upon congress the power to do serious mischief when careful use of language can avoid that peril.

There is no occasion for state legislatures to be stampeded over the child labor amendment. The submitted resolutions demands full consideration. Objectors to it are not to be considered as enemies of childhood nor as objecting to a rational amendment directed at child labor in injurious forms and under injurious conditions.

MILLERAND RESIGNS.

In Sir Henry Maine's book on "Popular Government" he says that there is "no living functionary who occupies a more pitiable position than the French president. The president of the United States governs, but he does not reign. It has been reserved for the president of the French republic neither to reign nor yet to govern." In view of the forced resignation of President Millerand this week this sentence is worth consideration.

What were the causes that resulted in the expulsion of M. Millerand, for expulsion it was? These are more easily alleged than proved. To the Americans, looking at events from a distance, it seems as though the Left parties in the chamber and the senate had caused this step simply because they had insisted on having their own way. For a politically-minded man in his best years, the French presidency is not an ideal position. It yields honor rather than opportunity. As a careful student of the French constitution, M. Millerand realized that a strict construction of its letter gives the president of France much more power than the eleven incumbents of this office have exercised, but most of these presidential powers had fallen into disuse. It appears that when he tried to revive some of these powers, he was forced out by parliamentary groups, although up to now he had moved he had control of the upper house and evidently intended to dissolve the chamber of deputies with the consent of the senate.

M. Painleve or M. Herriot may be premier and M. Gaston-Doumergue may become president of the republic. He is a very able man from the south of France, and should he be chosen Americans will wish him success, as they wish success to France as an ancient friend and ally. But good wishes and pleasant words will not obliterate the fact that France has treated a plain element of her Constitution as a negligible quantity, a proceeding which English-speaking countries would regard with aversion and as quite wrong.

At a time when nothing but fear holds Germany back from a reversion to type, it is unfortunate that the Left wing in France has obliged it with a demonstration of the ease with which the head of the state can be thrown out. That the action has been accompanied with loud protestations about unconstitutional ministries, simply proves that it makes a difference who discusses the constitution. But we await M. Millerand's letter and the cooler reflections of representatives of a people that has much intelligence.

SALUTING THE FLAG.

With the approach of Flag Day, it is timely to observe that the people seem to be losing that keen edge of showing respect for the flag that was emphasized during the war period. In the celebration of Memorial day in Norwich it was apparent that the civilians who paid any attention to the flag when it was borne past them in the parade were the exception rather that the rule. What was all too evident in Norwich was likewise observed in other places. This sort of disrespect to the flag roused the indignation of a congressman in Washington so much that he rushed over to the house and introduced a bill requiring civilians in the District of Columbia to salute the American flag when it is carried past them in review in a parade. "If the people will not be patriotic on their own account, the government should make it mandatory," he declared.

The congressman is not the only person who has noted with regret that probably a majority of the people fail to render proper honors to the flag. Neither are Norwich and Washington the only places where this occurs. During the war when the etiquette of patriotism was a matter of general public interest, the flag was carried down the street between lines of uncovered men. But the war passed into history and with it the fervent patriotism of war times. A law will not restore the flag-saluting patriotism. There are other and better ways.

Few people make any visible signs of reverence for the flag unless they have been instructed in the proper formality. As a rule, younger people are careful of their salutes and proud to pay their respects. Their attitude cannot be improved by law, and a law would probably mean nothing to those who have not been instructed or are not influenced by examples of courtesy which they see all about them. Patriotism that is genuine needs no law to compel respect for the flag. It comes from an inborn feeling of respect, which is a quality too precious to be strengthened by police pressure.

EASY GOVERNMENT BORROWING

Announcement by the United States treasury that its June 15 borrowing of $150,000,000 will bear interest at only 3 3-4 per cent showed the lowest rate at which this government, or any other government, has been able to borrow since the World war. So low a return came as a surprise but subscriptions are coming in at such a rate as to indicate heavy over-subscription. Private borrowings of money for a six months' period have been ruling at about 3 3-4 per cent in the New York market, but the treasury department offering has the advantage of freedom from the normal tax so that the yield is equivalent to about 3.05 per cent on the best grade of private paper.

Sidelights on the condition of the treasury and of industry are provided by both the low interest rate and the smallness of the offering, both of which were surprises. In the low rate is seen a reflection of the decline in production in the last four months. The consequence has been that funds have accumulated in treasuries with a consequent heavy demand for short-term investments and a lower interest rate. An early effect of the government's low borrowing rate may be seen in a reduction in the rate for private borrowing.

That only $150,000,000 will be required by the treasury was also a surprise. Maturities on June 15 and 16 total $522,000,000. The current loan will produce $150,000,000, the British government will pay $69,000,000 on account of its war borrowings, and the balance will come from the treasury surplus. Obviously, that surplus must be larger than the original estimates of the treasury in connection with the tax reduction program. The balance of the maturities to be met is $303,000,000. The June 15 income tax payments will be sharply cut by the tax reduction. Consequently a margin of more than the $20,000,000 deducible from the treasury estimates of a $323,000,000 surplus, must be in hand. Officials decline to give closer figures, but rough estimates place it at about $400,000,000.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sad times are ahead for the moth in the bathing suit.

The prohibition party is to take a new lease of life, feeling perhaps that you never can tell.

It seems queer that Gilbert Means should tell so many of them when he is sure to get caught at it.

Among the nation's heroes we should designate those who try early June sea bathing this season.

Even yet there may be skeptics who suspect that the aridity at Cleveland was mostly on the surface.

At any rate, it will help some to figure something off on your income tax installment that is due this week.

It couldn't have been more modesty that prevented Senator La Follette from adding to his seven planks the one that he is most deeply interested in, viz: La Follette.

THE REAL THING -

"My!" commented the pert and pretty hairdresser when she could stand it no longer. "You haven't got any of your diamonds on today, Mrs. Scadsleigh! Why, I can't remember seeing any on you for the longest time—I'll never forget the three big stones and the one with the long emerald and diamonds and—"

"The idea!" commented the customer in tones a trifle amused. "You certainly made an inventory, Clara! I guess that day I was going to a party somewhere. I shouldn't think of wearing any jewelry these days with holdup men sticking pistols in one's face at every corner! No, what jewelry I have is safely put away!"

"Well, now what do you think of that!" cried the pert and pretty hairdresser, applying the shampoo vigorously. "Seems to me that the folks who have jewelry don't get any more fun out of it than the ones who don't own any! Why, I read the other day about Lady Somebody in England who owned the most expensive string of pearls in the land and she keeps them in the bank all the time."

"The article said that what she wore all the time was a hundred and fifty dollar string that was a copy of the real ones and that she didn't have to worry about.

"Now that looks like poor business to me! If you own some beads that set you back half a million dollars what's the use of trying to kid yourself and everybody else along on an imitation string? Why not reverse the hypnotism—wear the hundred and fifty dollar string and make yourself believe it cost an awful wad and have the half million to spend on something else—a yacht for instance? If you own a yacht you just can't keep it locked up. If I owned a yacht you can believe I'd be on it all the time traveling around everywhere and just taking it easy! I'd invite all my friends and be awfully popular! Did you ever own a yacht, Mrs. Scadsleigh?"

"Well, no," the customer said in somewhat muffled tones, due to the towels being briskly applied to her head. "We had a little launch up in the country but we got rid of it. Whenever we wanted to go out on the lake the engine was always taken apart and lying all over the boathouse and the man was always so surprised to find we had chosen that day to want to use the boat. If only we had wanted to go out the day before or two days later it would have been alright. Or else the do-funny that lets the gas through was broken and it would be ten days before a new one could be shipped. Or that the house party we were entertaining simply hated the water and wouldn't go in the boat—they would just love to sit quietly on the veranda while Mr. Scadsleigh and I went out and not to stay home on their account, please!

"It seemed as though there always was something to interfere with our pleasure in the launch and so we decided we might just as well sell it and buy a bond with the price."

"Well, I declare!" Clara cried, somewhat dashed, turning on the hat air dryer vigorously. "I suppose a real yacht with cabins and everything would be lots worse! Lots of times last summer a gentleman friend of mine and I used to take the boat that runs from the pier out to Jackson park, and my, but it was grand! Maybe it was better than really owning a yacht and having all the trouble of strikes and new sails and engines or cretonne for the parlor.

"There was quite a long time when I decided I never would bother with a gentleman friend who didn't own a yacht or a diamond mine or something like that. I told Oscar there simply was no use in talking matrimony to me unless it meant a hotel in town and a country estate and European tours when my head ached and things like that. He certainly was broken up, that boy!"

"That was rather rough on the young man," said the customer. "Lots of people who go to Europe are simply delighted to get back home! And you can't get maids for love nor money for a summer home at the lake! If you really liked the young man I think you were foolish——"

"Oh, no, I wasn't!" the pert and pretty hairdresser confided with a blush. "After I saw Oscar for the first time out with another girl I came out of my trance—and we're going to get married this June! Somehow, I don't mind a bit that we hafta begin housekeeping in two rooms on installment furniture and won't even own a newsboy! Aint it queer what love does for you, though!"

"It certainly it," agreed the customer, now completely marcelled. "In June! I'd like to send you something, Clara—how about a string of those artificial pearls all the girls wear?"

"If you don't mind," said the pretty hairdresser with shining eyes, "I'd just love some aluminum things for my kitchenette instead! My, but it's going to be fun cooking things!"—Chicago News.

Farrell, The Mill Laborer

Born in New Haven, Conn., the home of Yale college, James A. Farrell planned for years to have a complete education, but had to give up his dreams and don overalls.

His father was a ship owner and captain and the boy's hours in school and on the vessels were happy ones. The elder Farrell was lost at sea and the lad, then 15, had to leave grammar school, abandon hope of attending college and work as common laborer in the New Haven wire mill. He labored 12 hours a day and studied at night.

When 18 he became a mechanic, two years afterward went to the Oliver Iron and Steel Company's plant at Pittsburgh as expert wire drawer and when 21 was foreman over 300 men in the mill.

But he wanted to be a salesman; he studied night to prepare and when 23 he was on the road for the company. Three years later he was selling wire for the Pittsburgh Wire company of Braddock, Penn., and at 30 was its general manager.

His appointment came in 1893, and the panic soon hit hard. He could not sell steel in this country so went abroad and booked orders. For three years he worked day and night to build the business. Then John W. Gates and associates merged into the American Steel & Wire company, and made Farrell foreign sales agent of the organization.

The company became a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation and Farrell made a record as president of the United States Steel Products Company, foreign sales representative of all United States Steel products.

When 47 he was elected president of the United States Steel Corporation and he had been so self-effacing and so busy studying, that he was practically unknown outside the steel trade. But when the United States government brought suit against the corporation he was found to know every fact about steel, its fields and possibilities.

He still is president of the steel company, is rich and is respected as the father of this country's export business.

Tomorrow—Lady Astor's Difficulties Were Many

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., retired, who has stirred naval circles again with his outspoken views on American sea fighting efficiency, has on more than one occasion differed with the powers at Washington on the subject of naval efficiency and the methods by which the deficiencies of the U. S. navy should be rectified. Admiral Fiske had a long and distinguished career as an officer of the navy, filling the post of aid for operations in the navy department at the time of his retirement from active service in 1915. As an inventor of valuable naval devices and equipment he has become known in naval circles throughout the world. He was born at Lyons, N. Y., 78 years ago today, and graduated second in his class at Naval Academy in 1874. He was navigator of the Petrel in the battle of Manila Bay and was reported by Admiral Dewey for heroic conduct." Admiral Fiske's criticisms have always attracted attention, owing to his reputation as an authority on naval policy and strategy and tactics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Puts Faith in Coolidge.

Mr. Editor: "Make us eternal truths receive, and practice all that we believe," Many today are staggered by the attitude toward the use of intoxicating drinks taken by President Butler of Columbia college.

Naturally there are many who have not had the time to study into the subject who think that such a prominent man in the intellectual world must know whereof he speaks. They do not take into consideration that even such a man may be very learned along his line of work and at the same time be quite ignorant along other lines quite as important as his. This is an age of experts. No man's opinion can be taken upon any great subject unless it has been proven to be correct. When we place Mr. Butler's opinion upon the subject of alcoholic drinks by the side of the physiologist, neurologists, pharmacologists and chemists appointed by the British Medical Research council that has brought to bear upon the drink question the latest scientific knowledge and judgment concerning the effect of alcohol on human beings we realize how important it is to receive our informations from one who has made a study of the subject and can speak authoratively. The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal says of the judgment passed by this committee of experts "that it leaved one dominant impression on the reader that the effect of alcohol on the average individual is to remove in varying degrees the normal mental control of thoughts and actions which he habitually exercises."

Do we need any stronger reason for condemning the use of alcoholic drink in any form? Where can we find more convincing information than what these experts have given us? The most charitable view we can take of Mr. Butler's emphatic endorsement of alcoholic drinks is that he was ignorant of the deleterious effect of it upon the human system and are rejoiced to see that many of the students under his care have repudiated his opinion.

The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal pronounces the work of these experts to be "the most valuable contribution to the subject up to the present." When scientific experts declare that alcoholic drinks are an evil and play an enormously important part in the economic and social life of the world it behooves us to take notice and do our part to turn the scale against it for beverage purposes and proclaim it far and wide as an enemy of the home, of the family and civilization. The wide world of politics is awake to the importance of this question and is watching and waiting to see what the political parties are going to do about it. It is a tremendous and thrilling event in politics.

Thank heaven, we have in the White House a man who has a clear vision and courageous heart. He vetoed the "light wine and beer bill," when he was governor of Massachusetts and we have every reason to believe that he will not compromise with any party that seeks to restore this noxious traffic.

President Coolidge sees clearly that liberty is under the dominion of a refined restraint and will never sink his soul in a coarse sentiment. He will never forget that his responsibility to the people is the salt that redeems his own character. We can trust him in this hour of great need, as the man that God has raised up to accomplish a certain work.

In his book, "The Price of Freedom," he has summed up his creed, "We do not need more material development, we need more spiritual development. We do not need more intellectual power, we need more moral power. We do not need more knowledge, we need more character. We do not need more government, we need more culture. We do not need more law, we need more religion. We do not need more of the things that are seen, we need more of the things that are unseen."

This is the man we need to be our president for the next four years.

Observations at Norwich.

Mr. Editor: Having found good food and a place to sleep I am still in your busy city, which I look over within the city limits. I find that all merchants in the clothing and shoe stores are offering goods very cheap and are looking for business. I think this business is stocked up with goods to a large extent. I heard a grocery merchant say that he did the largest business last week he ever did in Norwich. Down the Thames river at the foundry several hundred men are very busy. I find a large number of fine bungalows over the city line are being erected.

The weather being very wet and cold, I notice that Hamilton avenue has the most and best advance in the raising of early vegetables where market gardening is done and a fine location for future development in this line. I find as I go down the Thames river at the south line is a large lot of improvements both with the land and buildings on both sides of West Thames street and vicinity. Perhaps one of the attractive places of Norwich may be up Boswell avenue on the corner line which leads to Mohegan park. After the trolley car stops there is a good road to this beautiful spot where you can go by walking or riding with the latest ways of traveling. Here man has been improving the beautiful forest, where fine roads and nice walks are laid out; by beautiful lakes and ponds. A fountain can be put in operation by gravity. This place has a high wire fence and contains wild animals, buildings with monkeys and birds of different kinds. Buildings of different kinds are here and a fine chance to have good bathing which is the most attractive thing in the summer time. By the co-operation of all the good people of the city and the surrounding country, we think this location can be made one of the finest in the world.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Where American Fliers Leave Japan.

"When America's round-the-world aviators leave Japan they will fly away from Kagoshima, the city where Christian missionaries first landed in Nippon nearly three centuries ago," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The arrival of the missionaries followed close upon the accidental discovery of Japan by Portuguese sailors who drifted too far eastward and landed on a small island south of Kyushu, which is the southernmost of the five central islands of the Japanese group.

"These events later made Nagasaki, Kyushu city which the aviators are using as a supply base, the only communication port with the outside world during the centuries that Japan preserved her hermitage. When all other nationalities were rigidly excluded from Nagasaki the Dutch were allowed to remain, though they were under strict surveillance.

"Today Nagasaki is the San Francisco of the oriental Pacific. Its dockyard is the oldest in Japan, historically, and the most modern in its equipment. Along a waterfront of a mile and a half ships come and go, electrically driven cranes busily load and unload, only the coaling reminds one he is in a land of cheap labor and no labor unions. Above the clatter of machinery. The puffing of the engines, and the shrieks of whistles, sound the shrill cries of men and women who pass baskets along an endless human chain from barge to steamerhold. The visitor is surprised to see women at manual labor, and shocked when he espies some with children strapped to their backs.

"One American writes: 'The sight reminded me of the passage in the Aeneid where the poet speaks of the ants as tiny toilers of giant industry, and describes them as carrying crumbs in their mouths to the common storehouse in a seemingly never-ending line.'

"Nagasaki rises upon terrace after terrace to the quiet beauty of the mountains on which it is built. Her residential sections partake of the eternal calm and poise of the older Orient.

"Since the Orient is famed for its bazaars—and there are some extensive ones in Nagasaki—our flying visitors may be surprised to find as they stroll through her streets specialty shops which outspecialize those of Fifth avenue. There are confectionery establishments featuring sponge cake, fruit stores where loquats and oranges only are sold, umbrella shops, washing powder dealers, and a fish store wholly given over to dried fish roe.

"Another surprise awaits them if they attend a Nagasaki theatre. The orchestra seats are missing; the main floor is taken up with the sunken boxes which make it look like a cross-section of a honeycomb. But cutting through these boxes and running the entire length of the theatre is a stage extension which, architecturally, is precisely like the 'runway' affected by Broadway 'revue' productions.

"In Suwa Koen park, famous for its camphor trees and pines, and its 'New Year Day Cherry Trees,' named for the time of their blooming, is a statue of General Grant in memory of his visit there in 1879. Another statue memorializes Dr. Siebold, an Austran who, only about 50 years earlier, brought to Japan the first inklings of western medical science. The city's best monument to him, however, is the extensive hospital he founded, which now has 42 buildings.

"Amid steam hammers, boiler yards, shipbuilding and heavy hauling, Nagasaki preserves her quaint festivals. Curiously, the outstanding celebration, just concluded, is an aerial event—a kite-flying fete. Every spring the children, and many of their older folk, throng the parks and streets and outlying hillsides, each grasping a kite string. These strings are coated with ground glass or emery powder and the object is to cut your neighbor's kita string by rubbing your cord against his.

"In July is the feast of lanterns, an occasion upon which ancestors are supposed to revisit their homes, so lights are hung at their graves to help them find the way. Since the hills, rising amphitheatre like from the harbor, are strewn with graveyards, the city becomes a vast illuminated bowl.

"Another aeronautical coincidence is the legend concerning the founding of Japan. Hikoko no Minigi, which is to say, Rice-Ears of Ruddy Plenty, was delegated by the gods to govern Japan. The ancient chronicles relate that he made his journey from his celestial abode to his earthly mandate by descending 'shut up in the floating bridge of Heaven.'

The area of Kyushu is about that of Maryland and Delaware; its population is 3,000,000. Nagasaki has some 175,000 people; Kagoshima has 63,000. The island is an exceedingly productive area, raising tobacco, sugar cane and sweet potatoes, with an important use of the latter is for making a sort of distilled liquor.

"From this island comes the famous Satsuma porcelain, made mainly in a suburb of Kagoshima, and also the Satsuma horses, a highly prized breed in Japan."

This is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. This is what she wrote:
"Gentlemen:
I am so wonderfully happy over my discovery, I feel I must tell the world about it. For years I have been ill continually from constipation, always resorting to pills or the like, never having any permanent relief until I heard of your Krumbled Bran.
Every morning I take two tablespoonfuls before my breakfast—and since the latter part of August I must admit have not experienced one sick spell which I have had for years. I have started my little girl of four years on your Bran, and already I have noticed a change in her. I thank you."

PLAINTIFF AWARDED $760.18 AS COMMISSION FOR STORE SALE

A verdict of $760.18 for the plaintiff in the case of Cornelius P. Donahue of New London against Alton T. Miner, also of New London, was brought in by the jury in the superior court shortly after noon Thursday. The verdict of $760.18 represents the plaintiffs commission of 5 per cent. plus interest on the sale of the defendants store in New London last spring. Trial of the case was started before Judge John R. Booth and the jury Wednesday. Attorney Philip Z. Hankey made the argument for the defendant Thursday morning and the argument for the plaintiff was made by Attorney John C. Geary. At the close of the arugments Judge Booth charged the jury and they retired to the jury room.

After deliberating something over an hour, the jury returned with a verdict for the plaintiff of 5 per cent. of the sale price plus interest from the date of the sale. The judge instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the actual amount due the plaintiff. This the jury did, fixing the amount at $760.18.

The action was brought for alleged failure of the defendant to pay to the plaintiff the commission for the sale of the store.

In the afternoon the trial of the case of Lambert vs. the town of Norwich was started before a jury.

A party of one thousand grangers traveling by auto will visit Connecticut on Sunday, August 17th, coming from Yonkers, N. Y., and spending the afternoon and night at New Britain. Preparation is being made by a committee of the state grange and the New Britain Chamber of Commerce to extend the hospitality of our state to these visitors. Official escort of the state grange will meet the caravan at the state line near Danbury and will guide it, followed by Connecticut grange members, to Waterbury, Southington and New Britain for dinner. FIFTH AVENUE PURCHASE THROUGH CHAS F. NOYES CO.

A New York paper said Thursday: Frederick Brown, the operator, who sailed for Paris on Tuesday, now controls one of the largest unbuilt Fifth Avenue plots assembled this year. Mr. Brown purchased 1,034 yesterday with an L to 1 East Eighty-fourth street. The plot measures 20 by 125 feet on the avenue and 10 by 82 feet on the street. It was sold by Herbert D. Robbins through the Charles F. Noyes company, his brokers.

The same brokers recently sold to Mr. Brown for Joseph F. Cullman and others 1,035, 1,036, 1,037 and 1,038 Fifth avenue and 2 East Eighty-fifth street, in addition to 4 and 6 East Eighty-fifth street, giving Mr. Brown a plot with a frontage 122.2 feet on the avenue, 164 feet on Eighty-fifth street and a 10-foot outlet on Eighty-fourth street. Mr. Noyes also arranged the cancellation, by a large cash payment, of a two-year lease on 1,034 Fifth avenue, held by Mark Temple Dowling, president of the Puritan Mortgage company.

It is understood the plot will be improved with a fifteen-story apartment house, upon which a builder is now making estimates. The operation will involve $5,000,000.

INFORMAL RECEPTION AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Members of the Central Baptist church held an informal reception Thursday evening in Bushnell chapel in honor of Rev. and Mrs. David A. Pitt and ninety-nine new members, taken into the church fold during the past year. The occassion was also in celebration of the third anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Pitt in this city.

The reception was held following the regular weekly prayer meeting led by Rev. Dr. Pitt. During the service Dr. Pitt by use of the blackboard chart covered briefly the work done in the church during his pastorate. The chart showed items in part as follows, all of which were most gratifying: New members received during the past three years, 209. Total current expense offerings for 3 years, $43,823.75. Total benevolence offerings for 3 years, $44,905.29. Trust funds received, $11,125. Amount received from departments, with two exceptions, $120,840.57. Average amount received in all departments, except two in past 3 years, $40,280.19.

A new organ has been installed in the church, two new furnaces replace the old ones which had worn out, the church provided an automobile for the use of the pastor in his work, the parsonage has been repainted and improved and there has been a $4,000 decrease in the indebtedness of the church, a showing which the members may well take pride in having accomplished in three years time.

In speaking of his three years as pastor of the Central Baptist church, Dr. Pitt stated that the record of church activities was most gratifying. "It isn't so much the figures," he said, "it's the many friendships that have been made during the past three years. At the end of the first three years of the ministry of Jesus little was shown in the way of money or converts made, but He had made a host of friends."

The reception to Dr. and Mrs. Pitt and the 99 new members followed this session and proved a most successful and enjoyable occasion. Refreshments were served and there was music by Swahn's orchestra which was appreciated.

During the course of the evening Mrs. Pitt was presented a bouquet of carnations by the Woman's League, and as an anniversary gift Dr. Pitt was presented a number of essays on "The Programme of the Church for the Next Sixteen Years."

The decorations in the chapel were [illegible] Charles W. Burton and her committee, the refreshments being served by Mrs. Henrietta Tefft and committee, while Mrs. Allyn L. Brown was general chairman. Dr. Pitt received many congratulations on the anniversary of his pastorate.

GAVE MINSTREL SHOW AT GARDEN PARTY

The big Hippodrome and Garden Party conducted under the auspices of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women came to a successful close Thursday evening after a run of two days in the grounds of the new [illegible] Knights of Columbus home on Broadway, the proceeds of the party being most gratifying to the members who had worked so hard for its success. The patronage Thursday night was larger than on Wednesday evening and every one of the nine booths was kept busy throughout the evening. Articles for sale were readily disposed of, netting a large sum for the council, to be used in their regular charitable work.

The activities for the day began during the afternoon a special attraction being the doll carriage parade at 5 o'clock, participated in by nearly 50 little girls. The children were admitted into the grounds without charge. Over 500 enjoyed the treat, trying their luck in the fishpond which was in charge of Miss Margaret Coughlin, and at the grab-bag which was in charge of Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll and Miss Mary Hartle.

Shortly before 5 o'clock the judges arrived for the doll carriage parade and the children were soon in line. They slowly passed the stand, afforded a most attractive picture. Winifred Kilroy took first prize with her entry, winning a box of candy. Second prize, a pail and shovel went to Frances King and third prize, a doll was awarded to Pauline Curran. The parade was in charge of Mrs. Joseph T. Burns, with Mrs. W. K. Tingley, general chairman.

In the evening the programme opened with another fine concert by the Italian-American Band, Inc., directed by Prof. Pasquale Puca, and shortly after 8 o'clock St. Patrick's Boy Scouts presented their minstrel show, which proved a hit and held the attention of a delighted audience for about an hour. The minstrels were given under the direction of Rev. Rocco Guerriero and John P. Corcoran.

[illegible] minstrels [illegible] business [illegible] ly everything for sale had been disposed of before the party came to an end.

Napoleon's Original Tomb.

The original tomb of Napoleon at St. Helena has been [illegible] in state of disrepair since the [illegible] to the Invalides in Paris, according to a letter received from a recent visitor to that remote island. ROTARAINS TAME LIONS IN ONE-SIDED GAME AT ACADEMY CAMPUS, 29 TO 11

Dusk fell on a field marked with the spikes of the players of the Battery B and the Yantic Grain teams, who just fought a thrilling seven inning battle in which the Yantic boys were beaten 5-7. The grandstand was filled and several scores of rabid fans lined the fouls lines to cheer on their favorites. Great interest is being taken in this year league of after supper games on account of the new Duwell field which is within easy walking distance of the city. Many fans boast of having seen all three games and express their intention to see a [illegible] possible.

Kegler, the right-handed twirler for the Yantic gram outfit, set out in the first inning to set a world's record for the number of men walked. He succeeded in passing three, but then settled down to pitch as pretty a game as one could wish to see. Of course patrons Kegler got ten via the [illegible] and would have won going, if [illegible] support to speak of. Both Russell and Foley scored. [illegible] big husky from the country, [illegible] cracked drive at Regin, who knocked [illegible] down in self defense and threw out Lasonde at first. AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

FEEDING THE HENS

The right sort of feed is one of the important things in success with a flock of hens. A favorite ration with one poultry raiser is one recommended by the poultry department of a western university. This ration is in two parts. The first part is a grain or scratch feed, to be fed in a deep litter; the second part is a dry mash, to be fed in some sort of a self-feeder. The scratch feed is composed of the following grains in the amounts indicated: Corn, 100 pounds; wheat, 100 pounds, and oats, 50 pounds. The dry mash is compounded as follows: Bran, 50 pounds; shorts, 50 pounds, and 3 pounds of 60 per cent. tankage. In the winter months it is time to feed two pounds of the scratch feed to one pound of dry mash. With the approach of the summer months the proportion of grain to mash is gradually decreased until the hens are getting about the same amounts of both kinds of feed.

POTATO CULTIVATING

It is now becoming the custom of many farmers and backyard gardeners to practice covering their potatoes as they sprout from the ground. Most farmers cover twice. This is done for two reasons; first, for protection from late frosts; second, to [illegible] more roots in the soil so that [illegible] finally do come through and are allowed to grow, roots will furnish much food for them. The vines will grow faster than they would have if they had not been covered. Generally, a covering of two inches is sufficient, then the [illegible] rolled or dragged so that [illegible] not be too high in the [illegible]

[illegible] who are getting the best [illegible] find it best to spray or dust [illegible] before to prevent blight and [illegible] use it. The spray most generally used on a commercial scale is the home-made Bordeaux which contains five pounds of blue vitriol and five pounds of lump lime to 50 gallons of water. To this is added four pounds of dry lead arsenate powder when the Colorado potato bugs are much in evidence. If only a few are present, however, probably two pounds of dry lead arsenate to 50 gallons of Bordeaux will suffice for their control. This should be put on with a pressure of at least 75 pounds, 150 pounds pressure is preferable. The finer the mist the more the Bordeaux will stick to the leaves of the potato vine. Some people use a barrel spray pump, while others use the knapsack sprayer. The latter method, however, does not give nearly as satisfactory results. To control blight it is necessary to spray at least six times during the season. As fast as the vines send out shoots they should be covered so that blight cannot get a foothold. This generally means one spray for every ten days.

CARE FOR THE LAWN.

The time has come to exercise care in keeping the newly started lawn progressing. When the lawn is to be cut it should not be cropped too closely, and the clippings should be allowed to remain for protection of the tender grass roots against the sun and to conserve moisture. Rolling the lawn a day or so before cutting is an excellent aid for compacting the sod and preventing the grass from being torn up by the roots when trod on or cut by a machine.

If the lawn is kept cut regularly and frequently it causes the grass to spread and builds up a stronger sod. Any well established lawn is benefited by several rollings through the spring as the roots have a tendency to lift from the soil and become exposed to drying. Any bare spot should be dug up deeply and, if necessary, supplied with fresh soil, some decayed manure and a little lime, then heavily seeded.

Remember that objectionable weeds if removed before seeding can be eradicated from the lawn this year, for practically all of these weeds are annuals. Dandelions, thistles and dock are perennials and the entire root should be removed to assure of complete destruction. Simply cutting the roots just below the surface of the ground will not kill these plants.

CONNECTICUT TOBACCO

The culture of tobacco all through the Connecticut river valley is not only a source of income to the owners of the great fields but means an addition to the bank account of many a family.

In the old days when the Havana tobacco was the principal kind of "weed" grown the farmers went at the culture in a more haphazard way than at the present time. Nowadays there is more co-operation in such things. Co-operative buying is practiced in many sections in the way of supplies and fertilizer and there is a considerable amount of group sorting and selling. Of late years the "syndicate" has made big inroads in this part of New England and several thousand acres have been leased for the raising of the Sumatra tobacco under cloth.

This season bids fair to be a particularly busy one in the tobacco fields. The usual acreage is being planted and this fact alone will mean much to the industrial centers, where the summer prospects are none too bright. The tobacco industry will save the day for many a family.

CANNING STRAWBERRIES

Strawberries are a favorite with nearly everybody. When it comes to canning them, however, there is great difficulty in getting satisfactory results. Different varieties can differently, for one thing. The most desirable strawberry for canning is the "Howard" 17." To can them successfully, use the following method: At night hull berries, wash them, and let drain. Weigh the berries. To every pound of berries add one-half pound of sugar. Let them stand over night. In the morning pack the berries with their own juice but no water in clean preserve jars. Process in the usual manner in the hot water bath for 12 minutes. Berries preserved in this way will have better shape, size, color and flavor.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Professor Crow's School

Don't you hear the school bell ring,
Ting-a-ling, ting-a-ling?
Little Rabbit, don't delay,
Hurry, hurry on your way."
sang Bobbie Redvest from the treetop.

"I am," panted Little Jack Rabbit. "I know Professor Crow will scold me if I'm late," and away he hopped, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, up the Shady Forest trail to the little log hut where the wise old blackbird taught school.

high up in the branches of the big chestnut tree.

"Wait a minute, little rabbit," he called down. "Twinkle Tail and Featherhead are almost ready."

"Dear me!" thought the little bunny boy, not wishing to be impolite, but finding it hard to hide his impatience. "Please tell them to hurry. The bell is ringing."

The next minute there came the sound of scratching feet, and down the treetrunks slid the two squirrel boys.

"Come on," they shouted, and away they scampered up the Shady Forest Path in and out among the trees, over the moss and fallen leaves.

By and by, not so very far, they came to the schoolhouse, in the doorway of which stood the wise old professor bird in his long black mortarboard coat. Pushing the spectacles back on his beak, he cawed:

Have you learned the Golden Rule?
Do you love to come to school?
Are your pencils neat and trim?
Have you learned the morning hymn?

"Yes, oh yes," answered the three little four footed folk, all at once, just like that.

"Well then, come in," replied Professor Crow, hopping slowly up to the platform at the further end of the room. Then, seating himself behind the desk, he called the roll. After which the lessons began. Dear me, little reader, it is so long since I went to school I've forgotten whether geography or arithmetic came first. But anyway, it wasn't long before Featherhead answered that twice five are nine.

"Gracious me!" shouted Professor Crow, flapping his wings. "That's wrong. Sit on the dunce stool!"

But the next minute the little squirrel began to smile when Sammy Skunk replied that the Old Bramble Patch was in the south east corner of the Old Rail Fence.

"Gracious me!" again shouted the wise old blackbird. "What's the matter today? Has anybody studied his lesson? Where's the other dunce cap? Come, Sammy Skunk, climb up beside Featherhead. We have two dunces today." But I'm glad to say Little Jack Rabbit never made a slip and hopped home to Lady Love as soon as school was over.

COUNTRY AND CITY WORK FAR DIFFERENT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

...ming if I may be permitted ... differences between ... to call attention to the absolutely unlike conditions of life and work which control in the ... work, for a start-off. ... in both town and country, ... Most ... earn it by work. It ... work in shops ... country they ... in the fields.

You'll note, at the first mention, that ... the main indoors work, ... work is almost wholly ... This is both a dis... and a difference. But the ... and working under a ... works in the open ... dearest of the hem... conditions which ... That is a mere sur... The real differences lie ... they are radically ...

He has been said, the town worker ... in shops and factories. He works under rules made by men like himself and modifiable whenever modification is generally desired. The conditions under which he works, the regulations governing his hours and methods of work, the wages paid for his work are all matters for human determination. The employers change them as market demands require by votes of the directors or orders of the superintendents. The employes change them, sometimes by petition, sometimes by strike. They are merely ordinances, man-made and capable of being unmade by man, any time when such unmaking seems desirable. Hours of work, conditions of labor, amount of wages are all matters wholly within human competence, and subject to arrangement, amendment, repeal by human agreement.

Not a single one of these possibilities lies within reach of country workers, the farmers and their employes. They work, not under roofs which can be repaired if they leak, but under the open sky concerning whose leakage they have absolutely nothing to say. They work, not during hours fixed by mutual agreement among themselves, but when the weather permits. And they have no influence of any sort in the shaping of that weather. They can only make hay when the sun shines, and rue the sun shines or not regardless of their wishes or wills. They work, not from whistle to whistle, but from the first moment they can work up to the last.

They have absolutely nothing to say, absolutely no influence to exert upon the seasons or the ephemeral weather of the day. They begin work, not when they'd like to, but when they get the chance. They stop work, not when they've kept at it so many hours, but when it gets too dark to see or sets in to rain.

All their work is done, not under or in accord with man-made rules, but subject to the laws of an overruling Nature. These laws men have no voice in framing and no liberty of amending. They are not even written out and posted. Indeed, they are usually only half comprehended, sometimes almost wholly incomprehensible. But, understood or not, they are immutable and supreme. There is not only no parleying possible with them there is no chance of dodging them. Men cannot argue with the thunderbolt, nor "strike" against the summer solstice.

If all the farmers in North America should unite in one union and vote to plant corn April 1st, May frosts would kill it, just the same as usual, and put an end to their crop. If they should unanimously agree not to raise any corn unless it yielded at least a hundred bushels to the acre, some land would still produce twenty bushels and some a hundred and twenty. If they should vote without dissent not to begin work till nine a. m. and to knock off at two p. m. the weeds would grow just the same while they were idle, the worms and slugs would keep right on chewing and the rain would be exactly as likely to fall between nine a. m. and two p. m. as any other time.

If every farmer in the country should vote to strike till he was paid at least $5 a day of eight hours work, Nature, his only paymaster, wouldn't even know of the vote,—or care a hoot for it. Nature will go on its own way, undisturbed and unperturbed. The seasons will change, the sun will rise and set, the rains will come and go, there will be frosts and droughts and weeds and bugs and blights, utterly regardless of the comfort or even the existence of the farmer. He must scramble a living for himself, if he can, out of conditions which he must take as he finds them.

Now, the average city worker can't understand this state of affairs. It is foreign to his whole thought and habit. He can't see why the ordered regulation of hours and machines and wages which obtains in his factories and shops isn't possible in farming. He is not to be blamed for this blindness. Human nature, whether on the farm or in the factory, is a mightily short-sighted and self-centred muddlehead. Some people can't even see the length of their own noses. The majority can't see very far ahead or around the corner. A good many go through life continually stumbling over obstructions right under their feet because they are not capable of watching their own steps, much less those of other people.

It isn't a question whether the standards of city living and the methods of city work are better than those of the country. That question would be purely academic, utterly without practical bearing. The stubborn and irremovable fact is that the two are inherently unlike. It is generally recognized that you can't make oil and water mix. In attempting it you spoil both. All attempts to citify the country or countrify the city are equally absurb.

Whatever we may wish we can't safely ignore basal facts. And the basal fact about country life is that it must progress, if at all, along its own lines and not in imitation, conscious or otherwise, of city life. City people may cut streets about where they please, and order traffic as they choose, if they feel like paying bills. But the farmer must follow such roads as Nature opens to him, sometimes over hills and sometimes down dale, without much thought as to his own convenience or comfort. He cannot lay down a straight line on the map and start to drive it. If he does, his apple-cart will either bump into a cliff, the first thing, or mire itself in some swamp. The best he can do it to trail along behind Nature' chariot, wherever it goes and however it heads. Nor will he have to be a farmer more than one full year to discover that the said chariot is an erratic guide. It doesn't follow the same track, season after season or even day after day. There may be some hidden order in its course, but I have never yet met either the practical agriculturist or the theoretical scientist who could plot that course, twenty-four hours in advance. Whatever be the laws which govern the seasons and the weather they are, at present, beyond our classification or prediction.

City workers are like armied columns which march in set ranks at fixed hours and at modulated step to work, to eat, to play, to sleep.

Country workers are like bees who must fly where they can find flowers, regardless of direction or distance. They may not cut out their own work, because it is cut out for them by sheers in whose handling they are given no part.

They must stand ready to seize such opportunity as offers, without much voice in the creation or selection of that opportunity. They may perhaps be all "hitched up" to cultivate their corn. The crop may need it and the weather be suitable. But if Nature that morning hatches out a few billion Colorado beetles on their potatoes they must unhitch from the cultivator and put the day in spraying. After which a full week may pass without affording another chance at the corn field in which, nevertheless, the cut-worms are breeding and the weeds smothering the young corn.

Of course, the farmer has some influence on the growth of his crops and their comparative success or failure. But such success, if won, is achieved not by his own origination but through his shrewdness and quickness in taking advantage of the changing chances which Nature is broadcasting in what seems to him a rather hit-or-miss fashion. He does, not what he thinks best or most profitable, but what he can, when he can.

He has no standards of accomplishment, and no schedule of hours. He works while the day lasts and the weather permits, at such tasks as his always-on-th-job antagonists happen to put up to him.

He has no paydays and no fixed payroll. He produces what his farm will permit and the season will allow and the bugs will spare and takes his chances of getting something for it. And if that "something" averages up half as much, per day, as the hired man demands in wages for helping produce it, he does quite well.

As a fairly modest agriculturist, I should hesitate about going into a machine-shop or a textile-factory or a dry-goods store or a bank, and codifying new rules for them, according to my rural ideas of fitness.

Also, as a fairly self-respecting agriculturist I emphatically object to men who couldn't tell a striped bass from a lady-bug undertaking to lay down laws for farmers.

...it has often been said that half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. As a purely Utopian dream, it might be thought desirable for the two halves to swap work, now and then, as an educational function. But that is so plainly impracticable that it may be dismissed as impossible.

The other thing which both halves can do is to mind their own respective businesses, and not try to mix up in matters they know nothing about.

THE FARMER.

WEST KINGSTON

The sale held in West Kingston church Wednesday evening proved a financial success. The superintendent, Mrs. Amy Knowles, made many fancy articles to be sold. Others brought cake, sandwiches and doughnuts. Coffee was served. Mrs. Knowles also braided rugs for the sale and spent much time in preparing for it. The proceeds are to be used to purchase equipment for the Bible school. For a small village, the school is large; between 70 and 80 children attend.

Three candidates received the rite of baptism Sunday afternoon in Larkin pond. Rev. C. H. Palmer of Usquepaugh was the officiating clergyman. The candidates were all young people of the Bible school: Miss Dorcinv Kenyno, Weston Knowles and Edward Bennett. Rev. George H. Watt, state commissioner, will be here Sunday evening to give the right hand of fellowship and welcome them to church membership.

Mr. Wallace of Providence, who has supplied the pulpit, was present at the baptizing Sunday afternoon. He read the scriptures. Mr. Palmer followed in prayer. There was a good attendance to witness the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan of Wyoming visited Dr. Kenyon and family Sunday evening.

Amos H. Kenyon with his family of Providence visited his parents, here Sunday and attended the baptismal service. Miss Kenyon is a niece of Mr. Kenyon.

Alfred Bonin and family moved Wednesday from the Watson homestead farm to Rocky Point.

Mrs. Susan B. Sherman is very ill.

Edward C. Kenyon spent Thursday in Providence.

A local resident has been having a new dining room floor laid. Taking up the old floor, not a nail was used. It was fastened to the timbers underneath by hand-made, large wooden pegs. The house is over a century old.

A floor had been laid over this floor many years ago, but the original floor had not a nail in it. The pegs were in excellent condition and would have lasted many years longer. Has anyone horseboats ever had a like experience?

E. K. Wilcox was a Westerly caller Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Pratt of Arcadia were callers in West Kingston Tuesday.

West Kingston W. C. T. U. met last week Wednesday with Mrs. Helen H. Cottrell. It was well attended by the members, also several visitors. After the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed during which ice cream, cake and cookies were served. A special feature of the W. C. T. U. here is the attendance of the children.

EAST HADDAM

Russel Parke of New York spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Parke.

Mrs. C. Ely Rogers and daughter have returned to their home in South Manchester after spending a few days at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rogers.

The Society of the Sons of the American Revolution will hold their annual meeting at Nathan Hale park Saturday, June 21st.

Mrs. N. W. Rathbun was a recent Hartford visitor.

Use of orange blossoms for weddings is due to a tradition dating from the crusades, according to a recent writer on the subject. The orange tree bears ripe fruit and blossoms at the same time, and as the Saracens thought the flower a good symbol of a prosperous marriage. The English crusaders came home with the story and introduced it as a new fashion at home, after which orange blossoms gradually became the fashion.

Hope appeared on the horizon of the straphanger the other day in Detroit in the form of a new type of street car. This car or rather three-in-one car train is designed to give greater seating capacity for the same street space than the usual type of cars. It consists of three connecting cars on four sets of wheels and seats 140 people. The street railway company also wins; as the three-in-one train weighs less and is cheaper to run than three ordinary type cars.

		Number	Double-faced List Price
Manon—Adieu notre petite table (Farewell, Our Little Table) (Massenet) In French / Lakmé—Pourquoi dans les grands bois (Why Do I Thus Love to Stray) (Delibes) In French	Lucrezia Bori / Lucrezia Bori	1009	$1.50

Manon's pathetic little lament; and the chant of the priestess Lakme. Two splendid examples of French operatic music, of Bori's beautiful soprano, of Victor perfection in recording.

Minuet (Haydn-Friedberg) Violin Solo / Old French Gavotte (Cud Friedberg) Violin Solo	Fritz Kreisler / Fritz Kreisler	1010	1.50

Imaginative presentations of the music of these courtly old-world dances. Both are light yet stately, and both melodious. Records of violin music such as only the Victor can produce.

Light Vocal Selections

The Clang of the Forge (Vanderpool-Rodney) / Gipsy John (Melville-Clay)	Royal Dadmun / Royal Dadmun	45414	1.00

Royal Dadmun is in especial demand as a singer of "men's songs" and these records will also be in demand. Two robust and vigorous numbers, in rich, clear baritone.

Old popular favorites—inheritances of the days when popular songs were waltzes rather than fox-trots. Splendidly sung, and they make beautiful and harmonious records.

Song Birds in Georgia with Ukulele, Guitar and Whistling / Whistling the Blues Away with Guitar and Whistling	Wendell Hall-Carson Robison	19338	.75

These numbers introduce an artist new to Victor Records in combination with the well-known Wendell Hall, and this record presents the performances of both true to life.

Melodious Instrumental

Victor Herbert Favorites Piano-Accordion Solo "March of the Toys"—"I Can't Do the Sum" (from "Babes in Toyland")—"Kiss Me Again" (from "Mlle. Modiste")—"Oriental Dance" (from "Wonderland") / Italian Melodies Piano-Accordion Solo "A Frangesa"—"Carmo"—"Mamma Mia Che vo Sape?"—"Carcioffola?"	Pietro / Pietro	19297	.75

Victor Herbert and Italian songs arranged for the accordion. Pietro makes them into artistic medleys, and plays them in vigorous style—a lively instrumental record.

Dance Records

(1) Where is That Old Girl of Mine?—Fox Trot (2) Driftwood—Fox Trot / (1) Mandalay—Fox Trot (2) Step Henrietta—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	35744	1.25

Something new and unusual! Four up-to-the-minute and popular dance hits by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra on one twelve-inch record. Every lover of dance music will want it.

Cielito Lindo (Beautiful Sky)—Waltz / La Golondrina (The Swallow)—Waltz	Max Dolin's Orchestra	19329	.75

Wonderfully beautiful and romantic waltzes from Mexican sources—free of the fantastic element. Two of the best records any dancer ever waltzed to.

Don't Blame It All on Me—Fox Trot with vocal refrain / You Left Me Out in the Rain—Fox Trot	International Novelty Orchestra / The Benson Orchestra of Chicago	19337	.75

Beautiful and originally scored fox trots, the first with a vocal refrain, light and graceful in style. Records that are incentives to good dancing, but with enough jollity for the care-free sort.

The best way to make your neighbor like you better—a well-cooled bottle of Orange-Crush.

Here are six reasons why Orange-Crush is so utterly delicious: (1) The natural fruit oil of oranges—which gives that delicate and distinctive flavor; (2) The natural acid of citrus fruits (oranges, lemons and limes)—which gives the tang; (3) Orange juice; (4) Carbonated water—which gives "sip," sparkle, purity; (5) U. RAIN CAUSES NUMEROUS AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Hartford, June 12—Twenty days of actual rain during May, with only two clear days, boosted the motor car accident list in Connecticut to 1,732, reported during that month, most of them caused by skidding on the wet pavement, according to the motor vehicle department report today. While the number of accidents increased greatly the fatalities showed a marked decrease.

Balm for all ailments; substitute for praise;
Comrade of those who plod in lonely ways
(Ways that grow lonelier as the years wax old);
Tonic for fears; check to the over-bold;

Kind but resistless, on our wayward days;

SEIZED ALCOHOL WORTH $30,000 IN TUG-BOAT BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 13—Another rum-runner, this time a tugboat, was seized in the sound, a short distance east of New London harbor, early this morning, together with the cargo of the craft, about 2000 cases of alcohol of the approximate value of $30,000. Following the seizure the tug Lorraine Rita, was brought to New London harbor and later left for New York with her cargo.

The Lorraine Rita was sighted off Stonington, between Sea Flower and Stumpling Lights, shortly after 4 o'clock, by the New York patrol boat, the tugboat being heavily laden and headed westward. The patrol boat headed for the tugboat and in a short time pulled alongside. The master of the tug was ordered to bring the boat to a stop and members of the crew of the patrol craft boarded the tug. A search of the tug revealed the valuable cargo, each of the 2,000 cases containing five gallons of alcohol. The captain of the rum-runner was ordered to proceed to New London with the tug and upon arrival of the craft in port orders were received by the captain of the [illegible] left to proceed to New York with its capture. The trip through the sound was started about 6 o'clock. The Lorraine Rita is believed to have received her supply of alcohol from one of the fleet of steamers off Block Island and was enroute to New York. The tugboat is a new [illegible] listed in the government blue book. She is, however, believed to be owned in New York.

Joseph Benefield, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard academy at Fort Trumbull, was held up at the point of a revolver about last midnight at the approach to the Shaw's cove bridge of the New Haven railroad and was relieved of his wealth, $7. No report of the holdup was made to the police until this forenoon when Lieut. Olson made it known that Benefield had been robbed.

Benefield was in the Firemen's restaurant on Bank street shortly before midnight and there he discussed with an acquaintance the recent holdup on the bridge of a fellow seaman, Earl S. Burns, who was attacked by Charles Adams, of New Haven, with a pipe and rendered unconscious in Adams' attempt to rob Burns. The sailor did not have money on his person and Adams, who is now serving a prison sentence for the crime, had his work for nothing. During the course of his conversation Benefield remarked that he and other sailors continue to use the bridge as a route to the military reservation. Just before Benefield left from the restaurant, a stranger who had been in the place and who listened to the conversation went out. When Benefield reached the north end of the bridge the stranger appeared from [illegible] and stepping in front of [illegible] leveled a revolver close to [illegible]'s head and ordered [illegible] "stick" up his hands. Benefield quickly complied with the command and was relieved of his money which was taken from the pocket of his blouse. Benefield then went to the reservation, but not until this morning did he reveal that he had been fleeced by a gunman. The [illegible] notified and Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels was assigned to the case. The gunman was about 28 or 30, and weighed about 130 pounds. He was dark, dark hair and wore a light grey suit and straw hat.

Local and state health authorities were active today and as a result two restaurant proprietors have been ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the milk law in not having milk at their respective places of the required standard of purity. It is among the possibilities that other restaurant proprietors will be haled into court are Max Fern, of the Star restaurant. The proprietors already ordered into court are Max Fern, of the Star restaurant, State street and Yee Wah, of the Far East restaurant, also on State street. State officials of the health department were in town recently and obtained samples of the milk dispensed at most of the restaurants. They have since reported to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and as a result of the milk being alleged impure, the two restaurant proprietors were summoned to court by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Albert Hickman, 20 Ocean avenue, which was suspended yesterday, to be returned to the owner.

Mrs. Clarence Sargent of Norwich, Rodney Carlisle, Amity street; Mrs. Henry Delaney, Norwich, Laurie Wirtenen, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Kenneth Morgan and infant son, Cutler street and Mrs. James Wood and infant son of Williams street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

John J. Ambrose, 67, died late yesterday at his residence, 188 Shaw street, after an illness of many weeks. Mr. Andrews was born in the Azore Islands and was one of the oldest Portuguese residents in New London. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Emilime Pentilla and a step-son Manuel Lester. Mr. Ambrose followed the water as a fisherman many years, but during recent years he was employed at the plant of the Whiton Machine company.

Mrs. A. F. Winn of Cleveland, a summer resident at Eastern Point until today, when she took apartments at the Mohican, happened to be operating an automobile yesterday without an operator's license. She had made application for the necessary document at the state motor department on Bank street, but the rush there delayed her so that she tired and came away without the license. Mrs. Winn, a refined and educated woman, took the situation philosophically this morning when she was in court and said she only desired to know the penalty and to pay it. The fine was $10. Judge Smith, who was on the bench said the woman was so nice about the matter that he was disposed to apologize to her for the imposition of the fine.

Joseph Klein, a New Londoner, was ordered into court yesterday. He left a cash bond of $20 for his appearance, and today failed to show up. His bond was called and he forfeited the $20.

Angelo Fresca, a stranger, operating a truck that became disabled on Bank street, allowed the vehicle to remain where he landed with it, beside the curbing for a couple of hours. He was ordered to court for parking the truck, but when he explained that he met with a mishap and got the truck away as soon as he could do so, the complaint was nolled.

There were two drunks and a trespasser to claim the attention of the court today. John Harrington was sent to jail for 10 days as a drunk. He had a long record for intoxication and had frequently been shown leniency in the past. He wanted just one more chance, but the court would not bestow it. Leonardo Sassa of East New London, a laborer, admitted he was drunk when arrested, but he didn't know how he became so. He had never been in court before so judgment was suspended for 24 hours. William Stallinger, a railroad laborer, drifted into town when a freight reached here from the eastward. He was found stealing a ride between the locomotive and the first car of the train and was taken off by Railroad Officer Nellis. He explained that he had worked for the Erie road, but was laid off when business dropped down so he was in this section seeking employment. The court allowed him to continue his search.

The Connecticut Company will claim it is hinted, that it is in the position of a common carrier, that it is a public utility and that it is operating its cars for the best interests of the community it serves. It will hold that to operate its cars according to the notion of men not competent to judge, because they are not in the transportation business as the operators of a street car line, would be a detriment to the company and would disarrange the whole system of the road by enforcing the adoption of new timetables and the laying of other tracks or abandonment of stretches over which the cars are now run. In other words the trolley company will set up the argument and insist upon compliance with it on the part of the city, that the trolley road has met every demand made upon it by the exigencies of the public and that to comply with the proposed ordinance its patrons who may want to go south on Bank street. It is claimed that any patron of the trolley company who desired to go two blocks south on that street would be compelled to go through Washington street and to the end of Truman street and then pay an extra fare to come north to a point two blocks from where he started. All the trade that comes to the stores on Bank street, the belief is, comes by way of State street and by way of the lower end of the city, and the restriction of travel to one way would nearly divide this patronage. One of the best informed trolley employes said today that instead of the automobiles driving the trolley lines out of business that half the automobiles now in use would be discarded before another season rolled around because the parties now operating cars cannot afford to keep them. He represented that the expenses of many who are now operating cars is nearly $200 a month and that they are not earning more than half that amount of money. Evidently there is to be something doing before the proposed ordinance is adopted and put into effect.

Ivan B. Chapman reported to Patrolman Clarence Martin this afternoon that a Hudson automobile was ditched along the highway outside of the city limits on the Norwich road. The machine was owned by Mrs. Gertrude Fabricant, 18 Crouch street, wife of Frederick I. Fabricant, secretary and treasurer of the Connecticut Grain Corporation. The latter has been in the habit of driving the machine to Norwich daily and while making the trip this morning the car became disabled and ran into the ditch. The car was removed to a garage this evening.

George H. Sherburne, 1 Denison avenue, Mystic, will be in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the city traffic ordinances in parking overtime on Bank street. Sherburne was ordered into court by Traffic Officer John Courtney.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney issued two orders today—that in the future that he be notified immediately when members of the day force are summoned as witnesses in the superior court, that their places may be filled during their absence from duty. The other was that the desk sergeants refrain from permitting patrolmen to loiter about the office.

Charles T. Enos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Enos, of Bayonet street and Miss Marguerite Hart, daughter of Mrs. Frederick H. Gavitt, of Station 10, Waterford, were married yesterday at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. McGrath. Joseph Walters, cousin of the groom, was best man and Miss Helen Enos, the groom's sister, attended the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Enos are now on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside with the parents of the groom.

The condition of Frederick J. Bacon, of the Hotel Mohican apartments, who was stricken a fortnight ago with pneumonia at Hartford, is improving rapidly. It is expected that Mr. Bacon will be able to return to New London next week.

Mrs. Jacob Linicus, of Neptune park, has been admitted to Lawrence hospital as an observation patient.

Congressman and Mrs. Richard P. Freeman, 239 Williams street, have returned to their home, having been in Washington many weeks. The trip was made by automobile.

Announcement is made of the engagement of David Hall, of Manchester, N. H., to Miss Kathryn Hulbert, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Henry W. Hulbert, of Groton. Mr. Hall is a graduate of Harvard and is at present teaching in the prep school of the University of Beirut, Syria, in which institution his bride-to-be was a teacher three years. The wedding will take place the latter part of the summer.

James Brigham, Station 16, Waterford, contributed to the police [illegible] morning in [illegible] fines [illegible] $5 were given from the [illegible] motor cycle squad, owner of Water and Douglass streets.

There was a very slight improvement reported today in the condition of Mrs. Edwin Keeney, 28 Hart street, who has been seriously ill several days as a result of weakness brought about by her advanced years. Mrs. Keeney is 85.

Joseph J. Mooney, 1774 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was taken into custody this afternoon by Patrolman John Hogan, suspected of obtaining money under false pretenses. Mooney, however, was found to be carrying on his work legitimately and was released, but not until he had been detained at the police station two hours.

Mooney appeared at the station this forenoon and after submitting credentials purporting to show that he was the authorized representative of the Police Journal of New York, Captain Charles A. Pinney provided Mooney with a letter to the New London merchants which stated that any contributions provided Mooney would be a benefit to the New London police department and would be highly appreciated by the head of the department. The money tendered Mooney was to pay for advertisements inserted in the publication. After Mooney had visited several merchants Captain Pinney received information that led him to believe that Mooney was an imposter and he ordered the solicitor brought in. When Mooney appeared at the Cracker house the police were informed and Patrolman Hogan took the suspect into custody. A telegram to the Police Journal brought the information, however, that Mooney's soliciting for the publication was strictly legitimate and he was released. A peculiar coincidence connected with the arrest of Mooney was that the night before he registered at the Hotel Mohican as "Thomas Franklin." Mooney explained this act as being due to the fact that another solicitor of the paper arrived in town and in registering for both solicitors, Mooney registered in the name of "Franklin."

A meeting of George M. Cole Camp, United Veterans Foreign Wars, was held at the state armory this evening for the purpose of completing plans for attending the Flag Day exercises of New London lodge of Elks, 340, in the Lyceum theatre tomorrow night. The meeting was attended by a representative number of members of the veterans and from the interest manifested that body will be largely represented at the annual exercises which will be followed by a dance and entertainment in the lodge room of the Elks, on Washington street.

Railroad shares again gave an impressive demonstration of strength, new high records for the year being established by Union Pacific, Rock Island and common and 7 per cent preferred, Chicago & Northwestern, Southern Railway common and preferred, Seaboard Air Line preferred, Colorado and Southern, Illinois Central and Western Pacific preferred, the net gain ranging from small fractions to 3 points.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 12—Unprecedented activity in the bond market, in direct response to the lowered rediscount rate and resultant weakening of time loans to as low as 3 per cent., today carried prices to the year's highest level and ran total sales above $26,000,000, the largest since January 1922.

Accumulation of large overnight buying orders, which followed announcement of the cut in both New York and Boston bank rates to 3 1-2 per cent., threw the bond trading section of the New York stock exchange in confusion at the opening of the market and hundreds of orders remained unexecuted. Prices surged upward from the start and at the close showed the largest average gain of any day this year.

All previous 1924 records were shattered by U. S. government bonds four issues mounting to the highest prices ever recorded. The usual institutional buying of these obligations was swelled by a steady flow of small investment orders. Treasury 4 1-4s sold at a record top price of 104.8 and the Liberty second, third and fourth 4 1-4s also scaled new peaks.

All classes of railroad liens shared in the advance, both recognized investment issues and popular speculative descriptions being quoted at the year's best figures. Trading in the foreign government list was buoyant, Japanese issues joining in the movement, regained a large part of their recent loss. Gains of 1 to 2 points were scattered through the public utility and industrial sections.

A $10,000,000 issue of Argentine government 5 1-4 per cent. notes, offered today, was quickly absorbed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 12—New strength showed itself in the wheat market today. Despite persistent selling to realize profits, values continued responsive to broadened demand based on opinions that the 1924 world production of wheat would be much smaller than last year. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled at 1-4c to 7-8c advance, July 1.11 1-8 to 1.11 1-4 and September 1.12 7-8 to 1.13, with corn 1-2 to 7-8c up, oats 1-4 to 3-8 to 1-2c off, and provisions at 7c to 20c gain.

At first the wheat market showed something of a reactionary trend owing to showers in Canada, North Dakota and Montana and to the fact that Liverpool failed to follow fully yesterday's price advance here. Offerings, however, were readily absorbed, and the market throughout the remainder of the day bolted again after every setback. On the other hand, the fresh upturns failed to equal yesterday's top price record, which was accompanied by the largest aggregate of business this year.

Slowness of export demand today operated as something of a check on wheat bulls, and so too did Canadian government estimates that the condi-

Dearth of ind offerings gave a lift to provisions.

NEW VICTOR RECORDS

Whoever has heard Lucrezia Bori in such parts will appreciate her being chosen to record the particular numbers she sings this week. "Adieu notre petite table" (Farewell, Our Little Table) is the wistful lament of Manon at parting with the things she has shared with her lover. The song of the priestess Lakme, intuitively aware of the presence of her unseen lover, occupies the other side of this charming record—"Pourquoi dans les grands bois" (Why Do I Thus Love to Stray.)

Fritz Kreisler plays "Minuet" by Haydn this week, something courtly but, of course, melodious. With it is paired an "Old French Gavotte," quite as blithe, yet stately, with some double-stop harmonies.

One beauty of records is that they save from obsolescence many a melody that deserves a better fate. Shannon Quartet has been entrusted with some of this revival work of late, a good choice, in our opinion. This week we have them singing those once tremendously popular favorites, "The Sidewalks of New York" and "Maggie Murphy's Home." One need not necessarily to have been brought up within the precincts of Tammany to enjoy these records.

Two cheerful records by two cheerful singers in duet this week are "Song Birds of Georgia" and "Whistling the Blues Away" by Wendell Hall and Carson Robison. They have some unusual whistling effects.

Royal Dadmun has a robust voice, and the subjects of his two records this week are of the class sometimes known as "men's songs." "The Clang of the Forge" and "Gypsy John" sound interesting to read on the program, and prove so on hearing.

The accordion is an extraordinary instrument just being "discovered." To be sure, it has been played for years, but such "virtuosity" as Pietro's is calling it to general attention. This week he records a medley of Victor Herbert favorites, all of which you will probably place, at once, and some Italian melodies, which well prove his scope.

This is the first opportunity to hear four dances on a single record by the Whiteman's. It is a big twelve-inch record with two fox trots on each side. There's a little pause between the two dances on a side—just enough for the applause! They are "Where Is That Old Girl of Mine?" "Driftwood," "Mandalay" and "Step Henrietta."

June languor craves the waltz and so Max Dolin's Orchestra obligingly puts down two of the most romantic of Mexican influence "Cielito Lindo" (Beautiful Sky) and "La Golondrina (The Swallow) are really lovely.

Back with a bang to the fox trot the Bensons and the International Novelty Orchestra bring you. The Chicago organization plays "You Left Me Out in the Rain" and in rebuttal the Internationals record "Don't Blame It All On Me," with a vocal refrain.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Harold Lloyd is now a producer. In addition to being the world's foremost screen comedian, Lloyd is introduced to the public also as one of the leading producers of the industry in his most recent feature Pathe Comedy, "Girl Shy," which will be shown at the Broadway theatre starting Sunday.

With "Girl Shy," Lloyd gives to the public his initial independently made Pathe comedy and from all accounts it will establish him as high in the producing field as he stands in the acting plane.

Tommy Gray, who joined the Lloyd forces shortly after "Girl Shy" had been placed in work, is known as one of America's foremost humorists. He has written more successful sketches for vaudeville than probably any other writer for the American variety stage in recent years. He has also written [illegible] for several editions of the Greenwich Village Follies, the Music Box Revue, and other stage productions.

We advise you to come early to avoid the big crowds expected.

PALACE THEATRE

The simple, human story is again proving itself the screen superior of the big, rambling plot with a mass of complications.

This time it is John M. Stahl's production of "The Wanters" that brings this fact forcibly home.

Presented by Louis B. Mayer through First National, "The Wanters" began an engagement at the Palace Theatre last night, and it was warmly sympathetic audience that sat through the showing.

With a great idea embodied in the theme and wonderfully human treatment in its development, the production stands out and above the average film of today.

There is something [illegible] this picture, and credit for the freshness newness and dramatic strength of the situations is largely due to the genius of Mr. Stahl, the director.

Without becoming a preachment, the theme presents a strong lesson, related through the experiences of a girl of humble state who accepts a position as maid in a [illegible] in order to be near the beautiful [illegible] she has always craved. A new world opens for her when the good-looking young man of the family, a modern knight-errant in her [illegible] falls in love with her and [illegible] riage. But the narrow [illegible] selfish jealousies of the [illegible] wanters" of the story take [illegible] in her romance and nearly [illegible] ruining it before the [illegible] awakened to their [illegible] their treatment of the [illegible]

A large, capable cast [illegible] serves the appellation, "[illegible] terprets the characters. Claire [illegible] Marie Prevost adds greatly [illegible] screen laurels as the central figure [illegible] the absorbing plot. Other favorites who distinguish themselves [illegible] film are Robert Ellis, Hunt [illegible] don, Norma Shearer, [illegible] little Richard Headrick, [illegible] man, Louise Lorraine, [illegible] Harold Goodwin, Lillian Langdon, [illegible] non Steele and Lydia Yeamans [illegible] And in addition to the feature [illegible] see the clever Miss Arbuckle [illegible] in the 2nd episode of "The Telephone Girl". Critics are calling these series the Ziegfeld Follies of the screen.

Latest and very interesting Pathe Review, and Palace Supreme Orchestra completes this high class program with special music.

4 days starting Sunday, June [illegible] "The Marriage Circle" [illegible] an immensely appealing story from beginning to end. Director Ernst Lubitsch [illegible] is a laudable attempt [illegible] and has succeeded with a pleasing range of [illegible] acting and well [illegible] natural and unforced and the [illegible] is well depicted.

BREED THEATRE

If there is ever a sudden decline in the ambition of the girls of the land to become motion picture stars it will be due in large measure to Anna Q. Nilsson, noted leading woman.

Here is the reason:

In order to play a masquerading role in "Ponjola," the fair Anna had part with her hair, of which she was justly fond. When other actresses heard of Anna's sacrifice they shuddered. It was incomprehensible to them, but they admired what it took "nerve."

Anna's nerve came in good stead when she was signed up to play the leading feminine role in "Flowing Gold," a First National picture produced by Richard Walton Tully and directed by Joe De Grasse. Mr. Tully warned her that the role was a dangerous one, but that didn't make any difference to her. But she didn't know that nature does not heed the bidding of authors, even of Rex Beach who wrote "Flowing Gold."

In one scene she had to rescue Milton Sills from the vicinity of a burning oil derrick. She did so in a realistic manner, but when she looked at herself in the mirror a short time later she discovered that her face had been turned red by the heat of the flames. A little later she was called upon to jump into a river coated with burning oil again to rescue Sills. The flames came perilously near her, but she reached shore in safety.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Yes! they all said, it was great. Pictures and vaudeville.

James Burke & Eleanor Durkin offered a Tete-a-Tete in Song. They clever dialogue [illegible] have a melange of song sayings which is presented in a pleasing manner with pleasing material and methods.

Emmy Barbier & Charles Sims & Co. in "Action, Camera!" is an unusual comedy playlet in three scenes. The company of four clever players handle their respective parts to perfection, making this a very delightful closing number.

The Paramount picture "Don't Call It Love," a William de Mille production which was shown for the first time at the Broadway theatre last night, is a story of love and artistic temperament. It takes you right into the intimate and private life of a hot-blooded, hot-tempered opera singer who has as many loves as she has gowns—and that's going some. Nita Naldi plays the prima donna and the chap who falls into her silken lovenet is Jack Holt, as Richard Parrish. Agnes Ayres, as Alice Meldrum, Parrish's fiancee, Rod La Rocque and Theodore Kosloff as the impresario are all featured.

It is said that [illegible] cuffs are much worn by the sheriff's traveling companions.

APPEALS JUDGE'S DENIAL OF MOTION TO SET ASIDE $8,000 VERDICT

Notice of appeal to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Marvin of the superior court denying the motion to set aside the jury's verdict of $8,000 for the plaintiff in the $25,000 damage case brought by Mary E. Bates, executrix of the estate of Arthur W. Bates, against George W. Carroll of this city, was filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court. The appeal was filed by counsel for the defendant. The verdict of $8,000 damages was returned by a jury in the superior court April 25th last.

The original action was for damages of $5,000 and was brought by Arthur W. Bates of Preston for personal injuries which he received in an automobile accident Oct. 24, 1920. The accident occurred on the Norwich-Jewett City road in the town of Lisbon and was the result, according to the complaint, of an attempt made by anautomobile owned by the defendant to pass the plaintiff's machine. The machines collided and the plaintiff was injured.

Mr. Bates died some time after the accident and it was alleged that his death was due to developments resulting from the injuries received in the accident. Mrs. Bates was then entered as the plaintiff and the amount asked was increased to $25,000 damages. The case now goes to the supreme court for decision on the defendant's appeal.

REP. ORGANIZING FOR PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Cleveland, June 13.—For the first time in republican party history, women sat in equality with men on the new national committee which met here today and unanimously elected William M. Butler, national committee member from Massachusetts, and pre-convention manager for President Coolidge, chairman. The program for electing the ticket nominated by the convention which closed yesterday was ... initiated.

President Coolidge will be notified of his nomination, some time next week, Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, vice presidential nominee, formally will be notified at his home in Chicago.

Mr. Butler indicated that he intends to assume full control and his program was initiated immediately. Other officers on the Butler slate elected are Charles D. Hilles, New York; Mrs. Owen T. Hert, Louisville, and Ralph ... Williams, Oregon, vice chairmen; ... O. West, Chicago, secretary, and ... am V. Hodges, Denver, treasurer. An assistan secretary to be chosen ... be a woman.

A special committee was named to choose a national campaign executive committee of fifteen members on which the national committee officers also will serve as ex-officio members.

GERMANY INTERESTED IN NOMINATION OF DAWES

Berlin, June 13.—The Zeit, the organ of Foreign Minister Stresemann, commenting on the nomination of General Dawes as the republican candidate for vice president of the United States, said:

"The nomination of General Dawes as programmatic significance. Undoubtedly one may see in it the unconditional endorsement by the republican party and the president of the work accomplished by the expert committee and the economic political programme evolved in their report.

"Should the republican party remain in power, Germany may expect that the new Coolidge regime will feel bound unconditionally to carry out the conditions of the report."

The Vossische Zeitung declares: "The Dawes' candidacy is naturally calculated to attend the widest attention in Germany—and lead to the greatest errors." This newspaper argues against assuming that General Dawes is pro-German just because the report contains some points favorable to Germany.

"There is no thought further removed from Dawes," the Vossische continues, "than to attempt t osecure acceptance of his report by compulsion or international presure."

The Tageblatt declares: "Dawes' nomination means a considerable asset for the republican ticket since his name is many seections of the country will furnish a drawing power owing to Coolidge's name."

CONN REP. DELEGATION IS HOMEWARD BOUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Pittsburgh, June 13.—On board special train, much pleased with the result of the convention, the Connecticut delegation left Cleveland at 4.30 this afternoon, bound home. While Connecticut voted with one exception for Secretary Hoover for vice president, Ex-Governor Woodruff being the Lowden member of the delegation, believes no mistake has been made in the choice of Charles G. Dawes. It is figured he rounds out a finely balanced ticket, to which the states can safely will give loyal support under the platforms adopted.

At a meeting of the delegation on board the train today resolutions were adopted expressing appreciation of the hospitality of Cleveland and the excellence of the arrangements by the local committee.

This morning Chairman Rorabback had a personal telephone call from President Coolidge in which he expressed his appreciation and thanks to the Connecticut delegation for the loyal manner in which it had stood by him.

HOW FRANCE REGARDS DAWES' NOMINATION

Paris, June 13.—The entire Parisian press, despite the pressure and excitement over today's presidential election, publishes much comment on the nomination of General Dawes for vice present.

The selection of General Dawes, owing to the fact that he is so well known in Paris, has overshadowed the nomination of Calvin Coolidge for the presidency. The newspapers publish photographs of Dawes together with cartoons in which the widely-known Dawes' pipe is most prominent. One paper says "the campaign will be waged around that pipe." Most of the newspapers refer to General Dawes as "a good friend of France."

DEMOCRATS PREPARING FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION

New York, June 13.—Political eyes, were turned today toward New York city, where they saw a bustle of activity in anticipation of the national democratic convention to open June 24.

Cordell Hutl of Tennessee, chairman of the party, conferred with national executive committeemon, and issued a statement attacking the republican platform and the conduct of the Cleveland sessions.

The Smith and McAdoo headquarters received copies of a circular letter, understood to have been sent by the Anti-Saloon League of New York to democratic delegates throughout the nation, in which it was charged that the Smith candidacy had collapsed; that the "Smith-Tammany-Underwood-Wall street crowd was conspiring to nominate an "inoffensively wet" dark horse; and that convention bar-rooms already were springing up in the vicinity of Madison Square Garden.

Governor Smith declined to comment on the Anti-Saloon League letter. His campaign manager, Franklin D. Roosevelt, characterized the document as "an absolute falsehood which amounts to a vicious attack upon New York and all its prominent citizens.

The letter, which was signed by Orville S. Poland, general counsel of the league, advised delegates that "wet backers hope to force a deadlock until the visitors' money has been exhausted by exhorbitant prices and the convention is ready to be influenced by Tammany-inspired propaganda."

TO DISCONTINUE RITUALS FROM PAGAN SOURCES

New York, June 13—The dance services nad symbolic rituals having origin in pagan sources, which some time ago caused Bishop Manning to cut off the Church of St. Mark's in the Bouwerie from Episcopal ministrations, will be discontinued next year, the New York World will say tomorrow.

This change in church policy, the newspaper will say it was informed, is due to a falling off in financial support, and a large defection of parishioners from the congregation.

All members of St. Mark's staff except the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, the rector, who was responsible for the dance services, have either been dismissed or resigned, the paper will state, adding that the Easter collection this year was less than $1,000 in contrast to the $5,000 collection of the previous Easter.

PARENT-TEACHERS' CONGRESS HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

Storrs, June 13.—The second day of the 24th annual congress of Mothers Parent-Teachers' associations ,which is being held at the Connecticut Agricultural college, was opened this morning with community singing in Hawley armory. The work of the various clubs in the state was reviewed in brief reports, given by the local club president. Most of the morning session was given over to conferences in the form of short talks, on health and related problems, with opportunity for questions and open discussion as each speaker concluded.

Dr. A. G. Ireland of the state board of education led the first conference with a talk on Physical Education and the Health School. Dr. Ireland spoke of the function of the schools as to prepare boys and girls for life, and he stressed the physical side of this development as being fully important as the academic side. Following his talk, Dr. Ireland answered many questions put to him by the delegates concerning the work of his department, and its recommendations in regard to child health.

The second conference, led by Miss Elizabeth Nickerson of the state board or health, was on Community and Personal Health. Miss Knickerson opened her talk by explaining the necessity of the child learning the proper habits of health before going to school. It was her contention that a child learn habits that are conducive to health, or habits that are detrimental to health in the period from birth to when it first goes to school, usually about 5 years of age. Thus it puts most of the responsibility upon the mother, for unless the correct habits are formed before the child goes to school, then the good work of the school and its health program will not be of full value. Every mother should have a health plan for her children, in which is provided the proper foods, the right amount of sleep, the correct clothing, rest periods, and the correction of physical defects.

Social Hygiene was the subject of the third conference, and this was led by Dr. Valeria H. Parker of the American Social Hygiene association. In her talk, Dr. Parker emphasized the necessity of training the child for home building, remarking that most delinquent children and wayward girls came from broken homes. Careful training in homebuilding would do much to offset such a condition. was the contention of Dr. Parker. That there are problems arising during the first 12 years of a child's life, which will need careful handling on the part of the parents, was also brought out by Dr. Parker. Three things were mentioned which the home should supply to growing child, namely, clean, wholesome knowledge, activity and ideals concerning home building.

This afternoon's session was opened with community singing, after which Miss Sally Lucas Jean, of the American Child Health association, gave an address on Child Health. Miss Jean spoke in an interesting manner of her experiences in founding a program for child health in the Panama Canal zone and in Belgium, shortly after the close of the world war.

Following Miss Jean's address, reports were given by the standing committees and the resolutions committee, after which the convention was brought to a close with the singing of America by the entire audience.

The Thursday evening program was held in the armory and was opened with a musical program in charge of Mrs. H. D. Newton of Storrs, assisted by Mrs. Walter Stemmons, Mrs. M. J. Farrel, and Mrs. Guy Skinner, with Mrs. J. Henry Naylor of Hartford, at the piano. Several selections were sung, all of which were well received by the audience.

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. Weaver Pangburn, publicity manager of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

The second address of the evening was given by Miss Florence Hale, department of public instruction, state of Maine, and she gave an interesting talk on Parent Problems.

Nation-Wide Search For Train Robbers

Value of Loot is Estimated All the Way From $100,000 to More Than $2,000,000.

Chicago, June 13.—Search for four automobile loads of bandits who last night held up a crack mail train of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, a few miles out of Chicago forced mail clerks from their cars with gas bombs and escaped with more than forty pouches of registered mail, tonight was extended throughout the country.

Postal officials expressed the opinion that the bandits had temporarily eluded the cordon of posses spread about the scene of the robbery.

The value of the loot obtained still was undetermined tonight estimates ranging all the way from $100,000 to more than $2,000,000. A. E. Germer, chief postal inspector, said he did not believe the bandits secured more than $100,000, but an official of the Federal Reserve bank at Minneapolis declared Liberty bonds valued at $150,000 consigned to the institution were missing and federal bank officials here said that the loot included about $75,000 consigned by the Chicago banks to national banks in the northwest. Some investigators said they believed the robbers obtained cash and bonds valued at more than $2,000,000 ... their opinion on the fact that much ... mail is usually on the train.

Acting on a tip that a perpetrators of the robbery would be found in a restaurant detectives late today raided the place and arrested a dozen men including Dean O'Bannon ... Horton, Louis Alterie and Earl Weiss alleged beer runners. O'Bannon, Alterie and Weiss, were ... few weeks ago in a raid on a brewery here. Horton was arrested as a suspect in the slaying a few months ago of John Duffy and his wife, but was later released.

Four other suspects were under arrest here, and one man was being held at Waukegan.

Confident that the holdup was the result of inside information obtained by some one connected with post office or federal reserve bank ... ment agents tonight were ... a searching investigation of this angle.

A theory that the loot may have been cached by the bandits and then carried away in an airplane was held ... some officials today after an airplane was seen to land about two miles from Braidwood, Illinois, the scene of the holdup, and later after a hurried inspection to hop off and head toward Chicago. A check of the local airfields revealed that no local planes were missing today, postal inspectors said.

Mr. Germer said the Kendout robbery and recent mail robberies at Harvey, Illinois, and Indiana Harbor were similar and added that postal authorities had been warned recently to be alert for a band of Philadelphia ... who were reported to be ... hands with the Chicago robbers for a raid on the mails.

Bandits riding "blind baggage" climbed into the engine and forced the engineer to stop his train.

Mail clerks were forced out by gas bombs after which the bandit leader donned a gas mask and forced the chief mail clerk to do likewise. The robbers then entered three of the eight cares of the train and removed the registered pouches.

Havana, June 13—Business throughout Cuba has become almost stagnant by the railroad strike which has been in progress for more than two weeks but government officials were hopeful today that the movement might gradually be broken, and they were continuing their efforts to arrange some sort of an agreement.

While some unions have voted large sums of money to aid the striking railroad men, and there has been talk of a general strike here, the government officials are optimistic that no such strike will be called.

Three passenger trains and a number of inter-urban electric cars were put into operation today under military protection. No trains are to be run at night.

St. Michaels Boy Scouts of America held their first annual weenie roast and pow wow this week in the parish [illegible] on the bank of the Pawcatuck river. They formed at the parish hall and moved through Stillman avenue to the spot selected for the big campfire. While the officers busied themselves in preparing the fire and eats, the scouts enjoyed various athletic events under the supervision of Scoutmaster Chapman. Just after dusk the fire was lighted and the "dogs" roasted in true pioneer style and with "sinkers" and soda they made a wholesome repast.

In the midst of the feast Patrol Leader McGuinness requested permission to make a speech and presented Scoutmaster George P. Chapman, who is to be married next Monday, a handsome chest of silver in the name of the Boy Scouts. Mr. Chapman expressed thanks to the boys for their appreciation of his work with them.

A real camp fire session followed with songs speeches and stores by leaders and scouts. Leader George Allard who is still a patient at Lawrence hospital was not forgotten, and plans were made for his home coming, which the boys hope will be soon.

This week's meeting marked the close of the year's active work in scouts as during the summer months only one general meeting will be held each month. The past year has been the most successful in the history of scouting in St. Michael's and has been marked by unusual activity. In October, 1923, there was founded the Parish News, a monthly publication edited by the scouts and having circulation of over 400 copies each month. This gives St. Michael's Boy Scouts of America the unique honor of being the only troop in the United States to publish its own paper.

During the past year two plays have been given in which only scouts participated and which netted over $1,000 for the church treasury. A benefit performance for the Spanish War Veterans was also given in the opera house. Great advancement has been made in scouting, as there are now four Star and Life Scouts in the troop while more than 100 merit badges were earned.

Plans have been made for the troop to attend Camp Wakenah, the New London Council Boy Scout camp at Gardner Lake, the week of July 18 to 27, where the boys hope to win more merit badges in swimming, life saving, woodcraft, etc.

Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church, Westerly, a former resident of Danielson, who now makes his home in West Mystic, has issued his annual pre-summer call to the congregation, as follows:

There are eight Sundays before the pastor takes his vacation. Will you help him make these Sundays count big in our church attendance and work?

At this season of the year there is a strong temptation to "slow down" on church going and to "speed up" on some other things. How can we better spend these beautiful Sunday mornings than in going to the place of worship? The time spent in church will make the day a blessing and a real rest—rest from work and rest with God.

Many visitors are in our city during the summer months. We want them to worship with us, and we want you to help tell them that we want them. Advance the kingdom were never Our opportunities to help people and greater than now.

To help increase the attendance at church of our own people, and those among us, the pastor announces the following series of Sunday morning sermons.

June 15: Why go to church in the summer?

June 22: A new call to righteousness.

July 6: The rights of the common people.

July 20: Building one better.

August 3: The Test of Kingly Character.

F. Sisson has purchased from Wm. Cunningham the house next to Bayside Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Martin of Virginia are visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer of Church St.

Origin of Mine Gas.

An interesting suggestion has been offered concerning the source of the explosive gases in coal mines and the cause of their variation in quantity. In mining districts, it is pointed out, the earth's crust is always on the move, owing to the advance of the workings. Both above and below the seam that is being worked the rock strata are strained and rent by the removal of their support. Thus fissures are formed, and the imprisoned gas finds a way of escape into the galleries. Before its liberation it is probable that the firedamp is under considerable pressure in its rocky prison.

DANIELSON

Punishment for the terrible crime of going far away from the haunts of man to shoot crap out on the banks of the Quinebaug in that secluded section known as the Sand Bank—was visited in the town court, Friday, morning, upon nine young men, who had been apprehended Thursday afternoon by state police from the Danielson barracks. The court assessed each of the accused $1.00 and costs, so that each of the nine contributed $5.95 to the treasury of the town.

"Come easy, go easy!" said one of those who paid. "What do you do for a living?" inquired an innocent bystander. "Woodchopper", replied he who paid.

The nine arrests stirred Danielson from the lethorgic state in which it has wallowed along for weeks past. To think that such an awful thing could happen here! Almost beyond belief. Even the convention at Cleveland failed to stir up such a nodding of heads and a wagging of tongues. What, what, indeed?—is the country coming to? To think that a group of able-bodied young men in these piping times of peace and prosperity should go out and so defile the quiet pastoral scenery as to sit down in the midst of it and shoot a friendly game of crap—and for money, such as they had of it, in this day when there is so great a plentitude of coin of the realm that one does not know from one minute to another how to get rid of it. The community is shocked. It is scandalized. Such a crime at such a time!

"What's all the excitement about?" inquired a visitor from a nearby town who was here as a crowd stood about awaiting the court session at which the crapshooters were to be tried.

"Nine fellows arrested for shooting crap," volunteered a man who likes to be on hand with first aid information. "Shootng crap, eh?" said the visitor: "well I never hunted crap, but if they have been shooting them out of season, I'm glad they got 'em, for I do believe in upholding the game laws and in punishing all who break them."

Danielson seems headed for the land of the bow-wows. It used to be a staid old New England town, where there were licensed saloons, horse races, on which people bet money and suburban territory where high jinks was the regular order of the day. But it appears to have gone from bad to worse. Gasoline and dice have about ruined it. It has become a necessity to patrol the woods to keep decent order in the community. One need not be surprised any day now to hear of a man being arrested for picking a dandelion—on suspicion that he may secretly cherish the plan to turn the juices of its blossom into wine.

The law must be upheld. That all will admit. If youth gambles—and gets caught at it, youth must pay, for gambling is against the law. Vigilance, that all lawbreakers may be apprehended is the watchword of the day. Probably that is the idea that a sixth grade boy had in mind Friday when he made known his belief that other boys had a plot on to steal a pair of his pet rabbits and of his ambition to have the service battery called out to protect him against the prospective loss.

Among the boys who paid in court Friday for crap shooting there is a unanimous belief that they are the victim of a squealer, a term that today carries an odorous charge. Ask them more about it and they—or their friends—will whisper a name.

A brawny crew, working diligently, was engaged Friday in laying the new "high iron" over the Main street crossing, necessarily closed to traffic during the several hours that the operation was underway. During the progress of the work traffic was detoured through Furnace street, through the Cottage street underpass and on to the trunk line highways again. Trains were only incidentally held up by the rail laying operations that were underway. The work involved tearing up the asphalt crossing material put in last fall, rearrangement of the electric signal devices and other incidental work.

Observing the expeditious manner in which so much laborious work was accomplished in such a comparatively short period, one might be excused for wondering why a tithe more energy could not have been devoted to repairing the Franklin street and North street crossings, where the putting in of new rails has left what approximates a double pair of low hurdles for traffic to move over, with the ever present danger of not landing on all fours once the barriers are taken. These crossings as they have been for a month past would make great hazards for a golf course.

The puzzle as to why more people do not build new sidewalks in Danielson is solved. It's the kids. Once a new cement or concrete walk is opened they appear in droves with their tricycles, kiddie kars and other devices and ride it to a fare-you-well. In the home they the walk fronts there is no longer peace or comfort. Days become a nightmare. No one objects to a youngster having a good time, but there is ground for objection against wishing a whole neighborhood of children and their riding devices onto one household. As Artemus Ward once said—that is 2 much.

At her home in Foster Center Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Johanna Arnold Peck Bennett were conducted by Rev. Leonard Richards of St. Alban's church, Danielson. Burial was in the Borden cemetery at Tonnaganset, R. I. The bearers were George Weatherby, Hiram Wood, Elmer Salisbury and Charles Robbins. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter and Miss Helen E. Aylward were visitors in Providence, Friday.

One thing seems certain—if the coming democratic national convention in New York nominates Senor McAdoo, the party in this particular town will have to manage to get along without the support of numbers of its members, this statement having no relation to any other candidacy for the democratic namination. McAdoo simply isn't popular in Killingly with many democrats.

Out of Brooklyn comes a story relative to a dog that stood over an abandoned well into which a dog friend with which he had been playing had fallen and barked all night to attract the attention of possible rescuers. It was not until the following morning, however, that the barking dog attracted aid that eventually brought about the rescue of the dog in the well, where more mud than water was to be found.

Too much is being made of the fact that Mrs. Zela Bennett of this town was an investigator—a woman detective—for the state police department. Press matter would make it appear that her occupation was a great secret. All familiar with Danielson and its people have known for the last decade, almost, the nature of Mrs. Bennett's occupation. To strangers the matter may be of passing interest.

PUTNAM

At a meeting of the Windham County Bar association held in the office of County Clerk E. M. Warner, at ten o'clock Friday morning, the resolution committee, State's Attorney Charles E. Searls, Putnam, Attorney William A. King of Willimantic and Judge Arthur G. Bills of Danielson, submitted resolutions on the death of Judge Milton A. Shumway of Danielson. The resolutions were adopted and it was voted to adjourn to the next short calendar day of the Windham County Superior court when action will be taken to have the resolutions spread upon the court records.

The resolutions set forth that Judge Shumway, during his long professional career attained high honor in both the political and legal history of the state. As a representative of his town in the General Assembly she was recognized as the leader of that body; and when, afterwards, he became a member of the senate, he easily won distinction in that higher office. As a lawyer he ranked among the foremost members of the Eastern Connecticut Bar. He was a judge of the superior court for many years, and finally (the crowning honor that may come to a lawyer) became a justice of the supreme court of Connecticut. The duties of these exalted positions he discharged with signal ability, untiring industry, and that conscientious fidelity to duty which marked his whole life.

Getting caught in telephone wires in Pomfret, a partridge was strangled to death and incidentally put the telephone lines of a number of subscribers out of commission. Thursday afternoon. Report following report that their phone wouldn't work coming into headquarters of the S. N. E. Telephone company set the trouble finders to work. After making tests, linemen went sent over the road to Pomfret to make an examination.

Patrolling the line all wires appeared to be in place and nothing that could cause an obstruction was noticed, until Lineman Charles T. Thayer, an old-timer in trouble hunting, saw a great quantity of feathers upon the ground, underneath a pole.

Mounting the pole the lineman saw the bird which had apparently flown into the wires and in trying to extricate itself had tangled the wires about its neck and strangled to death, causing the trouble.

Miss Celia Aframe has recovered her sight, after being temporarily blinded while taking an examination at the Putnam High school Thursday afternoon.

Miss Aframe, a member of the senior classd, was taking her final examination in French. Suddenly she complained that she could not see, that all she could distinguish was light from darkness. Principal Stinson was notified and the girl was taken to the Day Kim hall hospital where she was examined by Dr. George F. Burroughs. The doctor found a congestion that was made acute by possible nervousness in taking the examination. Quiet in a darkened room was recommended by the doctor. Friday Miss Aframe had recovered normal vision.

A new dormitory is to be erected during the summer vacation at the Howe-Marot school for young ladies at Thompson. It has been known for some time that Miss Marot was contemplating extending the work of the school and instituting a junior college course. Plans for the new building have been completed and work will be commenced at once in the hope that it may be ready for occupancy early in the fall.

Miss Clara Larned, woman prohibition officer of the Putnam city court, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the Connecticut Probations Officers' Association.

Music hall has been hired by the state as an armory for the newly formed headquarters company of the 43rd division, C. N. G., and the fiirst drill was held in the new quarters Friday night.

Music hall has been hired by the state as an armory for the newuy formed headquarters company of the 43rd division, C. N. G., and the first drill was held in the new quarters Friday night.

Brigadier General Maurice Paine, of New London, of the 85th infantry brigade and Colonel Bissell, U. S. P. & D. O., of the adjutant general's office, Hartford, and Major John B. Byrne, finance officer of the 43rd division, came to Putnam Friday afternoon and in company with Captain John J. McGarry of the headquarters company, first inspected Union hall on the third floor of Union block. It was decided that this hall was barely large enough for company drills and the inspecting party went to Music hall on Liverp street. This hall is on the ground floor beeng a one story building. After some deliberation this place was hired for a temporary armory.

State Policemen Keith and Comstock made a search for intoxicating liquor at 116 Grove street, about ten o'clock Thursday night but found no intoxicating liquor on the premises. The house is in the residential section of the city and is occupied by Harriet B. Slingsby. The officers procured a search warrant and, having gained entrance, made a thorough search of the premises but finding nothing of an incriminating nature, left, and no arrests were made.

Putnam Lodge of Elks is again to supervise the swimming hole at Tourtellotte's. This is the only bathing place in Putnam and was established last summer by the Elks. A dam was built so that the swimming area was enlarged and a man was stationed there to see that the bathers were orderly. The venture proved popular and this year extra bath-houses will be built and a further improvement made.

The privilege of erecting soda, candy and tobacco stand is to be granted. Last year most of the patronage was by young people but this year a special line of bath houses will be for the use of adults who may wish to sport in the water of the Little River on a hot summer's day.

Edwin Johnson, garage proprietor of North Grosvenordale, is at the Day Kimball hospital with a badly injured left foot, as the result of an accident in which a motorcycle which he was riding and an automobile came together Thursday afternoon, not far from the John garage. Several small bones in the foot are broken and the flesh is severely lacerated, but amputation will not be necessary. Johnson was proceeding in a westerly direction and was not far from the garage when an automobile driven by Joseph Bessett of Hudson, Mass., rounded the corner and the machines crowded each other. Johnson's foot probably was crushed between the motorcycle and some part of the automobile. The injured man was immediately brought to the hospital in Putnam and will have to remain there for some week.

D., of Attleboro, Mass., delivered the address to the graduates, speaking on The Highest Trail. The presentation of diplomas was by Mrs. Edith Hall Dohan, of Philadelphia, daughter of the late Prof. E. R. Hall, for many years principal of the academy.

REFLECTING PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

[illegible] conventions in which the [illegible] for a single candidate in [illegible] in his policies is so [illegible]ous are rare, but the [illegible] convention at Cleveland [illegible] unusual exception to [illegible] it reflected a public [illegible] generally and strongly [illegible] reason for this practi[illegible]animinity was that 98 per [illegible] delegates were devoted to [illegible] and the cause of the [illegible]ent, while the remaining two [illegible] from Wisconsin, which [illegible]planation enough in itself.

[illegible] such reflection of public [illegible] came in the remarkable [illegible]nstration given for Secretary [illegible] when he appeared upon the [illegible]vention platform to make a per[illegible]inction. This can be inter[illegible] not so much as a demonstra[illegible] to the man as for his policy as [illegible]al officer of the govern[illegible]t, along with recognition of his [illegible]evements in the management of [illegible]ficult financial situation left by [illegible] war. Having in view the previ[illegible] evidences of public approval of [illegible] tax plans and the resentment for [illegible] the way in which they were spurned [illegible]y congress it was an expression that might well have been expected.

Unmistakable indications came out [illegible] of the different attitude taken by the delegates and the spectators towards the administration and towards congress for the latter's failure to support the president in his measure of tax reduction and economy. Every occasion to express this sentiment was seized by the delegates to emphasize their resentment of those who had blocked the plans of the administration. It afforded food for reflection for those members of congress who had assumed they had interpreted the trend of public sentiment when making their compromises with insurgent or democratic forces by when openly departing from the president's policies.

Congress has had an ear too attentive to the loud voices of groups in sections and too deaf to that more general feeling that has been felt rather than heard. With the visible evidence from the Cleveland convention before us, it is to be expected that such a reflection of public sentiment cannot fail to have its influence in the campaign as well as upon the course of events afterwards.

WILL M'ADOO DO?

It has been pretty generally conceded that Mr. McAdoo will enter the democratic national convention as the leading candidate for the nomination for the presidency, but some political observers have been suggesting the parallel between McAdoo's involvement with the oil scandal and the situation in the nomination of Mr. Blaine, whose revealed dealings in stocks and bonds while speaker of the house impaired public confidence in him and contributed to his defeat at the polls. The lesson of Blaine's frustrated ambition has not been lost upon political managers and they have been wary about endorsing candidates of undoubted qualifications but with loose joints in their armor of character through which the arrows of criticism might find a way.

Though it may be true that McAdoo's entanglement is in no way so deep as was Mr. Blaine's, the nature of the law business which he accepted immediately upon resigning as secretary of the treasury revealed a moral insensitiveness that may well serve as a determining handicap when he seeks the nomination for the presidency. A scrupulous observance of the proprieties in the relation of private business to public interests is called for in a candidate for the presidency and that Mr. McAdoo has been crushed when he was found wanting in this respect is testimony to his remarkable powers of leadership and the ability to attach and hold partisans to himself.

Without the oil investigation there is little doubt that Mr. McAdoo would have been the democratic presidential nominee on the first ballot. If there is to be any wholesome effects of such muckraking as has been going on in Washington in the oil and Daugherty scandals it should be to raise the standard of public service. Should the nomination of McAdoo still be accomplished, it would force the conclusion that the moral sense of the country is too indifferent to demand the higher standard in its public servants at Washington.

CHILDREN'S TRAFFIC HABITS.

When prehistoric man trapped, tamed and converted into a beast of burden the first donkey pressed into the service of man, it may be probable that the inhabitants of his home village arose as one and sought to banish the donkey from the village on the ground that in proceeding to his master's home in the discharge of his transport duties, he might step on the children. Every advance in highway transportation since that time has been resisted in the same way and for the same excellent reason. In all the centuries since that time children have not developed an instinct for traffic dangers. They have to be taught.

Of all the menaces to child safety the automobile is certainly the most dangerous. Children have a way of retrieving balls from the street without stopping to estimate their chance of successfully disputing the right of way with a swiftly moving automobile. And mature motorists, intent upon the business of getting there, have a way sometimes of acting as if a special police detail had cleared the roadway for their particular accommodation. Between the two conditions there result a good many lost or maimed children and a good many remorseful adults banished by their conscience from the driver's seat of an automobile.

"Safety First" campaigns for the children which can be conducted through parents and school authorities, with a campaign on the part of the police against the careless or heedless driver, have been conducted in some places with notably good results. It is recorded that school children have had it so thoroughly drilled into them to stop, look and listen and take their time before crossing a street that traffic accidents of this character have almost disappeared. Such a well directed effort would be worth trying anywhere.

EXPENSIVE BEAUROCRACY.

In the recent history of American government one of the surprising developments has been the multiplicity of bureaus and commissions that have been created. It is no exaggeration to say that a great deal of the growth of taxes during the last decade has been due to this seemingly inordinate desire to make our government machinery more involved and complex. Red tape processes are circuitous enough and expensive enough under ordinary conditions, but when such a growth of bureaus and commissions is witnessed as is seen in the last ten years in national and state governments, the miles of red tape that must be unwound at the expense of the people are increased enormously.

If the American people expect and hope to reduce taxes to the point desired, there must be a halt called in this tendency to increase expensive organizations at the national and the state capitols. Despite the astounding increase in the past decade in the number of commissions, there is not a session of congress nor of any state legislature but that some members desire to add to the list with a salary roll and an expense account to pile onto the burden that taxpayers are already bearing for the conduct of public business. So many bureaus and commissions for the country to support have come into existence that the average citizen could not begin to enumerate them if his life depended upon it.

Taxation is the only way to meet the expenses of these bureaus and commissions, of which the effect on the public expenditure is obvious as they are costing tens of millions of dollars. If we are going to continue to create bureaus and commissions we will have to provide for their maintenance and the only way is through paying even higher and higher taxes as few of them turn in anything on their own account.

Congress is oblivious to the lesson yet. Last year we had three and a half times as many independent bureaus and offices as we had ten years ago and they cost the federal government 43 times as much to maintain as they did a decade ago.

NEW JAPANESE AMBASSADOR.

The new Kato government in Japan is not sending a boy to a man's job when it picks Viscount Kijuhiro Ishii to be ambassador at Washington, and assuredly it is not sending a man to a boy's job.

Deft diplomat as he is, Ishii need not expect and will not expect to bring any tact to bear for the modification of the Japanese exclusion policy. If that were possible, Secretary of State Hughes would have accomplished it without Oriental assistance.

Yet the commercial and diplomatic relations between this country and Japan are bound to be seriously and continuously affected by the resented exclusion. Boycotts on American goods are being organized in many parts of the island empire. Official discrimination against American traders and American exporters may be delayed and is sure to be camouflaged, but must be anticipated as an incident of the situation. Also in the inflamed condition of the Japanese public mind, American tourists and American missionaries are very likely to suffer from local violence for which Tokio will have no more moral responsibility than the United States has chosen to assume for the Parish Prison lynchings of Italians at New Orleans or the Rock Springs mob murder of 117 Chinamen.

Smoothing things over will be Ishii's work. He is admirably equipped for the task. His selection, not yet officially confirmed, but hardly doubted in any quarter, is not precisely a friendly gesture toward America, but is a wise move to guard against any shadow of hostilities between the United States and Japan.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Honor the flag today.

One nice thing about getting convention oratory by radio is that you can shut the radio off.

While Leopold was studying ornithology he apparently had no idea he was to furnish a study in jailbirds.

The man on the corner says: Cheers, sneers and snores are three stages that may be reached in a political convention.

In ten or a dozen states youths under 18 may marry. How will they support their wives under the anti-child labor amendment?

The custom that prevents any man from being an active candidate for vice president must have been undergoing a pretty severe strain in the past few days.

Major Martin of the world flyers speaks like a man and a philosopher. In resigning his command in favor of Lieutenant Smith, he says: "Success is the thing." And so, indeed, it is.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

I am more and more impressed with the clear philosophy of Rabindranath Tagore, the Hindu thinker and writer. It would be well for us to get over any prejudice we have in favor of the Anglo-Saxon race as the exclusive thinkers of the world. Taken all in all they probably excel other peoples because of the superior advantages they have had. But this race has certainly not yet cornered all that is fine and thoughtful in literature. Let it be readily admitted that Europe and America stand foremost as thought producers, and yet now and then a giant arises among Orientals and among them the writer would put that clear thinker Rabindranath Tagore. Take that sentence of his in "The Realization of Life": "man's freedom is never in being saved troubles, but it is the freedom to take trouble for his good, to make the trouble an element." Here is something as profound as Plato, and as beautifully expressed as Ruskin or Hawthorne.

As we analyze the above sentence we shall find that Tagore's conception of freedom is man's ability to act within the realm of law, thus discriminating between liberty and license. When a man oversteps the bound of law he is acting through license, and the ulterior motive of license is some form of selfishness that would escape trouble. But when man knows that he is free to act for the highest purposes of his being he realizes that trouble cannot be escaped. He spurns it, he laughs at it, for he knows that nothing worth having is free from trouble. He knows that freedom is not salvation from troubles. But Tagore is keen enough to see that trouble has its place in the economy of human activity. While troubles may crush little people Tagore recognizes that men and women of large mental and moral power can make trouble a pathway to excellence.

Along material lines the automobile is looming up very fast as the biggest thing in our modern life. There is, as yet, no reason for believing that it has reached the climax of its prosperity. Make a journey of seventy-five or an hundred miles in any direction with a machine and one will begin to realize how far the American people have accepted the automobile as a necessity. It is almost a vital factor in doing the day's work. That it is here to stay is beyond all reasonable question. What it has already done and is still doing in the line of industry, new in the fine state roads which the motor vehicle has created. They have as completely supplanted the old mud trails that once passed for public highways as the steam cars have crowded out the old stage coach. What the automobile is doing is also seen in the service stations along the public highways which have been demanded by the increase of traffic.

As we might naturally expect a mighty industry has affected the spirit of our people. It has practically banished country life as it used to be, especially in those sections in which these great highways pass. It is perfectly safe to say that the old narrow life of country communities has been abolished in being brought into such a close contact with urban life as the automobile has brought about. It is quite possible for men to live in the country and do business in cities ten or fifteen miles away. Somehow the country is losing that rustic grace that made it quite distinct from city life. The automobile has removed that unjust epithet of "hayseed" from the farmer. The automobile has brought him in to such close relations with his city brother that he is his equal in refinement. The dreariness of the old New England country has gone forever—thanks to the automobile.

It is sometimes well to present facts to the public, even though well-known to the great majority—"lest we forget." On the 14 of June, 1777 the Continental congress resolved that the flag of the united colonies should have 13 stripes of red and white alternating, to represent the number of colonies, with 13 stars in a blue field. This became the flag as we have it today, the only change being the addition of a new star with every new state added to the union. It was also at that time stipulated that the width of the flag should be two-thirds of its length. Seven of the stripes, beginning with the outermost, are red. The blue field is square and has the width of seven stripes. These facts are given to show that no changes have been made from the original plans, with the exception of the addition of new stars. Had not the flag been the very perfection of beauty changes undoubtedly would have been made.

As a matter of less importance, but as indicating a wonderful record of journalistic activity, it may be well to recall that on June 14, 1860, was the first issue of The New York World, easily one of the great daily newspapers of the century. It naturally carries one's mind back to the days of wonderful men in editorial chairs; men whose word was law and gospel, to their constitutents—probably more so than in these days of larger general enlightenment when people do more thinking for themselves. Manton Marble who founded The World was not so influential as Horace Greeley with The Tribune, or James Gordon Bennett with The Herald, or Henry J. Raymond with The Times. For a small provincial city, as Springfield, Mass., was in 1860, it could boast of an editor of national renown in Samuel Bowles. Now these are only a few of the many names that might be cited to show that when The New York World was started this country was rich in great editors.

Has not the time fully arrived for a more vigorous application of the principles of civil service reform? The manner in which our important public business is conducted is not much of a credit to this great republic. Take for a single illustration the condition of the government printing office. President Harding summoned as public printer George H. Carter, a veteran at the business. At a recent meeting of the Typothetae Federation at Atlantic City, the revelations he made of corruption and graft have astounded the country. If a man ever did heroic house-cleaning then Carter is the man. According to his own words he found a secret still that was making and furnishing congressmen with bootleg whisky. Betting on horse racing and other forms of gambling were found to be commonly practiced by the employes. Is such a condition of things really strange since the present congressmen were elected by less than one third of the voting strength of the country?

Some diseases have the reputation of being aristocratic, chief of which is the gout, supposed to result from high living. But as average wealth increased it was found that more people, not otherwise strikingly aristocratic, were having the gout. Of course this was fatal to the aristocratic end of it, and soon the gout disappeared. Today there is a disease that afflicts only degenerates of the millionaire class. It is called brain storm, an intermittant disease which when active urges young Croesus to commit a fiendish crime. This brain storm soon passes and the degenerate becomes a safe member of human society again. The brain storm, of course, saves him from the penalty of the law. It does not take a doctor to treat this disease, only a criminal lawyer big enough to command a million dollar fee. In spite of this fact there are some people who say that it is not true here in America that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor.

CURRENT BUSINESS CONDITIONS

The high state of industrial activity which characterized the first quarter of the year reached its crest about the middle of March and has been declining since, but in recent weeks the downward movement apparently has been checked, the curtailment of production and of wholesale buying having outrun the falling off in the retail distribution. The latter is what usually happens in a period when prices are weakening, says the June business letter issued by the National City Bank of New York.

The Wage Question.

The answer to the question how far industrial reaction is likely to go, depends mainly upon whether or not the general wage situation requires readjustment in order to afford the basis of permanent prosperity.

Aside from the question of fair and just relations there is the economic question involved. It is possible to maintain an inequality of compensation which judged by pre-war standards is artificial, and have even the beneficiaries of that situation enjoy permanent prosperity? In other words, does not the economic law require a fair exchange of goods and services throughout industrial society as the price of prosperity even for the strongest groups?

All students of the subject are agreed that it is not money-wages that count, but what the wage-earner finally gets for his money-wages. He would not be benefited by an increase in his nominal pay if he found that his pay would buy no more afterwards than before, and this would be the case if every producer's pay went up in the same degree at the same time and all products and services went up together. But when all do not go up together, some gain at the expense of the others. The aggregate of purchasing power by some is lost by the others. This is the week spot in the argument for high wages as a means of increasing purchasing power.

It is a valid argument when used against a reduction of wages below the normal balance between wages and products, but not a valid argument when used in behalf of a wage scale above the normal parity with other values. Changes which have the effect of creating unbalanced relations between different branches of industry reduce purchasing power, disturb the regular exchanges, interfere with the distribution and consumption of products and make bad times.

Cotton Goods Situation.

The cotton goods industry supplies most of the raw material for the garment industry, and also serves to illustrate present conditions. Wages nominally are very high, much more than double the pre-war level, but rents and services are high, because wages are so high in the building trades and building material industries, etc., etc. But cotton goods are high also because of short crops, and as they are not selling freely, the mills have been running on short time.

The outstanding fact is that the mills are not able to sell goods enough to furnish steady employment, and that they are not making any money for themselves. The situation is an unprofitable one all around, but coming at a time when the farmers are being told that they must adjust themselves to economic conditions, the appeal for a higher tariff on cotton goods does not seem opportune. It might be well if the mill-workers could meet the farmers of all sections who are their customers and who supply them with meat, flour, milk and other foodstuffs and compare compensation.

The Howell-Barkley Bill.

Pertinent to this matter of transportation costs is the Howell-Barkley bill now pending in congress, which is sponsored and pressed by the labor railroad organizations for the purpose of doing away with the existing railroad labor board. In its place the Howell-Barkley bill proposes to set up four boards for "conference, adjustment, mediation and conciliation," of 14 members each, with salaries of $7,000 per year, and another board of "mediation and arbitration" consisting of five commissioners with salaries of $12,000 (and the boards have authority to employ and fix the compensation of such "attorneys, assistants, special experts, clerks and other employes as it may from time to time find necessary." These boards are to afford the means of mediation between companies and employes, and of arbitration, if agreed upon, but the principal purpose apparently is getting rid of the present board and the public representation thereon.

It is a strange situation when senators and representatives claiming particularly to represent the farmers are all actively co-operating in the effort to eliminate the public representation, although complaining of freight charges at the same time. Their action is in line with that of a recent convention of the Farmer-Labor party in Idaho, which passed resolutions calling for a reduction of freight rates, but specifying that it be brought about without any wage reductions. Such a declaration is evidence of friendly feelings toward the wage-earners but of mistaken ideas about railroad earnings and expenses.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, whose attitude with regard to a third party ticket has been a subject of anxious speculation among the leaders of both political parties, today enters upon his 70th year. For many years Mr. La Follette has been an Independent, though nominally a republican, leader in the senate. On numerous occasions he has made temporary alliances with factors with whom he ordinarily ha dno contacts, in order to gain ends that he believed to be right. All of this has made him a difficult lawmaker for successive presidents to satisfy, or to establish working relations with. He is a native of Wisconsin, of mixed French and Scotch race stocks, and made his first mark in Wisconsin political life as district attorney. From 1885 to 1901 he sat in congress and shared in the policies and tactics of the republican party, though with some signs of insubordination. Two terms in the governorship were followed by his election to the senate in 1905.

Lady Astor's Difficulties Were Many

With beauty, education, a quick mind and fine spirit, Lady Nancy Astor has had her problems to solve and her difficulties to overcome.

As Nancy Witcher Langhorne, scion of an aristocratic but landpoor family, she spent her girlhood in Greenwood, Va. As a child she underwent a severe illness, and she was not physically as strong or statuesque as her sister.

Married in her teens to Robert G. Shaw of Boston, her wedded life proved unhappy, and divorce followed within six years.

She met William Waldorf Astor of the famous Astor family. His father was very ambitious for the son and wanted him to marry into the English peerage, so there was perturbation in the Astor family over the courtship. The senior Astor finally gave his consent and they were married in 1906.

When Lady Astor entered English society ladies of the peerage made it unpleasant with their snubs. King Edward arranged a function to assist her, and even there they tried to check her popularity, but her tact and wit won.

To aid others, she went into politics, aided the suffragists, made fund-raising speeches for the soldiers during the war, and helped her husband win his seat in the house of commons.

Lord Astor became viscount, and Lady Astor was nominated as a candidate for his place in the house of commons. A newspaper called her campaign "circus stunts." Hecklers attacked her wealth, her Americanism, her nobility, her motherhood. Epithets and vegetables were thrown at her. But she won the election.

England's first woman member of parliament, she was discussed by the world. Frightened when preparing to be sworn in, she saw Lloyd George and Arthur J. Balfour trembling and her fear gave way to laughter.

In parliament she had to overcome prejudices of generations, to debate with seasoned statesmen and to take up unpopular measures that had waited years for a woman sponsor in the house.

She won arguments, had bills passed and last month was re-elected. She is much interested in charities, her beautiful home with its six children, is a happy one, and she is one of the world's most popular women.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Word of Christ.

Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly.—Col. 3:16. As the seed goes into the soil of the earth and the soil of the earth does not understand it, so the seed of the truth of Christ goes into our memories, and our memory does not understand it. But it strikes its living roots down into our thoughts, and by and by we are lifted—transfigured into the likeness of Christ. But the morning—the springtime—is the time to pack the memory with the truth of Christ, for then the sensitized plate of the memory has not taken on face after face, or habit after habit.

In the spring-time, when the soil is moist and warm, then it takes in the seed and gives back quickly; but in the summer, after the July sun has exhausted the moisture, it is wasted. So the time to pack the memory with the truth of Christ is in the spring-time, before the hot sun of middle age has exhausted the soil of its ambition, thought and imagination; before the impress of the busy world has come upon the soul.

An old gentleman regarding a beautiful poem written by Mrs. Alexander, said: "I would give, much if I could memorize that poem, but the day for me to memorize is past."

A man's memory may be packed with great principles, but they are of no use to him because they have not entered into his life through faith. But what is faith? It is trust in a person; dependance upon the word of the person. It is more than that: it is the imagining power of the soul. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for; it is the evidence of things not seen."

Did you ever study the faith that Abraham walked by? He imaged the future by his faith. He ended as seeing the invisible. The ideal was real to him as the image of the new continent hung over the soul of Columbus, so the image of a great future hung over the horizon of Abraham's faith; and he set the picture of this great future upon the canvas of his faith as the artist sets his picture upon canvas. He saw the picture that God was to bring through him of a great descendency long before the world saw it.

Noah knew more than the men with whom he mingled. He saw that the flood was to come long before it came. He saw the destruction of the people on the imagery of his faith long before any one else knew it. By faith he saw the ship that he was building floating on the waters safe in God"s care; and he saw because he trusted God. His faith saved him.

"Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly; a financial upheaval may take away all your wealth, but no power in heaven or earth can take from you the "Word of Christ," it is as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil.

SAIGON AND HONOI

"True French boulevards with their sidewalk cafes, pastry shops and displays of Parisian modes; fashionably gowned ladies who drive in the park of an afternoon; Latin accents; and many of the other touches that make Paris what it is, are to be found in Saigon and Honoi, in French Indo-China, 6,500 miles from the Eiffel Tower as the crow — or a French airman—flies," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The bulletin deals with the first really French cities to be touched by Captain D'Oisy in his spectacular flight from Paris to Tokyo.

"Saigon and Honoi are unfailing objects of wonder to the few tourists who poke about in the odd corners of the Far East. In them France has accomplished as much as America has done with Manila or Great Britain with Hong Kong or Singapore; and in addition to giving them industries, cleaning them and supplying sanitation, public utilities and good rule, the French have greatly beautified them.

"Bits of these cities seem veritable parts of Paris set down barely outside the jungle. Well-shaded and perfectly maintained boulevards cross both cities, and lining them or set in their parks are monumental public buildings in the best French architecture.

In certain sections of the cities it is difficult to realize that one is not in a progressive European capital, were it not for the trikshas that flash by pulled by trotting Annamites.

"The major parts of both Saigon and Honoi are given over to native quarters, but those portions of the cities are apart from the beautiful and Europeanized sections. As in Chinese cities, the native stores are confined to special quarters. There is thus a section in which dwell copper and brass smiths, another for potters, another for cabinet makers, etc.

"Railroads serve both Saigon and Honoi; and monumental 'Union Stations,' puffing locomotives, and the familiar long spans of steel, vaulting broad rivers, take one's thoughts again back to the west.

"Saigon, which is the capital of Cochin-China, France's first Asiatic land, was also for a long time the center of administration for the other provinces and protectorates that make up French Indo-China. But in 1902 that distinction was taken from Saigon and conferred upon Honoi which has a population of about 83,000, but its suburbs swell the total to near 200,000.

"Honoi has ample possibilities for beautification and the French have made the most of them. In addition to the Red river which serves as a transportation artery, the city and its environs are dotted with a number of lakes ranging from Le Petit Lac, perhaps half a square mile in area, to Le Grand Lac, many times its size. Some of the most charming parks and drives of the city are on the banks of these lakes. The population of the city is more than 125,000.

"The Bay d'Along, close to Haipong, port of Honoi, presents one of the most striking scenic features to be found in either hemisphere. Rocky Isles and peninsulas of various hues, carved by waves into all manner of forms—tall spires, terraces, domes, gigantic mushrooms, huge caverns, and innumerable other shapes—make up a sort of super Garden of the Gods of the Sea. A few sightseers now visit the Bay, but in time it is inevitable that boat-loads of tourists will steam among its wonders as they do today in Japan's Inland Sea, Alaska's Inside Passage, and Norway's fjords."

THE CHILD'S SOCIAL PROBLEM

By Sophie Kitchener

In a more or less hushed, expectant, unresisting attitude a group of children were waiting for one of their number, who was at that moment howling his way across the street, to reach his mother "to tell her on them." The occurrence was not a new one. In another moment the boy's mother would hurry out of the house in answer to her son's lusty cries and cross the street to learn what had happened to him.

The children were not afraid of her. There was rather a sense of long-suffering endurance in the way they waited for the scolding and her threats that "they would get into trouble if they did not leave Jimmy alone." They were quite bored, although they did not know the name for the feeling, at the frequency of this same happening. They were conscious too that they did not go out of their way to hurt Jimmy. They rather liked him and were really friendly. But it was his inability to play along with them and accept the general drive and take of their youthful society that had become annoying; a disagreeable shadow was cast when he joined the group. The shadow was specifically that of his mother, ready at all times to come out to defend and protect him from them. This was, of course, because she could not see that he needed no more protection in his social experiences than the rest of them.

When Jimmy went crying home, they knew in some vague way that the ethics of their group, their child's society, had been violated. The tattler who, instead of standing up and taking the little hurts they all had to endure, or fighting it out if it reached such a pass, always ran home to his mother, roaring his chagrin at the top of a powerful pair of lungs with no thought of shame, was in a sense an outlaw.

They were too young to realize that it was not entirely Jimmy's fault. His mother had encouraged his natural timidity with her own overweening sense of protection. Furthermore she desired to have her mind at rest through knowing "everything he did." So she had cautioned him to come to her whenever anything went wrong, to tell her when anyone hurt him and, in general, to come running to her with every petty difficulty attendant upon finding his bearings in the social order.

Nor did she realize that Jimmy would have little innate power to defend himself in the increasingly intricate social struggles if she acted as a shield for him throughout his childhood, the determining period of his life.

So, with the circumstances such as they were, all Jimmy could continue to do was disturb his playmates and acquire for himself a disposition that would be difficult to escape in manhood——and simply because his mother brought no real thought to bear on the working out of his problem as an individual and as a future man.

When the Situation Was Changed.

The manager of the store was approached by a clerk. "There is a woman down there with a complaint," she began.

He raised his hand. "I haven't time to talk to her," he said. "Make it right for her. You can take care of her I know."

A few minutes later he wandered down to that part of the store. The clerk was talking to a beautiful young girl. The manager stared and then walked up to them. "I find I have time for the complaint," he began.

Imagine his horror when the clerk motioned to a waiting woman, who was 40 and fat. The beautiful young thing was another customer.

Much Appreciated, Sure.

On the night of election a district politician entered a group which was waiting for the count. Shortly he approached one who resembled a successful candidate, and grasping the stranger's hand, he said:

"Well, Mr. X., I did everything I could for you over in my district and I did you a lot of good, too."

"I surely appreciate that," the accosted one replied. That was mighty nice of you."

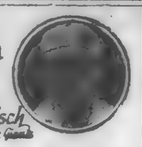
How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants



Is the catcher ever used to back up plays made on the infield?

The catcher is used to back up first base when a ball is hit to right and there is not a runner on the bases. On such a hit the catcher's duty is to handle any overthrow or any ball that gets by first base. He works in cooperation with the pitcher on such a play. If the hit is one that the first baseman can handle it is the duty of the pitcher to cover the base and a pitcher who is neglectful about doing so is never very popular with a manager. If the first baseman in handling such a ball makes a poor throw the catcher is in line to retrieve it and a high class catcher frequently takes such an overthrow in time to throw the runner out in his attempt to make second. I know of no play that commands more admiration from those who know baseball well than to see the catcher acting as an accessory fielder under these conditions. Catcher may even back up first on such a play when there is a runner on first and in one major league game when the attempt was made to catch the runner coming to first because the one coming from first to second had too great a lead, the catcher so skillfully handled an overthrow as to catch the man who started for second as he was headed for third so that the play left his team in a far better position than if the original play had been successfully made at first base.

Waterbury hit almost as well and with several bases on balls to help had good chances, but failed to get the breaks and runs came hard. Lefler's batting was a feature, a single, double and home run.

YANKEES-DETROIT GAME FORFEITED TO YANKS AFTER FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT

Detroit, June 13.—Intense rivalry between the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers culminated in a near riot in the ninth inning of today's game. Members of both teams, and fans who crowded onto the field participated in the melee. When the disorder became so intense that police were unable to clear the playing field, Umpire Evans forfeited the game to New York 9 to 0.

The trouble is said to have started in a game at the Yankee stadium on the last eastern invasion of the Tigers. During that game a fist fight between Blue and McNally was staged and both were banished from the game.

The none too friendly feeling was decidedly noticeable in the first game of the present series here Wednesday and it gradually continued to swell until today when Pitcher Cole unintentionally hit Rightfielder Meusel in the back with a pitched ball. Ruth, who had preceded the Yankee rightfielder to the plate, had narrowly escaped being hit with a ball on two occasions.

Meusel threw down his bat and rushed at Cole. Meanwhile the Tiger players congregated and Umpires Evans and Ormsby dragged Meusel away before he could follow up his missed swing. Ruth ran into the center of the diamond just as Manager Cobb of the Tigers came in and they had a heated exchange of words.

Ruth charged the Tiger pitchers were attempting to "bean" the New York players. This Cobb vehemently denied and after order was temporarily restored, Umpire Evans banished Meusel and Cole from the game. The players had just about returned to their respective positions when Meusel, accompanied by "Bullet Joe" Bush went over to the Tiger dugout.

Meusel, it is charged, made a swing at one of the players and Third Baseman Haney countered. By this time the disorder was general and all Yankee and Tiger players were fighting among themselves.

This was the signal for the irate fans to swarm upon the field. Policemen rushed from all corners of the park but they were unable to cope with the situation. Fist fights were common and the fans and policemen were battling each other. Meanwhile the more tranquil ball players had restored peace among their fighting teammates.

The policemen and even minded fans attempted to crowd the frenzied fans from the field. Their efforts were of no avail and encounters broke out afresh. At this point Umpire Evans seeing that peace could not be restored officially declared the game forfeited to New York.

The players of both teams peacefully retired to their respective dressing rooms. Several hundred fans, however, continued to mill around the dugout of the Yankees and Tigers but a battery of policemen kept them at a safe distance. No further disorder was occasioned when the players left for their hotels.

MRS. PORTER WINS TITLE IN CONNECTICUT GOLF

Hartford, June 13—Mrs. C. H. Porter, of New Haven today won the Connecticut women's golf championship by defeating Miss Marion Bennett, of Shuttle Meadow one up, nineteen holes. The match was described by spectators as one of the best ever seen at a championship match of the association.

Miss Bennett, 15 years old, seemed at all times an equal of her far more experienced competitor, and her game was in most respects remarkable for a player of her years. A large gallery followed the players.

Mrs. Porter won the first two holes and lost the next two, the next two were halved and Miss Bennett took the seventh. The play continued to alternate until at the 17th, Mrs. Porter was one up. Miss Bennett squared the match at the eighteenth and on the nineteenth Mrs. Porter was a bit better taking it six strokes to five, and the match and title.

Last year the title was won by Mrs. Burnside Winslow who defeated Mrs. Perry, of Fairfield over the New Haven country club course.

Mrs. Porter will receive a gold medal from the Connecticut state golf association, which is the men's organization, but the women are to subscribe for a cup and on it Mrs. Porter's name will be placed.

The winner of the second eight was Mrs. John Owsley, of New Haven, who defeated Mrs. R. K. Smith, of Hartford 3 and 2. The winner of the third eight was Mrs. James Stretch, of Hartford, who defeated Mrs. S. White, of Sequin, one up, nineteen holes. The winner of the fourth eight was Mrs. Frederick Arnold, of Hartford, who defeated Mrs. A. H. Chase, of Norwich, 3 up. The winner of the fifth eight was Mrs. J. B. Linde, of Race Brook, who defeated Mrs. F. P. Chilfolle, of Waterbury, five and four. The winner of the sixth eight was Mrs. C. P. Goss, of Waterbury, who defeated Mrs. B. Hemingway, of New Haven, one up, 19 holes.

The driving contest went to Mrs. Burch Warner, of New Haven, and the putting contest to Mrs. Raymond Ellis, of Hartford.

BARNES IS ELIMINATED FROM PLAY BY DUNCAN

Gleneagles, Scotland, June 13 (By the A. P.)—Jim Barnes, the American professional golfer, today was eliminated from the 1,000 guineas golf tournament by George Duncan, Great Britain, the hero of many hard fought contests, by a score of 2 up and 1 to play. Barnes on Thursday qualified for the semi-final round by winning from Aubrey Boomer, the former French open champion, 1 up.

Today Barnes played his second shot exceptionally well, and led to the fourth green, where the match was squared. Duncan then took the lead, but Barnes stuck close to him throughout and after a gallant fight, the end came on the penultimate green.

Angel Delatorre took Abe Mitchell to the last green, where Mitchell won. Duncan and Mitchell will play the final tomorrow.

FOUR CREWS QUALIFY FOR OLYMPIC FINALS

Philadelphia, June 13.—Before more than 10,000 rain soaked spectators, Yale navy officers, University of Pennsylvania and the navy varsity qualified for the finals in the eight oared shells event in the Olympic trials on the Schuylkill river today. The first three named crews negotiated the mile and a quarter in record breaking time for the course.

Eights eliminated were Massachusetts Institute of Technology, navy junior varsity, New York Athletic club and the Undine Barge club of this city.

Pennsylvania Barge club, with Harold C. Wilson stroking, Leon L. Butler in the bow seat and E. F. Jennings, coxswain, won the pair oared final tryout by a few feet from the University of Pennsylvania. Undine Barge club, finished third. All the entries were from Philadelphia. The winning crew will make the trip to the Seine.

Coach Frank Muller's Bachelors Barge club four oared shell qualified for the trip to Paris when it won a thrilling race from the Lone Star Boat club of New York by a half length. The Penn Barge club was third; Penn Athletic club fourth, and Vesper, B. C. last, all except the Lone Star are Philadelphia crews.

The Bachelors, with a crew made up of former college and club oarsmen, rowed a beautiful race and virtually took the heart out of the Lone Stars and Pennsylvania Barge in the last gruelling quarter mile.

RECORDS SMASHED AT OLYMPIC FIELD TRIALS

Cambridge, Mass., June 13—(By the Associated Press)—American hopes of another international track and field triumph in the 1924 Olympic games at Paris were raised to high pitch today when the pick of Uncle Sam's athletes, competing in the preliminaries of the final tryouts at the Harvard stadium, smashed two world's records in one of the most remarkable exhibitions of speed and brawn everwitnessed in a single meet.

Sensational performances in nearly every event exceeded the expectations of the most ardent Yankee supporter and with prospects of even more spectacular competition tomorrow, America promises to enter the Olympic lists with an array of stars as formidable as any she has ever sent in search of Olympic conquest.

No better proof of the brilliant calibre of today's tests can be given than the fact that eleven performances bettered present Olympic records, while three others equalled international standards.

Th world's record feats that stood out brightly were hung up by Jackson Scholz, veteran New York Athletic club sprinter, who established a new 200 metre mark of 21 seconds flat, and J. Coard Taylor, a club-mate and former intercollegiate champion, who created a new mark of 48 1-10 seconds for the 400 metre run.

Trumbull Stars Win

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 13—The Fort Trumbull Stars gained their second victory in the city league this evening by kaisomining the Tabs in a seven inning game by a 6 to 0 score. Johnstone advanced to the limelight in the city baseball circles by twirling shutout ball. He had things pretty much his own way through the entire game and allowed but five hits in all. He was never in trouble, the Tabs being mystified by his hurling. Johnstone's cross fire ball had the Tabs guessing at all times.

"Tis But a Little Faded Flower.

'Tis but a little faded flower,
But kindly Memory fondly dear;
For it brings me back one golden hour
To crush many a weary year.

I may not to the world impart
The secret of its power,
But treasured in my inmost heart,
I keep my faded flower.

Where is the heart that doth not keep Within its inmost core,
Some fond remembrance, hidden deep,
Of days that are no more?

I have not saved some trifling toy
Or jewel's power,
More prized than jewels rare—
A faded flower, a broken ring
A tress of golden hair?

ENJOYS ROL LCALL

Dear Corner Friends: How nice it is to have the roll call, and to hear so many say "Present." There are yet many absentees to hear from. The large family we are getting to know already there are over three hundred names published and the alphabet is still in its infancy.

Dear How it did rain after I left the past. Guess they must be glad from seed for they have gone the woodvine twineth.

Wifey Belle: Your letter at hand. Was glad you were not sugar or else you would have melted in that shower. Glad you arrive in time for the Grange meeting.

Rambler: Why so silent? Did Mrs. R. receive the medicine for her pets. I sent a large package, but have never heard if it arrived. What luck did she have with her baby "scovies"? Please [illegible] mine appears a little [illegible]

Rhoda: My lilies of the valley are [illegible] send forth any blooms [illegible] if I had set them in [illegible] could have.

Wish sorry I could not attend [illegible] but should have only [illegible] Hope you received a [illegible] of cards for your birthday [illegible] I failed to see anything [illegible] about that picture.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

WANTS HISTORY OF CORNER

Editor and Social Corner Sister: [illegible] to acknowledge receipt [illegible] for one dollar from the [illegible] was both surprised and [illegible] receive one of the month[illegible]

Think we should give the Bulletin a vote of thanks for this pleasant gathering place of so many friends our weekly page, which, to my knowledge has been a department of this paper for many years; and from what I can find it began long before I became a reader of paper. I have seen many papers from different parts of the country, but in none have I seen a similar feature with the life and friendly spirit of our Social Corner page. I think it would be a good idea for some of the first writers gave a sketch of its beginning and told who the charter members were, so to speak.

As usually a full page is taken up with the letters, the name, while probably appropriate at first, seem a little misleading, judging from the number of names in the roll call so far. If we'd take more than the four corners of a room to hold all the members to say nothing of one corner, and a pretty good sized room, moreover, even if you used the whole floor.

I received an Easter postal from Hepatica and want her to know that it came at a dark moment when the ray of sunshine we may almost always count on was much needed. I hope Hepatica, that your mother is better and that you have been able to enjoy, to some extent, at least, the delights of springtime.

On account of ill health, I have enjoyed it mostly through the window, but as cool weather has delayed summer's coming, I am now seeing the perfection of newly opened leaves and the later spring flowers that have been favorites of us all from childhood. With this rainy spring, we can't pick an ideally sunshiny day, the blue overhead, and a green carpet underfoot in place of the brown one of winter, with the brightness of flowers, the grace of tender ferns and young leaves so delicate in texture you wonder how they can withstand the storms of many months, the song of a bird to startle you with its sweetness breaking the quiet of the woods —all these are heaven enough for anyone.

I liked Kittie Lou's letter entitled "Giving and Returning Favors," only it is the latter part I like most where she speaks of how good always shines through evil, or, unseen, is known to be behind it, as on the darkest day we know above the clouds shines undimmed the sun.

I agree with Winnie that there is good in all letters and was cheered by her poem about blossom time. To one who loves flowers, those that grow and bloom in memory's garden are the brightest and most fragrant.

As to Ann Teek's ideas about growing old, I think if we are so fortunate as to have grand children we can grow young again with them, and believe myself that to find the secret of perennial youth, we only have to search for it.

Jr.: As Jesus tells us to do, we seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness, perennial youth is one of the things that will be "added unto the kingdom of God, and where God is, us" for we shall find within ourselves there is no such thing as old age, except as the leaves lose the freshness of June to gain the glory of October, to fall and come again in renewed perfection the following spring, or like the flower that ages into seed or fruit only, after a time to come again with the returning season of new growth. Seventy years young, or ninety years young is my idea, whether the hair is bobbed or done in a curlycue under the cap of a grandma such as mine was who, though she only lived to be 64, according to the custom of the time, wore a cap of ribbon and lace. I think it would be a good idea if each writer should mention the editor in selecting the prize-winning letter. Good wishes to all corner[illegible]

RECIPE OVER THE RADIO

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I think the roll call a fine idea especially for a slacker like myself, but I know I must do my bit when I see my name among the list. I do enjoy reading the letters so much and often wish I could write a nice letter as our many sisters do but I supposed I am not gifted that way. Now here is a nice cake recipe that was taken over the radio hence the name:

Radio Cake—1 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-2 cup of butter scant, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup of sour milk, 1-2 cup of cocoa dissolved in 1-2 cup of boiling water, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 2 cups of flour sifted, 1 tea spoon of soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 small cup of walnut meats, bake in layers.

Frosting—1 cup confectioner's sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 tablespoons of milk 1-4 teaspoon of vanilla, heat well and spread on cake when cool.

I think the sisters will try this recipe, we all think it is fine. Best wishes and success for the Social Corner.

DEW DROP

GRATEFUL FOR KINDNESS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank you very much for the nice presents you sent me. God bless you all for your kindliness of thought and heart. The flowers you sent me were very nice. I am going to try and have them taken home for the dear memories they will bring to me, and the other gift was splendid of you. I wish to thank Mrs. George Robinson of Jewett City (or Della Deal) for her many kindnesses to me since I have been in Backus hospital. May God give her his very best blessing. I am a great deal better than I was and if nothing else sets in I think I will be out in a little while. I will have to learn to walk on crutches for a while I suppose, but that will be better than not walking at all. I will close for this time with many thanks and God bless you all from your Social Corner Sister.

SMILES.

ADMIRES CANTERBURY GREEN

Dear Social Corner Members: What interesting letters the sisters do write and so helpful, too. To the sister who suffered so with corns I extend sympathy. I have suffered with them almost since I can remember and have spent dollars in remedies but don't believe there is any cure for hard corns. When we have a nice day how delightful it is to drive through the country. On a recent Sunday it was my good fortune to ride through the village of Canterbury and as it was just church time, I attended the services which I enjoyed very much. I could not help wondering as I sat there if there were any Social Corner members in the congregation. It was the Sunday when a lady gave a report of a conference she had attended. Just down the hill from Canterbury there was a road that up a hill and such a hill, into Central Village, I think, and such beautiful trees each side of the road. I would like to know if that hill has a name and what it is. I advise all who can to take a ride over that hill and see what a pretty spot Canterbury Green is. Some time ago I promised to send some recipes to some sister, so here is one:

Sour Milk Doughnuts: One large or two small eggs well beaten, add one scant cup sugar, a little salt, one-half teaspoon ginger (to keep them from soaking fat), nutmeg to flavor, two teaspoons mixed fine, one cup sour milk, one heaping teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder sifted in with flour to make the right consistency to roll and not be sticky. Fry in usual manner. I have fine success with this recipe and hope some one will try it.

A Stranger in the City: Will you be enjoying sea breezes this summer? I hear some one say enough, so will stop.

E. L. M.

Cuticura Will Keep The Scalp Clean And Healthy
Anoint the scalp by gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment through partings in the hair, especially on spots of dandruff, letting it stay on over night when possible. Then shampoo with a suds of Cuticura Soap and warm water. Rinse thoroughly.

MAINE SEASON BELOW NORMAL

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is a wet, rainy day. Oh, sights are quite cool and days not very warm yet. So far our summer has been below normal.

It is a great pleasure to see the Social Corner page full of letters, and such good ones, too. Don't get much time nor will my eyes allow of my reading much or long. I am still cleaning house. Got to the living room. Waiting for someone to paint the ceiling.

The lake is very full, much higher than usual at this time of the year, and this morning it looks like a mirror. I have not been fishing yet for have not received my license yet. You see we have to have a license although we live in Maine, the same as people coming from another state, only our fishing license only costs 35 cents.

Every little twig or blade of grass has a smile on it, it seems to me. The air is indened with such a sweet fragrance. Every wind blows a new perfume across Crystal Lake. The sisters tell of flower gardens. I have one started. It is very dry on these gray plains and of course takes much water to keep them revived and coming.

Grace has my sympathy.

I am making over curtains and hope to have good luck—first I have ever done.

I was so sorry to hear of Wildwood's accident, dear girl. I have my letter now, the last one she wrote me, when her eyesight was failing. I trust she is more comfortable now. I, too, would love to learn name of hospital so I could write her.

We have 3 1-2 acres of planting to hoe—planting all done, earlier than usual but a good plan, then there is a breathing spell between times, but hoeing will be done mostly with horse. For vines there are squashes, pumpkin, citron, watermelon, cantaloupes, cucumbers.

We did not have lilacs for Memorial day, they are just coming out now. It is most too cold to sit out and watch them dance at the pavilion. So I go to Neighbor Swan's and watch from their windows. Much warmer and a whole lot nicer.

There are two flocks of baby wild ducks on the lake, nine in one flock and ten in the other. They go to the cottages for their handouts.

I am glad Grandma Gray enjoys my letters, have not much to write about, summer people have not got here yet. I love to read the letters from Florida.

Many thanks for your card Cretia. You did not send address. I have friends in Rochester.

E. M. R. C.—P.—Yes, your letters are interesting.

There I have written a whole lot but it doesn't amount to much after all. Best wishes to all from

COMFORT IN FLOWERS

Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As my name has been called in the roll will respond to it by saying, present. I've enjoyed reading the letters every week, although have not written every week myself as it is so hard for me. I'm better in many ways but don't get over the queer feeling I have had so long but shall later on. I feel as you do, Jeanie, about flowers. To me, flowers are one of the comforts of home life. I always had lots of them when I could get around to care for them indoors and out. But my friends are very kind to me in giving me some when I call, and they also bring me, in some when calling on me. I don't know of anything more cheerful to one when sick and kind of blue than a nice bouquet of lovely flowers.

Olive: Wish you would send in your address as since you moved to Hartford I haven't known the street and number. Think I will ring off, to give room for others to write. To all who are sick and in sorrow I extend sympathy. All good wishes to everyone.

"SOCIAL CORNER" FERN.

Dear Editor: Many thanks for the yellow slip. I shall spend it for flower seeds. The first letter I wrote to the Corner about thirteen years ago, I received a yellow slip and bought house plants with it, and one of the plants was an asparagus fern and it is a thing of beauty. I have it in a large water pail, standing on the floor, and have a ladder for it to climb on. It touches the ceiling and completely fills the window. I call it my Social Corner Fern.

I also have a Theodore Roosevelt fern with about two hundred and fifty fronds on it and some fronds are fully two and a half yards long. So you can imagine the size. It is greatly admired by all who see it. I wish the Corner sisters could all see it.

A YOUNG MOTHER.

GREETINGS TO SISTERS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This is a lovely morning and I am very busy cleaning house. Suppose the other sisters are all through.

I hope to attend the picnic at Versailles as I was there last year and certainly had a fine time.

Neighbor Everready's Sister: How is everything up your way? I heard through H. M. L., that you were at some of the Willimantic Social Corner gatherings. Hope to see you before summer is over.

Papa's Boy: Hope that after school closes you and yours will be able to come over.

Chore Girl: My boys talk about the "baby puppies" often. They want to come up again soon to see them.

Best wishes to all.

CRICKET HEARD FROM

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I saw my name in the roll call this week and will answer "Present." I did not realize there was so many sisters in the Social Corner circle. I see my pen name in twice, but think I can answer to them both as I had some typewritten for me. It has been a long time since I have been able to go to the picnics in Franklin hall as I am further away now.

Long live the Corner.

CRICKET.

WANTS PROMPT RESPONSES.

Dear Corner Folks: You must all observe the long list of names our editor is printing each week and know that he is doing his part in trying to bring out the writers. I think all the responses have been fine so far and many have acted promptly, which seems the proper way to do, for you all know, sisters, that if such things are put off they are soon forgotten; especially through the vacation season. I have a feeling that when the brothers names are called, we will hear from them quickly. To those who have written under several pennames would say the easiest way out of it would be to tell them all in one letter and then we could credit them all in our book, but if it is your pleasure to keep someone guessing (as it is to some) answer to each name. Have been told that one sister had written under a dozen different names. What a busy time she will have and I hope she will respond to every one of them.

In looking at our page last week I thought—why isn't it full? Hope none are just sitting back waiting for their name to be called. And one thing more, do not hesitate to respond for someone whom you know can not do it herself. Just think what a busy time the S. C. S. will have next week and here's hoping for a good day for both of the picnics. Doubt if I get to both but expect to help Rural Aunty and her crowd in making their first picnic a success. Am hopes Club 4 will be well represented.

Delilah Deal: Sincerely hope you will be well enough to attend some of the outings this summer. It would be a great pleasure to me to have that little book you spoke of.

Whirlwind: Nary a chick have we as yet, but may buy some half grown ones later on. Hatched a few last year and a neighbor's cat got a dozen of them, so we are letting her look elsewhere this spring.

To Grace, Trula and all who have met with sorrow: You have my sincere sympathy. If I remember right Pices, you were making inquiries about Sterling and Ekonk Hills; next week will be a good time to find out all about them.

Two little fleas together sat
And one to the other said,
I have no place to hang my hat
Since my old dog is dead!

I've traveled this world from place to place
And further will I roam,
But the first darn dog that shows his face
Will be my home, sweet home.

As new recipes are always interesting to many of us, I feel I must not close this letter without sending one, so here it is for

Potted Veal: Cook a knuckle of veal in as little water as possible. When cold, grind or chop and season with salt and pepper. Put in a mold with three hard boiled eggs placed in it. Strain and season the broth in which veal was cooked and pour over all. Cover and steam a few minutes. The gelatine will set so when it is cold, it may be turned out and sliced.

TWICE TWENTY.

FIND GOOD IN OTHERS.

Dear Editor and Members: I will try and write a few more lines so as to keep up the Corner. I think we all ought to write quite often if only a little. It seems so bright and cheerful this afternoon to see the sun shining. It has been in so much of late, seems so when it does shine everything puts on new life. Am in hopes we shall have a few days of pleasant weather now. We are hoping for a good day the 18th, as we have a programme beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. standard time. Everything will be on standard time. Lunch and all. Hope to see a good number out as I am anxious to meet new faces and get acquainted. We always learn something new from each one so let us not look for faults in others but look for something good and I think we will surely find it. We all have our faults, as the good Book says, "there is none perfect, no not one."

Koche: I hope when you come up this summer you will wear a hat instead of a sunbonnet. I think you could see the berries better. Don't forget to come.

Rural Delivery: Hope to see you the 16th and don't forget to bring a new pattern for a bed quilt as I am very anxious for something new.

Free Air: Don't wait so long to get your breath next time before you write.

Betsy Bobbit: Can't you steal away for two or three hours the 18th? I do wish you might as I think you would enjoy it very much. Come if you possibly can. Will close wishing a good one life to the Corner.

RURAL AUNTY.

CORNER BRINGS OLD FRIENDS.

Dear Sisters of the Corner and Editor: I am glad to answer the roll call and take pleasure in so doing promptly, Present. My name appeared in last Saturday's page and was No. 261 on the list. I find in looking over my Social Corner book I keep that I have a find under A, B and C, which have not been in the list yet and also several who have several different pennames which is rather confusing. It reminds me of a circumstance which was told me long years ago. A girl who claimed, or it was claimed for her, that her name was through much Tribulation we enter into the kingdom of heaven. Then followed two other names, but I wont write those, but later it developed she only had three names, really Tribulation M. G. Perhaps there are some of the Corner sisters like her.

I joined the Social Corner June 1, 1917, the day before my birthday, which comes on June 2, which I think is the same as Country Sister (wish I might know who she is and also Sweet William's, whose comes the 3d of June, so near they are together) and, like Cady, can say those same things in regard to doing as she did and some others.

I have many nice and very pleasant new friends I have made, but also have found many of the old friends of both childhood, school and young ladyhood days that I often have thought of and wondered where they were and what doing, who in the busy, bustling, hurrying world had become sidetracked and we lost sight of each other for a few years. And it has been a great comfort and pleasure for us to renew the acquaintance and have a chance to live over those old days again.

I wish when my name was called I could have answered "Present" and at every meeting have been present since I became a member. I was pretty regular in my attendance until ill health compelled me to gradually begin to drop off until now for over two years I have not been able to attend either one meeting, indoors or out, as it is impossible and has been all that time to get aboard either steam or trolley car even with here. The last time I went to the Buckingham was to the anniversary gathering two years ago last March when it was through the kindness of a friend who invited me to go in her auto and I can get into an auto without help even now, so I went.

But so many of the sisters have proven that it is the exception, not the rule, that "out of sight is out of mind."

Just now has been a very forcible illustration of that. So many cards I have received to remember my birthday just passed, June 2d, the seventh one since I became a Cornerite and right here I want to thank each and every one of you who so kindly thought of me; also the sister who journeyed so many miles and brought me that nice basket of hardy roots that day for my yard and made such a nice, cheery call. Canterbury Bell, they were all set out before night and everyone is alive. The Sweet Williams don't look quite as well as the others. And ever since I have been a shut-in every little while, one or two at a time, the sisters drop in for a call, coming from Putnam, Killingly, Danielson, Moosup, Plainfield, Norwich, Willimantic, New London, Preston, etc., making time pass quickly and cheerfully and between spells there are very little while letters and cards received which I think is so nice of them to think of and remember. Thanks to each one of you.

I wish I knew more "Who Was Who" among you. I have only found and become acquainted with enough to put each name and penname where they belong—204 of that number. There are 15 at least who have gone home and we all miss from our Corner when we gather.

How I wish I were going to be able to meet with you at the two picnics scheduled for this month, the 18th and 20th. Hope the weather will be all that could be asked for each day, but if it rains all do as they used to tell me when a child to do as they do in Spain when it rains.

I think of and my heart is full with sympathy for all suffering and afflicted ones but especially of the social Corner sisters. I know, and it seems to me, that just at this time, especially, there are a large number of our members who are under a dark cloud in one way or another. But we know who has promised and is able to keep that promise—"I'll never leave thee or forsake thee," and "My grace is sufficient for thee," and our trust is in Him.

I did not mean to make my letter so long, but will promise not to do so again until another roll call at least. But really there did not seem to be any place to stop. There is more I wanted to say, I wanted to ask for several sisters, among them me and Nellie Bly. I wish she would write me and send her present address.

Best wishes for the Corner and each member.

PINEAPPLE HONEY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Thought some of you might like to try some Pineapple Honey. I had two fifteen cent pineapples and made twelve glasses. I think it is very nice, so will pass it along. Put one large pineapple through meat grinder, take juice and add water enough to make one quart three pints granulated sugar, cook water juice and sugar together twenty minutes, skim, then add pineapple. Cook until thick enough, let get cold and put parowax over top.

E. M. R. C. P.—Liked your letter South and how oranges were handled, very much telling about the Sunny Also thanks for your nice letter. Have been going to answer before now but have been sick and spending most of my time in bed.

Balsam Fir—Thanks for card and will try and get life enough before long to answer.

Can any of the sisters tell me what will drive little black ants out of the house? I am bothered to death with them. I have put poison around but they will go and look it all over and then leave it and wont go around it any more. They are pretty wise. If I put cake crumbs around with poison on it they look it over, then they leave it, I suppose every one is getting rain enough, hardly a day goes by it doesn't rain here. With best wishes.

DOM PEDRO IS BETTER

Greetings to all the Social Corner Sisters and Friends: It is some time since I contributed to the corner page. I am feeling very much better, but haven't been out yet, but am planning to go out to Groton for a visit, next week. I want to be out there the Fourth of July to get away from the noise here. I have been up to Norwich the Fourth of July for three years, last year they exploded dynamite here in the street, and they said it was terrible. It is now eight months since I have been out, and it seems like years; or more like a dream, to look back upon all I have suffered in that time. Of course I have not recovered all my strength yet, but that will come, when I can get more exercise.

I read the Courier yesterday and found my name in the roll call, so I bussied "Present" and wish I could have been "present" to answer the call. My friends have all been so good to come in and sit with me, it is such a help to pass the time when you are a shutin, the day's seem so long and we have but so little sunshine this spring I feel so much better on a bright, sunshiny day. S. C. S. stranger in the city, has been in to see me this afternoon. She was going to her home in North Stonington. Here is good luck for the corner page, and may it be full in the future.

DOM PEDRO

ATTENDED MOST REUNIONS.

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I must answer the roll call, am sorry to be late, but am having company and put off writing. Will answer "Present" and am in hopes to be able to attend the annual reunions.

Peggy Ann and Wee Peggy and I went to the first picnic Biddy had at the lake and think I have been to every reunion except three. The Social Corner has been a great help to me in many ways.

Grace: I am thinking of you in your time of trouble.

Remember Me: Where are you? Think your name was called.

Dom Pedro: How are you? Better, I hope. My mother is visiting me now.

I find lemons will keep fresh for months if put in glass jars filled with cold water and sealed.

CORSET HELP.

A Corset Help—For a woman who perspires her corset under the arm and her top steel in front:

I find that by adjusting a shield made of old silk or rubber cloth, cutting it curved shape something like a V shape,—cut the curve so it will be about seven inches across the top, then pin the middle and the side with the safety pins. Then it will not push up as it has a tendency to do if not fastened. This mode also prevents camisole and blouse from the wear which friction over the top will often occur and will inevitably produce holes in the garment.

KITTY LOU.

ANSWERS WITH RYTHME.

Dear Social Corner Editor: Did you call my name, I will answer through the silent medium of my pencil, "present." Social Corner Day is a friendly tune and so I send a friendly rhyme—To say I wish the whole year through—All sorts of pleasant things to you.

ETHELYN.

FOR THE VERSAILLES PICNIC.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As my name was in the roll call last Saturday I too will say "present" as I bob in and out of the corner page throughout the year and help do my part to fill up the page. I wish we might keep the old writers in with the new ones, some have only written once. Could I ask those who belong to Clubs No. 1, 2, 3 and 4 to kindly put the number after the pen name as I would like a record of No. 4, anyway, on account of some requests for our Sunshine work. It's the regular cornerers who hold the best claim to it, not the person who comes once and then no more. It's the constant contributor toward finance that gets the preference, so those that don't, don't want to be peeved over not getting a sunshine box. We mean to do right and we surely get pleasure and happiness out of it. It is surely a pleasure to see them made so happy by just a little thought from our Club No. 2.

I want to thank Deliah Deal for starting another Social Corner register she sent to me; also to Necia for loaning Mr. McCook to copy the names from hers. Perhaps by borrowing a few more books I may get another but it will never contain the names of the lost register that never was returned (yes, I know where it is as well as the person does who has it, but if she has no honesty in returning it surely her mind can't be at ease every time some item is written about it or she looks at it) so Necia, you didn't lose hers when she loaned Mr. McCook.

I want to thank all those who so kindly helped during the year we have met in Buckingham, both as hostesss, helpers and donating, also towards the entertainment. The June meeting was the last one in the hall until October, as the out-door picnic will begin June 20 at Versailles for everybody who will come. Bring their own dishes and please don't forget everybody is expected to bring food for the dinner so not to have a shortage, and a complaint of not getting anything to eat. If you bring two people, let each bring their share. Two people expect food and everybody is expected to bring an equal share whether a member or not.

Our hostesses at different meetings reported that so many come but do not bring food. Now kindly keep this in mind both for picnic and Buckingham dinners. I mention this here as it's the only way I can reach you all, as of late our dinners have not been enough to take care of our large crowd and our workers. Trusting you will accept this just as it's given in a friendly way and for a future success to our Corner Club No. 2 dinners.

CALLA LILY.

LOVES JUNE WEATHER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: When you come to the end of a perfect day and sit alone with your thoughts, as this seems to have been nearly perfect and I alone with my thoughts, but it is what I have done a great deal lately as my John is away from home almost every day. But I can't say every day has been perfect, especially outside, as it has been cloudy or rainy, but if not too cloudy inside we have so much to be thankful for, we are hoping and looking forward for pleasant weather the remainder of this month as it seems to me the most pleasant and beautiful of the year, with trees full of foliage, grass so green and different kinds of flowers blossoming, one after another.

My sympathy goes to Grace and family in her recent sad affliction. It happened so near here there were expressions of sympathy from everyone.

The roll call is a grand idea, didn't think the Corner circle was as large. If all respond as name is called there surely will be a page full of letters every week, it will make some of us get busy, myself included in the number.

Golden Glow: See it has been showery over Norwich Town way, and suppose you will be taking in that event soon.

Rumble Bee and U. C. E.: Hitch up Dobbin in a "shay" and take a ride up this way.

Have not attended many gatherings during the winter, but hope to go to some of the picnics during the summer.

Hope the sick ones are all improving and will soon be restored to health.

CHANGED HER NAME.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I was pleased to see my name in the list called this week and I would not miss answering any more than I would like to miss a meeting with the other members. I am looking forward to the meeting at Versailles as I had such a pleasant time last year.

I would like to extend a word of sympathy to Grace at this time.

He who feeds the raven and notes the sparrows fall
Sees our daily burden, and helps to carry all.

Now sisters, there grew to be too many Lou's in the corner and as never could make a success of a Dr. Jeykill and Mr. Hyde career I dropped the name of Ella Lou and am now

THE SAME ONE.

BEE IS HEARD FROM

Dear Social Corner Members: As I see my name has been called I want you all to know that I'm still a humming all though I have not been heard from in a long time. I was among the first writers but can't remember the date of my first letter but have often wished I knew. I have never attended any of the Social Corner gatherings but hope to some day as I like to make new acquaintances. For some time I have written under another name so that is the reason nothing has been heard from

LEFFINGWELL PICNIC

Social Corner Sisters: The Social Corner picnic will be at Leffingwell church, the 25th of June, and the Leffingwell sisters and B. B. and U. C. C. will do all they can to give you a good time. Bring something to eat. We will have dishes and hot coffee and baked beans.

Yours for the Corner.

DOCTOR ANSWERS ROLL CALL

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: Just a line to answer to my name at the roll call. Although I havn't written often I always enjoy the Social Corner page, and think it a fine idea to have a roll call. Trust you will keep well this summer and will not need the services of a

ANTICIPATING PICNIC.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I see by The Bulletin that the roll call comes alphabetically, so we should respond, so I say "Present." We had a very pleasant time at the last meeting for the summer at the Buckingham Memorial and hope you are all planning for the picnic at Versailles, June 20. REMINDED OF SCHOOL DAYS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written. Saw my name in the roll call so will answer "Present." That reminds me of my school days in Westminster where I spent my happiest childhood days. Often wonder if Iola is anyone I know. Met Cora Lilly in Norwich last week. She asked me to attend the picnic the 20th. Shall go if possible.

Deliah Deal: I was annoyed when I looked at my [illegible] and saw June 9 your birthday had passed. I did not send you a card but will send you one [illegible]

Seattle Nurse Is Firm Believer In Tanlac and Recommends It.

"From my long expreience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider Tanlac the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly nature's most perfect remedy," is the far-reaching statement given out for publication, recently, by Mrs. J. A. Borden, 425 Pontius Ave., Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general it has no equal.

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects.

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and able to work.

"These two instances are typical of the wonderful merits of the medicine. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

In the Shady Forest

"My dear," said Danny Fox one afternoon to Mrs. Fox, "I have some thing to eat in the ice box."

"I'm afraid there's nothing [illegible] chicken wing," answered the good lady fox, anxiously. "Bunny and Slyboots will soon be home with great big appetites."

"Dear, oh dear," sighed Danny Fox. "I guess I must go out hunting. With nothing to eat in the house, supper will be a poor meal."

Putting on his fur cap, the old fox trotted off down the well worn path on the rocky hillside until he came to the Shady Forest. Then carefully wending his way in and out among the trees, he hurried on until, by and by, after awhile, he came to a big rock. Sitting down for a few minutes he pondered what next to do.

Just then he heard a sound that made him prick up his ears. The next minute he had hidden behind the rock in a thick clump of bushes that grew in wild tangled profusion in a corner of the old fox's hunting ground. Peering out into view, he thought at first you were the Farmer Boy. I'm afraid of his new gun, so only you, so here I am."

"What are you doing?" asked Mr. Wicked Wolf, with a snarl. You see, he rather wished Danny Fox was home in his little rocky bungalow.

"Oh, nothing," answered that sly old robber, a twinkle coming to his eyes at seeing Mr. Wicked Wolf's annoyance. "I shan't interfere with your hunting trip."

"I guess you won't," answered that disagreeable beast. "You won't hinder me, you old chicken thief. I'm not worried about you. You are the least of my worries."

"What's that?" asked Danny Fox, nettled at Mr. Wicked Wolf's answer. "Take care or I'll tell somebody you're around."

"Go ahead," answered Mr. Wicked Wolf with a grin. "Get yourself caught into the bargain, eh?"

"Come, come," replied Danny Fox, "what's the use of quarreling? That smells like supper. I'm hungry."

"Oh, no!" sneered Mr. Wicked Wolf. So that's the reason you're so friendly. Well, go along, I don't want to talk to you."

Just then, bang, went a gun, and before you could say "Jumping Jupiter!" up ran the farmer's boy, with his gun under his arm. "Tee Willikins!" he cried, "I missed 'em both!" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

A TAIT BROS PRODUCT

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Although the 18th amendment was not in force in 1874 a fine story cocktail for these arid days comes from The Bulletin of that year as follows:

The heart of a Norwich man was gladdened yesterday by what he supposed was a basket of wine. He cheerfully paid the cartage fee of $1, and removing the cover and a protective napkin, discovered a mammoth horse shoe fish as the occupant.

News of the week as taken in part from the files of The Bulletin follows:

Monday, June 8, 1874—The annual meeting of the Eliza Huntington Memorial Home was held on Saturday and the report of the treasurer was given, showing a substantial balance on hand. Directors for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Messrs. John T. Wait, Samuel C. Morgan, James A. Hovey, Jeremiah Halsey and Jedediah Huntington. The rectors of Christ and Trinity Episcopal churches are also directors by virtue of their offices. At the meeting of the directors, John T. Wait was elected president, Norris G. Lippitt, secretary and treasurer, and Jedediah Huntington, superintendent of the home. The Rev. W. W. Sylvester having declined re-election as secretary as he is to leave the city, received a vote of thanks for the manner in which he had discharged his duties in the past.

Prof. Butterfield is preparing a musical exhibition to be given by the members of the higher grade school about the first of July. The entertainment is to be given at Breed Hall and the stage is to be enlarged to accommodate the unusually large chorus.

A shad weighing 3 1-4 pounds was caught by hook and line in the Shetucket river Saturday by John H. Parker of Greeneville.

Tuesday, June 9, 1874—The New London Telegram commenting on the letter of Mayor Greene in reference to Laurel Hill has the following to say: "Mayor Greene goes for the Laurel Hill people who do not wish to become a part and parcel of 'The Rose of New England.' He says they want all the benefits of the city government but do not wish to pay their share of the expense. The mayor uses pretty strong English and makes out a strong case against the Laurel Hill residents."

At a baseball match between the Blackstones of the city and the Marvins of Norwich Town, Saturday afternoon, the former club won by a score of 20 to 15, in spite of the terrifying paeans from the ebony giant and pitcher of the latter nine.

The testimonial of the members of C. W. Tubb's band to their leader, containing the photograph of each member of the organization, is on exhibition in Smith & Gilbert's window on Main street.

A party of local fishermen visited Avery's pond yesterday and returned with a string of thirty large pickerel.

A three-masted schooner built for parties in New York, was launched at Portland, Me., yesterday. It bears the name of W. F. Parker of this city.

The smack Favorite, Capt. Ellis Smith, came in at New London yesterday with a catch of over 1700 sea bass, the largest catch of the season, and a large catch for any season of this superb fish.

Wednesday, June 10, 1874—A battle royal raged in New Haven yesterday when Pratt & Halsey for the City of Norwich, with Mayor Greene and C. L. Richards as witnesses, and Solomon Lucas for Laurel Hill, and Colonel Torrance of Derby, Judge Hovey and Paul Greene for Greeneville, argued before the committee appointed by the general assembly. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway.

Breathfulness that bubbles over with laughter will arrive in town today when Harold Lloyd's latest feature Pathecomedy, "Girl Shy," opens at the Broadway theatre tomorrow, where it will be shown until Wednesday.

Lloyd has hitherto given to the screen many humorous novelties in his varied characterizations, but in "Girl Shy" he promises to outdo his previous laugh efforts with his portrayal of a very bashful small town boy, who made a secret study of girls, and the more he studied them, the more he feared them. It is a really novel role, and should be full of fun, because Lloyd has by this time achieved a reputation for never disappointing his many followers.

Probably the greatest, fastest and most exciting legitimate chase ever seen on any screen is woven into the story and action of Harold Lloyd's latest feature Pathecomedy. Thrills and dramatic tension, as well as laughs galore, are mingled together to help make this wild pursuit, with Lloyd as the central figure, one of the most memorable situations ever filmed, as fans will all no doubt agree when they see the spectacled comedian's latest and greatest comedy effort.

Lloyd plays the role of a small town tailor's apprentice in "Girl Shy," who is painfully bashful whenever he is in the presence of the fair sex. Jobyna Ralston once more is seen playing opposite him, while Fred Newmeyer and Sam Taylor took care of the direction as they have done for several of the most recent Lloyd hits.

The Short Subjects, which make up a full two hour show, include a new Kinogram and Bruce wilderness tale, "The Grey Rider."

At the Breed.

Love has been declared to be the passion that makes the world go round, and there has been no greater analyzer of love and its power for ennobling than the English novelist, Elinor Glyn, whose most sensational success, "Three Weeks," has now been made into a motion picture by the Goldwyn corporation. It has been booked at the Breed theatre, opening tomorrow night for five days.

Alan Crosland was entrusted with the direction of the production because of his ability to transpose romance from the printed page to the silver sheet, so ably demonstrated in Blasco Ibanez's "Enemies of Women," and Stanley Weyman's "Under the Red Robe," which he did for Cosmopolitan. The photoplay, "Three Weeks," is another triumph for director and actor, as well as the producing organization. The famous love story, which sprang into such sensational popularity upon its publication in book form, fifteen years ago, has lost nothing in its change into film story. It is a most engrossing photoplay, beautifully staged, excellently acted, bound to arouse the same tremendous enthusiasm which the published novel exerted. Mrs. Glyn collaborated with Director Crosland in filming it.

The story of "Three Weeks" with its fire, its analysis of the love emotion, has been kept intact in the filming process. The story of the love of the queen of Sardalia for the youthful Englishman, Paul Verdayne, is known throughout the world. It is dramatic and appealing and holds a great lesson for everyone who sees it.

The cast is another one of Goldwyn's great all-star casts. It is headed by Aileen Pringle as the queen and Conrad Nagel as the Englishman. Their performances are said to be the best of their respective careers. Many other eminent names appear in the cast, such as H. Reeves-Smith, popular stage player in both England and America, John Sainpolis, Stuart Holmes, Mitchell Lewis, Helen Dunbar, Robert Cain, Joan Standing, Nigel de Brulier, Dale Fuller, William Haines and others.

The photography is beautiful throughout and the sets are of an unusual artistic order. There is not the shadow of a doubt that the film version of "Three Weeks" will create the same sensation in the picture world that the novel did in the book world.

Palace Theatre.

Last showing today Louis B. Mayer presents "The Wanters," with an all star cast, including Marie Prevost, Huntley Gordon, Gertrude Astor, Robert Ellis and others, also second episode of "The Telephone Girl" review and Orchestra.

Four days starting Sunday night, June 15, "The Marriage Circle." The filming of "The Marriage Circle," Ernst Lubitsch's most recent production, was the occasion of much excitement at the Warner Brothers' west coast studios.

The reason was the fame of Mr. Lubitsch as a masterly and "different" producer, working along lines that bid fair to revolutionize the art of motion pictures.

Visitors in the studio, lingering expectantly around the Lubitsch set, awaited with breathless awe for the great man to start directing. Here would be a thrill! Even the prop boy and studio hands to whom the studio lights are a matter of course found themselves curious to see the greatest director at work.

Here again was disillusionment. The Lubitsch cast behaved like regular people. There was no raving and ranting about—no tearing of the hair, or forceful shouting. But the effect was there just the same, acquired in a quiet way that would photograph just as subtly.

And the subtitles, too, are not an effort to capture the whole of the dictionary in a single reel. They are simple and direct when they are there at all, which isn't often.

Instead of a thin, improbable plot, set at such a feverish tempo that impossible happenings crowd each reel, the story is a dramatic one—but a true life dramatic one, unfolding itself gradually as real life stories do.

Lubitsch maintains that it is much easier to portray tragic scenes than a quiet happening of every day life. In the former there are so many tricks and postures that even a second rate player could do it effectively. In a more quiet scene the player must confine himself to his own expression and the power within himself.

"The Marriage Circle" will be a surprise. Ernst Lubitsch has produced the picture he has always wanted to, and has given instead of the usual spectacular atmosphere, a real story, an excellent cast and above everything else, intelligent direction.

NEW LONDON RESTAURANT MEN FINED FOR SELLING IMPURE MILK

Special to The Bulletin

New London, June 13.—The proprietors of two restaurants were prosecuted in the police court today for selling milk that was not up to the standard of purity as that standard is established by the state's pure food department. Wee Wah of the Canton restaurant was fined $15 while Max Fern, of the Star restaurant, was ordered to pay a fine of $5. Both men claimed they were not responsible for the acts of their employes and that it was the latter who sold the milk that was bought by representatives of the state food department. Mr. Fern said that in his place nearly all the milk had been drawn from a can and that a girl in the place sold milk which she would not have disposed of. It was pronounced that Fern had been prosecuted in Norwich for a similar offense, but the attorney for Fern disclosed that the Norwich man accused is a brother of the defendant in the case on trial today. Wee Wah represented that a boy in his restaurant failed to stir the milk in a can and that for this reason the body of the milk was at the bottom of the can. He has three times been prosecuted for the same offense, so the court regarded it was essential that Wah should realize what the law provides.

Otis Fenwick, clerk at the post office who has been ill with grip at his home, 145 Green street several days, is considerably improved and it is hoped that he will be able to resume his duties next week.

Kenneth Asery, 185 Main street, reported to the police last night that a cocker spaniel had been stolen from his yard and that he had been informed that the dog was picked up and carried away on Main street by a man named Porter, employed as a driver on the Hartford bus line. This afternoon Porter, who had the animal in his possession returned it to the owner.

Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of the motor vehicle department of the motor vehicles at Boston, today requested the New London police to provide him with the registration and operator's license of Eugene J. Arcaud, of Nantucket, a radio operator at the submarine base who was convicted in the New London police court last month of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Arcaud was fined $100.

An automobile owned and operated by Dr. Frank W. Hewes, Thames street, Groton, with Charles E. White, also of Groton and treasurer of the National Bank of New London, as passenger, was struck by a Norwich trolley car of the Connecticut company this morning. Mr. White was thrown from the automobile and sustained bruises and scratches.

The automobile was about to park on Main street, near Masonic street to permit Mr. White to alight when the trolley car, in charge of Motorman Paul McGuinness and Conductor George Raymond, due to arrive at the Groton terminal at 8.15 o'clock, struck the automobile with considerable force causing Mr. White to be hurled to the car tracks.

Mrs. Barnett, 54 Blinman street, reported to the police this forenoon that during last night a bicycle belonging to her little son was stolen from the grounds of the Barnett home.

Later in the day Allen Sterry, residing in Willimantic appeared at the St. Germain farm and turned over to St. Germain a $5 bill and the three checks, which Sterry stated he found in the highway on Ocean avenue. The balance of the money was not recovered.

Alexander, 254 Jefferson avenue and Joseph Silvaw, 145 Green street, to be returned to the owners. The licenses were suspended earlier in the week for alleged infractions of the automobile laws.

Perry and Bertha Mattern have sold ... and lot on Waldo street to Herbert and Minnie Travers.

New London's force of letter carriers was increased today when Substitute Carriers John Twohey and William Ryan were appointed to the regular force. The announcement of the appointments occurred following the reception of instructions calling for the promotion of Twohey and Ryan from the treasury department. Both carriers have been performing substitute duty for several months.

T. C. Brownell, an ensign stationed at the submarine base, was fined $100 for operating a car while he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Brownell was on the road last night and was guiding his automobile in a manner that attracted the attention of Policeman Howard Sloan. Brownell drove out of Main street and allowed his machine to run against a garbage can on the opposite side of that wide street, the automobile coming against a receptacle for ashes that was in front of the Cronin building. Sloan allowed the driver of the car to go down the street when the ensign got out of the car. It was then apparent what caused him to drive as recklessly as he had been driving. Brownell was arrested and taken to the police station. He pleaded guilty this morning in court and was fined $100. His operating license was revoked and forwarded to the state motor vehicle department.

Thomas McCarthy, a driver for the Schwartz Furniture company was fined $5 for allowing his machine to remain on Bank street more than an hour, whereas the traffic ordinance says a car may not be parked on that street more than 30 minutes.

Nathan Lubow was fined a smaller amount for parking longer than the law allowed. George Sherburne, a store keeper on Bank street at Howard, was fined $5 for allowing his car to stand beside the road an unlimited time. He has been warned before. It was said, George Sheeley of Newburg, was presented for allowing his car to stand on State street more than 30 minutes, but as he was a stranger and as he violated the law but a few minutes he was shown leniency by a suspension of judgment.

Conditions surrounding the hydrant at the corner of State and North Bank street are such that they are believed to be dangerous, in that paving is loose there and an accident is within the possibilities when fire apparatus rolls up to the hydrant to make connection. The matter has been called to the attention of the city manager and he is understood to have promised quick work to repair it.

Motorcycle Officer George Labeau, who has been confined to his home on Jefferson avenue a fortnight as a result of being thrown from the motorcycle on Bank street, was removed to a private hospital this evening and tomorrow will be operated on.

State street, between Meridian and Huntington streets, which has been closed to traffic many weeks because of the work of installing brick paving, being in progress, will open to the movement of all kinds of vehicles tomorrow noon. With the opening of the highway a complete stretch of macadam, brick or macadam pavement will mark the route from New London to Hartford.

Mayer Boyer, 92 North Bank street, complained to the police this evening that one of the large show windows of his store had been smashed by youths playing ball in the highway.

Newton Lanphere, about 60, was taken into custody this afternoon for intoxication. He was locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning. Lanphere was on one of the Ocean Beach line cars on Montauk avenue and made such a nuisance of himself that the conductor of the trolley car complained to Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky.

Four more violators of the automobile traffic laws were summoned into court today, three of them being ordered into court Saturday morning, while the fourth was ordered to present himself for hearing on the 17th inst. Mrs. Clifford H. Belden, 34 Bristol street and Carlisle H. Havens, 36 West Pleasant street, were ordered into court by Traffic Officer Clyde Mathison, charged with parking overtime on State street. Henry L. Coburn, 39 Sachem street, Springfield, Mass., was ordered by Patrolman Clarence Martin to appear in court the 17th inst., for parking overtime on the same street. Mrs. H. Rosoff, 39 Pearl street, Norwich, was ordered into court tomorrow by Patrolman Charles Hammond for parking away from the curb on State street.

Another rum-runner was captured in the sound this afternoon when the New York patrol apprehended the fishing sloop Rosalind with a cargo of 70 cases of liquor. The prize was brought into port and is being held here until tomorrow when she is scheduled to be conveyed to New York with her cargo and the two members of the crew. The Rosalind is owned in New Haven and the crew were Portuguese fishermen belonging in that city.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the New York patrol was scouring the sound in search of rum-runners when the Rosalind was sighted about a mile south of Bartletts Reef lightship. The fishing vessel was low in the water indicating that she was carrying a heavy cargo. The patrol speeded alongside the Rosalind and when members of the patrol boarded the New Haven craft the alcohol was found in the well. The rum-laden craft was brought into port, where she was moored at the customs house wharf, pending the reception of orders for her delivery to the New York authorities.

Mrs. Higgins left her home with $170 intending to go to the municipal building to pay her taxes after she had done some shopping. She visited the Five and Ten Cent store in the Cronin building and there had occasion to use a part of a $10 bill. Mrs. Higgins left the store after making her purchase and when she reached a point a short distance from where she had taken out her money she discovered her purse missing. Mrs. Higgins went back to the store and when she failed to find the money she appealed to the police to assist her. No trace of the money was gained by Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels, who was assigned to the case. Mrs. Higgins was unable to state whether she lost the pocketbook and money in the store or on State street, but was inclined to believe that it was lost in the store.

At a meeting of the Woman's club, held last night in the Harris building, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Emily C. Spiers; first vice president, Mrs. Ida M. Bragaw; second vice president, Mrs. Ada C. Hickey; third vice president, Mrs. Mary R. For several years the train that now leaves Boston at 12.25 for Waterbury and New York, has made fine connections at Putnam for Jewett City and all points between New London and Putnam. The railroad has found out that a lot of people were being accommodated. A new timetable goes into effect Sunday, which breaks this connection at Putnam with the train leaving at 2.03 for points south. New local people bound home from Boston via Putnam must leave either at 7.15 a. m. or 4.50 p. m. The observant citizen has noted that the New Haven road is apt to promptly remedy any accommodation that is being furnished.

LEFFINGWELL

At Leffingwell Baptist church last Sunday a Children's day concert was given by the children of the Bible school, who provided a very interesting and inspiring program of songs and recitation. The musical program was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Nathan E. Whiting, and the manner in which the young folks rendered their songs won praise for both directors and singers. The church choir rendered an anthem, O Praise Ye the Lord, and the pastor, Rev. Wm. B. Oakley, gave an address, using as a text, Proverbs, 22:6.

The floral decorations were abundant and beautiful.

The recitations were well chosen, and well rendered as was evidenced by an occasional outburst of applause on the part of the congregation of about seventy persons, who in spite of the rain and darkness came out to the service.

Supt. A. H. Beebe, had charge of the program. The offering was donated to the Baptist Publication society.

CONSTANTZA

"Constanza, chief Black Sea port of Rumania, to which Italy sent a squadron of destroyers recently to make a demonstration in connection with her efforts to collect overdue debts, is in one way very literally the 'little sister' of nearly every considerable," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The similarity of names rather raises such a suspicion," continues the bulletin, "and a look into their origins clinches the matter. Constantinople perpetuates the memory of Constantine the Great, while Constantza (originally Constantiana) was named for his sister, Constantia. After the Turks came to Europe, they corrupted the name to 'Kustehje,' and so the town is labeled on all maps of 50 years ago.

"A Black Sea port is relatively a new thing for Rumania. After the country gained a sort of independence from Turkey it was wholly cut off from the Black Sea by the region known as the Dobrudja. The only outlet was through one of the badly silted mouths of the Danube. The Dobrudja became a part of Rumania in 1878 as a result of the same Turko-Russian war that created Bulgaria and Serbia. Rumania looked upon the Dobrudja, even with its sugar-coating of a port, as a bitter pill at first, for Russia had taken a slice of Bessarabia in trade. The Dobrudja was largely a region of bare foot-hills, steppes, sand dunes and lagoons, peopled with Tatars, Turks, Bulgarians and other non-Rumanians.

"A railroad had been built under the Turks from Constantza to the Danube, which marked the old Rumanian boundary. There, however, the river and its broad bordering marshes seemed an impassable barrier. Not until 1895 was the great Cerno Voda Bridge over the Danube opened. This huge structure, one of the greatest bridges in the world, with its several viaducts and approaches, is about 12 miles long. Its completion made Constantza easily accessible for the first time and gave Russia a usable salt water port. In the meantime many of the non-Rumanians had moved out of the Dobrudja, the district had become somewhat Rumanized, and is now recognized as a real asset.

"Even immediately after the exit of the Turks from Kustenje, the town was largely rebuilt, wide streets were provided and cleanliness and order replaced dirt and slovenliness. With its coming into its own as Rumania's chief sea port, Constantza has been built up along Western lines. Large grain elevators were constructed to handle the country's wheat exports. A pipe line was run from the oil fields across the Cerno Voda Bridge, huge petroleum tanks were built in Constantza, and the port became a sort of rival of Batum, oil export city of old Russia at the opposite end of the Black Sea. Little more than a hamlet in Turkish days, the city now has a population of between 30,000 and 50,000. In the summer Constantza is Rumania's Atlantic City, thousands of visitors being attracted by the sea bathing.

"There has been a town on the site of Constantza, for many centuries. At the beginning of the Christian Era the town was Tomi; and there the Roman poet Ovid, banished by Augustus, died in exile in 17 A. D. A statue to this famous adopted son stands in the main square of Constantza. A little later than Ovid's time, Rome built one of the many Trajan's walls from the port to the Danube to aid in keeping the barbarians of the Russian steppes from the Empire's highly developed lands. Contractors, building the Constantza-Danube railway, used much of the material from the old walls for their road-bed."

Any woman who refuses to divulge a secret is called a mean, stingy thing by other women.

Walter P. Chrysler Announces-

It is now time to state our positive conviction that the good Maxwell is the best four-cylinder car in America at anything like its price.

The high goal set up by the new organization more than three years ago has been reached. The last year's rapid development of sweeping superiorities in riding, and driving, and all phases of performance, leave no doubt of that.

Unless you are abreast of what Maxwell has lately been doing—unless you know how far it has advanced—it will pay you to inform yourself before you buy any new car.

PUZZLES.

Can his eye be called an academy
Because there are pupils there?

Who travels the bridge of his nose?
Can he use, when shingling, the roof of his mouth,

What does he raise from a slip of his tongue,
And who can tell the cut and [illegible]
Of the coat his stomach wears?

Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail?
And if so, what did it do?
How does he sharpen his shoulder blade?
I'll be hanged if I know—do you?

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Hilde (married a fortnight)—I do think it was kind of him to give us a wedding present. We scarcely knew him.

Jack—Oh, well, you see, I sent a wreath when his wife died. I suppose he remembered I thought of him in his trouble, so he would think of me in mine.—London Answers.

"What were you saying about permanent waves?"

"I was talking about the crime wave. I hope it isn't permanent."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Magistrate (severely)—The idea of a man of your size beating a poor weak woman like that!

Prisoner—But, your worship, she keeps irritating me all the time.

Magistrate—How does she irritate you?

Prisoner—Why, she keeps saying, "Hit me! Beat me! Just hit me once, and I'll have you hauled up before that baldheaded old reprobate of a magistrate and see what he'll do with you!"

Magistrate—Discharged!—The Humorist.

Mrs. Tattle—I'm rather hard to please. Have you had much experience as a maid?

Applicant—I worked for Mrs. Neighbor for six months before she and her husband separated.

Mrs. Tattle—I'll engage you. Now tell me all about it.—London Answers.

SKIDDING CAUSES LARGE PERCENTAGE OF ACCIDENTS

Seldom have weather conditions been more clearly reflected in motor vehicle accidents than during the past month. Analysis by the state motor vehicle department of 1,793 accidents reported for May, shows skidding to have been the cause of a larger percentage of the whole number of accidents than for any other month on record.

Charts of the United States Weather Bureau show that there were only two clear days in May, and that the rest of the days of the month were either wet or unsettled, with twenty days of actual rain. The total precipitation was not great, but the rainy spells were frequent enough to keep the highways slippery and dangerous for protracted periods.

The experience of the department has shown that most skidding accidents occur within cities, where the pavements are sprinkled to lay the dust. While a large share of the May skidding accidents happened in cities, the proportion which occurred in rural sections, on state highways, which are never sprinkled except by nature, was greater than ever before. At the same time, accidents laid to obscured vision, due to dimmed windshields, were many.

Although there was an encouraging decrease in fatal accidents for May, the number of general accidents for the month showed an increase of 191 over May, 1923, being 1,702. The total includes a large percentage of minor accidents, however. With the May figures complete, the accident total for 1924 now stands at 6,272, as compared to 4,451 at the end of May, 1923.

More For a Dollar Than a Dollar Can Buy Elsewhere

Selling for cash, making no deliveries, buying direct from producers in gigantic quantities, make this innovation possible. The cost of credit, together with delivery forces, the dealer to add at least twenty-five cents profit on every dollar's worth of goods sold. The fact of the matter is you are paying this expense, and the factor in the case is, by doing your own trading it enables you to select the choicest cuts and best seasonable foods. The success of this method of merchandising has been phenomenal, the shrewd, thrifty buyers were quick to grasp the benefits to be derived, and the public in general are gradually, each year, taking advantage of our economic, up-to-the-minute system.

ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS PERFECT FOR BALLOON RACE

Balloonists Representing Seven Nations Started a Contest Just Outside Brussels, Belgium—A Crowd Estimated at Close to 200,000 Persons Saw the Balloons Ascend in Beautiful Style—The "Goodyear" Has a Special Radio Set Aboard.

Brussels, June 15 (By the A. P.)—Seventeen balloonists in high spirits and animated by an earnest desire to win the Gordon Bennett cup took off today from the great Solbosch plain, just outside of Brussels, in almost perfect aeronspheric conditions for the fourteenth competition for the trophy. The balloonists represented seven nations.

An enormous crowd estimated at [illegible] persons saw them ascend in strange [illegible] start, when [illegible] were already hovering [illegible] the aerodrome. De Muyter of Belgium, [illegible] of the cup [illegible] Ville De Bruxelles (Belgium), which first started in a southerly direction, were [illegible] over the horizon. They [illegible] shifted [illegible] to Germany, probable landing [illegible] aeronauts consulted [illegible] Lieutenant Greg [illegible] United States, [illegible] last balloon [illegible] Spanish Hesperia, [illegible] in the [illegible] conditions [illegible] Airplanes [illegible] from scouting reports [illegible] yard [illegible] feet [illegible] 40 [illegible] K. All the Americans carry parachutes as a safeguard in the event of their balloons being struck by lightning or otherwise destroyed in the air. Captain Honeywell's "Uncle Sam" made the start at 5.55. The captain was assisted by Rev. Woffer Timmons of St. Louis. He made a perfect start and as he slowly rose shouted to Ambassador Phillips and members of the American embassy close by: "We've got a real Sky pilot aboard; we are sure winners."

A few minutes previous to the start the correspondent asked Captain Honeywell what club he represented, and he replied: "I am running this race in behalf of one hundred million Americans, and I hope to bring the cup back to the United States."

Immediately after Honeywell's departure the wind shifted to the west, having practically kept the compass since noon. The Uncle Sam headed east toward Holland and Germany.

Capt. Paul Armbruster's Helvetia (Switzerland), Van Orman's Goodyear, Lieutenant Lambert's Ville De Bruxelles (Belgium), which first started in a southerly direction, were [illegible] over the horizon. They [illegible] shifted [illegible] to Germany, probable landing [illegible] aeronauts consulted [illegible] Lieutenant Greg [illegible] United States, [illegible] last balloon [illegible] Spanish Hesperia, [illegible] in the [illegible] conditions [illegible] Airplanes [illegible] from scouting reports [illegible] yard [illegible] feet [illegible] 40 [illegible] K. POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS IN DEMOCRATIC CIRCLES

Some of the McAdoo managers indicated their determination to fight for substitution of a majority for the time honored two-thirds rule in the nomination of candidates. They claimed the two-thirds requirement actually was abolished when the convention of 1920 voted to be governed by the rules of the house of representatives.

Meredith Nicholson, Indiana novelist and politician, announced the Hoosier state probably would not [illegible] place Senator Ralston in nomination, and that on the first ballots at least thirty votes might not be cast for him. The purpose of this is to make Ralston the darkest kind of a dark horse.

Edward F. Goltra, Missouri democratic leader and national committeeman, said that his state, which has been claimed by McAdoo, probably will vote for a favorite son, former Governor Frederick D. Gardner, on the early ballots.

George E. Brennan, Illinois leader notified the democratic national committee he will arrive in New York Wednesday. Tom Taggart, Indiana veteran, will get here the same day. So will former Judge Edward Moore, of Youngstown, dominant in the Ohio delegation and manager of the Cox candidacy four years ago. Virtually all of the democratic leaders will be on hand before the end of the week.

RECOVERING BODIES OF VICTIMS OF CLOUDBURST

Johnson City, Tenn., June 15—Two more bodies of 12 persons known to have drowned in the double cloudburst late Friday night were recovered today, bringing the total found to five. Fully 2,000 persons from Elizabethton, Johnson City and other towns in the vicinity of the floor area tonight were picking their way through debris along the banks of the Watauga and its tributaries searching for the remaining lost bodies.

"Dry" Question For The Dem. Convention

Connecticut Listed Among the States Which Have "Antipathy" for the Volstead Act.

Washington, June 15—The political leanings of 13 states will be affected by the attitude of the democratic convention in New York on the liquor question, according to a survey made by agents of the association against the prohibition amendment. As listed today in a statement by Colonel Wm. N. Stayton, founder of the association, the states whose voters have a "very intense antipathy for the Volstead law" are New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Maryland, California, Michigan, Montana and Washington.

Declaring the republican convention had straddled on the issue, the statement asserted that "if democratic leaders are wide awake and will take advantage of the almost nationwide demand for modification of the Volstead act, there will be another landslide in November and not for the elephant."

DIESEL MOTOR PROPULSION FOR SHIPPING BOARD VESSELS

Washington, June [illegible] into Diesel motor propulsion of approximately sixty large steam cargo vessels, aggregating 600,000 deadweight tons, now lying idle but well preserved, will be possible by a judicious expenditure of the $25,000,000 made available by congress, Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board declared tonight in a statement.

The money, to be expended out of the board's construction loan fund now amounting to $57,600,000 through ship sales and liquidation of industrial plants and surplus materials, will provide much needed replacements and serve notice that the "American flag is to permanently fly on the seven seas," the chairman asserted.

As a result of a survey of the board's laid up fleets, [illegible] vessels have been selected as most suitable for conversion into motor ships to install new steam machinery in them. O'Connor said, undoubtedly would enhance their reliability and involve less cost than Diesel installation, but the resultant benefits, he added, would not be commensurate with the expenditure involved. [illegible] the ships are not marketable in their present state. Diesel conversion would save them from the scrap heap.

Mr. O'Connor said further conversions are anticipated through the amendment of the merchant marine act, authorizing the board to obtain private companies one-half the cost of installing Diesel engines in their vessels. American ship owners are becoming keenly alive to the motorship vessel's potentialities, the chairman said, and thirteen vessels sold by the board in the last [illegible] on the condition that they [illegible] already are in operation.

Twelve ships of between 8,500 and 9,400 deadweight tons have been tentatively selected as the first group to be Dieselized and an advisory committee will meet with the board this week to decide on the particular design of engine. Selection of main and auxiliary machinery will be made, Mr. O'Connor said, with a view to standardizing high grade equipment at reasonable prices.

"This policy," he asserted, would greatly assist the development and establishment of the related industries for as soon as standardized sizes are manufactured in greater number, lower production costs will necessarily follow."

The statement pointed out that the motor vessels consume but one-third at sea and one- tenth in port of the fuel burned by a ship of equivalent power and that it can be operated with a reduced engine room crew, thus lowering wages and subsistence costs. The engines have been found in practice to absorb the cost of conversion in from [illegible] to [illegible] years.

BOY WHILE FISHING FELL IN AND WAS DROWNED

Derby, Conn., June 15—Charles Osnick, six, fishing with another boy in the bank of the Power canal [illegible] miles from his home, fell in and was drowned today, Mrs. William [illegible] coming by on the road overlooking the canal, saw a hand above the water and called to Pasquale Fusco of Waterbury, who was [illegible] another machine. Effort was made to save the child but the canal had to be drawn off. Two boys waiting [illegible] bed and found the body. While the [illegible] motor was being used another boy who had been watching, asked permission to see the body and he identified it as that of his brother. The [illegible] examiner gave a verdict of accidental drowning. The child's companion could not be found and probably ran home.

TERMS FOR SALE OF SHIPPING BOARD VESSELS

Washington, June 15—Revision of the standard terms of payment which is expected to stimulate the sale of shipping board vessels was announced tonight by President Palmer of the fleet corporation. The new policy provides for an initial cash payment of 25 per cent., the balance to be paid in ten equal annual installments with five per cent interest payable semi-annually. Lake type vessels will be sold on five years terms.

Sales contracts stipulating that ships should be retained on certain trade routes will carry interest at the rate of 4 1-4 per cent. the old sales policy provided for 50 per cent cash payments and the balance in five years.

JEWETT CITY

Sunday morning at the close of the children's day exercises, Alex McNicol, clerk of the Congregational church, read resolutions with reference to the resignation of Fred S. Leonard as organist of the church. The entire congregation rose in aquiescence to these words of appreciation: "Mr. Leonard has served faithfully and most efficiently as organist of this church since October, 1896. It would be impossible to adequately express those audible and inaudible feelings of inspiration and enjoyment which have been evoked from the minds and during this long period of service." It was the desire of the church that this public acknowledgement be made on children's day, when there are always a large number present, one hundred and twelve in attendance.

W. W. Backus Hospital Auxiliary Notes.

Norwich has cause to be very proud of the success of the hospital auxiliary membership drive, for, as always is the case in a campaign for the improvement of an institution serving the community, our citizens rallied to the appeal in a most creditable manner. The membership of the new William W. Backus Hospital auxiliary is not yet quite definite, since several districts and outlying towns have not reported, but the sum total will unquestionably number 1,200. The financial returns of the membership drive, including nineteen life memberships, is $1,658—and the end is not yet.

Ten of the student nurses of the hospital attended the concert given in Slater hall last month by the Academy Girls' Glee club.

On May 17th, Miss Dowd spoke on Nursing at the Plainfield and Danielson high schools, to stimulate interest in nursing as a profession.

Six new magazine subscripitions have been given in response to the efforts of the literature committee.

The patients at the hospital had a special treat on Memorial day, as ice cream was furnished by the United Congregational church and cake was given by the following members of the Central Baptist church: Mrs. Henry G. Aurelio, Mrs. Charles Barrows, Mrs. Allyn Brown, Mrs. Carl Brown, Mrs. Harold Burt, Mrs. William Cranston, Mrs. John H. Ford, Mrs. Anton Jacobson, Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer, Mrs. N. Eugene Smith, Mrs. C. L. Swan, Mrs. Grant Troland and Miss Ruby Vaughn. Each tray was decorated by an attractive May basket which was filled with flowers by Mrs. C. H. Osgood and Mrs. Philip Johnson.

Ice cream was furnished the hospital on May 11th by the Central Baptist church and on Flag day, June 14th, the Elks marked the day for hospital patients in this way.

The graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses was held at the Osgood Memorial parish house on Tuesday evening, June third. The decorations were arranged most attractively by Mrs. Cummings and her flower committee and by Mr. Ernst and Dr. Agnew. J. Brophy, Mrs. William Bolz, Dr. William Callahan, Mrs. Joseph Hall, Don Houghton, Mrs. Oliver Johnson, Mrs. Jacob Munz, Mrs. Charles Saxton. The graduating class from the training school has achieved an innovation in being the first class to publish a class book, a little volume which chronicles events and characteristics of individuals which will not be found in the more formal records of the career of the class of 1924.

Miss Bergman, Miss Nelson and Miss Corcoran will be at the capitol, Hartford, June 18th and 19th, to take their state examinations. The other six graduate nurses will report there for their examinations in September.

Broadway Theatre.

Yesterday it looked as though it might become necessary to summon an ambulance to the Broadway theatre after the first showing of Lloyd's latest feature Pathecomedy, "Girl Shy," which will be there until Wednesday. Some of the patrons were so convulsed and weakened by mirth that this reviewer doubted their ability to reach the open air. Just as you begin to think that there is nothing new in the movies, along comes a Lloyd comedy and immediately life takes on a rosier hue again.

For every Lloyd comedy is distinctive from all angles and in all respects except one, and that's laughter. It seems that in each one you find laughs coming more and more rapidly than in the preceding one. And "Girl Shy" is no exception. While Lloyd has successfully undertaken one of the most novel and difficult characterizations he has ever attempted, it is entirely different from any of its predecessors except for the fact that it is even more funny than the other types he has portrayed. Truly this young man with the horn rimmed glasses can lay claim to the title of being America's greatest comedian.

Little Jobyna Ralston, who made such a hit in the last Lloyd Pathecomedy, "Why Worry?" is again seen playing opposite Harold, and she gives an excellent account of herself in a rather difficult part. Richard Daniels, the uncle of freckle faced "Mickey," of "Our Gang" fame, is cast as Lloyd's uncle, and helps to win a lot of sympathy for the star. Carlton Griffin completes the cast in the role of a wealthy young idler.

"Girl Shy" was directed by Fred Newmeyer and Sam Taylor from a story by Taylor, Ted Wilde, Tim Whelan and Tommy Gray. The latter also wrote the amusing titles.

Some interesting short pictures made up the balance of the wonderful show. It would be advisable to start early, judging by the crowds that stormed the theatre for admission yesterday.

Slander and Libel.

Slander is oral defamation; that is, speaking false and malicious words concerning another, whereby injury results to his reputation. Libel is the false and malicious defamation of another expressed in writing, or in print, or by pictures or signs, tending to injure the reputation of an individual, and exposing him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule.

Breed Theatre.

Elinor Glyn's novel, "Three Weeks," which created a sensation upon its publication in this country nearly fifteen years ago, has taken a new lease upon life. It is a remarkably vivid and beautiful love story which Goldwyn Pictures corporation has made from her novel. The photoplay version, directed by Alan Crosland, with the constant advice and assistance of the noted novelist, was shown for the first time in Norwich at the Breed theatre last night. It has been brought to the screen with a wealth of beautiful settings, with a cast of excellent players and with the most expert of direction.

The result is a picture which will satisfy the most captious patrons of films. The story is found to be not a story of illicit passion for its own sake, as many critics of the book upon its first publication, contended but the romance of a great love which transgressed the laws of man and was punished for that transgression.

The picture contains a message for anyone who cares to look for it, but it is never obtruded. It is an entertaining motion picture well worth seeing for its entertainment value alone. The plot of "Three Weeks," with its love affair between the queen of Sardalia and the young Englishman, Paul Verdayne, with the subsequent death of the queen at the hands of her dissolute consort, is well known and does not need retelling here.

The role of the queen is splendidly played by a comparatively newcomer to the films—Aileen Pringle, previously seen in "Souls for Sale," and "In the Palace of the King." She gives a really marvelous portrayal of the queen in "Three Weeks." A new personality has come to the firmament of screen stars.

Conrad Nagel has never done such sterling and sincere work as he does in the role of the lover. In fact, the entire cast is unusually able and makes the story live upon the screen. Dale Fuller, John Sainpolis, Mitchell Lewis, Stuart Holmes, Nigel de Brulier and others are all excellent.

The beauty of the sets and the photography has seldom, if ever, been surpassed. The sets are very simple and reach true grandeur through their simplicity. "Three Weeks" is going to be a much bigger success on the screen than it was in book form.

Palace Theatre.

Can you picture the charming Florence Vidor doing a crying spell for fully three hours and still unable to satisfy the exacting requirements of Ernst Lubitsch, the famous European producer?

The crying spasm happened recently at the Warner Brothers' studios in Hollywood where the famous director filmed his second American production, "The Marriage Circle." Reclining on a purple colored divan, and dressed in a becoming frock, Miss Vidor faced the camera bravely while the steely, penetrating eyes of her director probed the very depth of her soul.

"Music!" shouted Mr. Lubitsch.

"Shoot!"

The camera began to click. All eyes were riveted on the charming film star. They noted the tenseness of her expression, the wild look in her eyes as the tears began to flow like so many raindrops down her pale white cheeks. And all the while the director was living every moment with her, urging her on, compelling her to express one of the most poignantly dramatic notes in the entire sequence of the story. Then quite suddenly Miss Vidor collapsed on the divan, her voice falling from an hysterical note to a sigh of sheer exhaustion. Unfortunately she hadn't registered what Lubitsch desired, and thus for three hours, interspersed with breathing spells, the famous screen celebrity spilled loads of tears until the scene was perfect.

"The Marriage Circle," which opened last night at the Palace for a limited engagement of four days, as the feature attraction. The cast is composed of Florence Vidor, Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Harry Myers, Adolphe Menjou and Creighton Hale.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 59 Woodbridge St., E. Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. There are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Find Omens in Chicken Bones.

Chickens' bones are the "Where-Is-It?" book of the Red Karen tribe in Burma. The Karen, according to the National Geographic Magazine, consults them to know where he should build his village or his house; whether he should start on a journey, and, if so, in what direction, on what day and at what hour; whether he should marry a certain girl, and, if the omens approve, on what day he should do it; where he should make his hill-clearing, when he should prepare, sow and reap it; in fact, he does nothing without authority from fowls' bones. Like all their neighbors, the Red Karen are spirit-worshipers, and the names of their divinities seem to be much the same for all. Some of the spirits are bad, some indifferent and a few amiable. The malignant ones are sedulously worshiped with sacrifices, the others only at moments of expansiveness, after surplus liquor has been consumed.

WIDER, OR SECONDARY ROADS

In more ways than one it is made evident that the days ahead are days of increased expenditure for highway improvements instead of any letting up in such a direction. Large sums have been spent for better roads, large sums have been provided for the coming [illegible] and large sums are needed for maintenance and extension of both.

But while there have been large expenditures in this work it has hardly kept pace with the increase in motor vehicle traffic. The better roads have created demands for more roads and the highway uses have grown to the point where it is a question whether highways should be widened or parallel roads constructed in order to handle the huge number of motor vehicles with the greatest degree of safety.

The situation prevails chiefly at the present time on the main highways of travel. Roads were built in the first place to accommodate a line of traffic. This is wide enough in most instances outside of [illegible] main roads the question arises as to whether these roads should be widened to accommodate [illegible] each direction. [illegible] there are numerous instances where new road construction has been authorized [illegible] the idea in view of providing such relief. That will [illegible] new [illegible] Norwich [illegible] Salem to [illegible] completed [illegible] to Colchester attracts travel that formerly went via Willimantic, while the road down the east side of the Thames is a decided relief to conditions on the west side.

More than one way of getting [illegible] various centers has [illegible] ages and will serve for [illegible] time in delaying decisions [illegible] highways twice as wide [illegible] many roads appear to be adequate from the accident prevention standpoint, even though the distance might [illegible]

THE MISSISSIPPI EXPLOSION

Even though there had been a loss of life and the explosion on the Mississippi had resulted only in damage to equipment there was provided one reason for a thorough investigation. There exists the need of determining, if possible what caused such an explosion [illegible] be prevented in the future.

Loss of life during peace time on our battleships is to be greatly deplored. [illegible] was due [illegible] or mechanical [illegible] ing of the blame [illegible] appears to have been a combination of unfortunate circumstances in connection with the turret test. There was the explosion which caused many deaths and there was also two cases of guns hanging fire which threatened many more lives on land and sea. It isn't enough to have such affairs set down as an accident. It is of course understood that the horrible affair was not done intentionally with malice aforethought, but that doesn't afford a knowledge of the circumstances leading up to it that would provide a guard against a repetition.

The board of inquiry is bound to be handicapped by the fact that so many intimately connected with the affair were killed. Whether it will be possible to get an accurate statement of just what the trouble was is a question. Something happened that should not have. Something went wrong or something was not properly done or something was neglected, possibly some part of the equipment was not functioning as it should.

The search for the cause of the explosion must be continued until all possible means of finding out are exhausted. The country deplores the loss of the officers and men. Their sacrifice will not go unrecognized but there is need of determining what is required in order to prevent others from being caught in a similar predicament. This appears to have been one of those accidents which might have been prevented and having happened the need exists of seeing that nothing of the kind happens again.

LOSSES FROM HOARDING

From time to time there are stories of those who lose considerable sums of money, perhaps all they have through the destruction of the building in which they have hoarded and hidden away their wealth. There has been plenty of advice against such practices but without effect.

Just how limited the number of those who trust to a featherbed, the old sugar bowl or the hidden drawer for the concealing of their funds is not known. Not all who do so lose their money even though they get no interest thereon. But too many are the instances where fire gets in its work and robbers breaking in to steal and murder. The miser's idea of self protection is often an invitation to crooks and gunmen.

In the opinion of J. S. McCoy, an actuary in the United States treasury, there is something like $400,000,000 kept out of circulation in this country by those who hoard their money. That, at the usual bank interest, means the loss of $16,000,000 a year to these people who consider they are protecting their earnings so carefully they are oblivious to the fact that they are subjecting themselves to quick and complete losses.

It doesn't appear that the situation today is any different than it has been in years that have gone. There are those among the millions of foreign wage earners who require much time to get acquainted with conditions here and to put confidence in American institutions. There are those who live at points distant from banking houses and there are those who require a certain amount of funds on hand to carry on their activities, to say nothing of those who keep their money until a certain sum is reached before banking it.

It is not expected that the time will come when there will be no hoarding on money. Such would be as improbable as the making of human nature uniform. There will always be those who will follow their own methods regardless of the lack of wisdom and the loss of financial return, but it is most unfortunate that in doing so they invite the quick and complete wiping out of their all when it might easily be guarded against.

HULL'S FEEBLE EFFORT

Did anyone expect that the republican nominations and the republican platform would be any more pleasing and acceptable to Chairman Clyde Hull of the democratic national committee than to Robert M. LaFollette? It would make no difference who was nominated or what the different planks in the platform were, it could be anticipated in advance just what Chairman Hull would think and say about them. He consider it necessary to express his views in order to create some interest in his own party's campaign, but he accomplishes nothing the way of swinging the country to his ideas when he tries to make capital out of the fact that Lowden refused the nomination and others were not willing to have their names considered. It is like throwing lamp chimneys at a stone wall.

The naming by the convention of Coolidge and Dawes presents before the country a strong and impressive ticket. Both are men who are committed to the service of their country, committed to high and efficient service, whose records are impressive and are certain to work together in harmony and unison. They will recognize what is required for national welfare and do their best to insure it. They will be guided by economic laws and will not dodge their duty in enforcing them.

Votes made upon the republican ticket serve to indicate how difficult it is for the opposition to find a vulnerable spot. Chairman Hull of the democratic committee welcomes the help that will be received through the threatened action of the La Follette adherents, and he has reason to, but when he undertakes to belittle the candidates named by the republican convention he is simply making wild gestures in thin air. It is a very feeble effort at backfiring.

But feeble as it is it is the best that the situation permits.

CHANGES IN FRANCE

It was not anticipated that France would have a new president at this time but it has come about. Millerand dipped into politics to the extent of displaying his favoritism for Poincare and it was sufficient to bring pressure to bear on him that forced his getting out of office though elected for a much longer period.

With Doumergue in office as president, Herriot the leader who refused to accept the premiership under Millerand has taken up the work that was dropped by Poincare. The naming of his cabinet indicates that he is prepared to tackle the various problems that concern France at the present time, including the reparations question and its adjustment under the plan that has been recommended by the Dawes committee report.

Just what the upset in France politically at this time is going to result in is of much concern not only to France but to other countries. Some indication may be gained by the conference between the French and British premiers, which should take place soon in order to clear up the uncertainty as to whether they are to come to an understanding or not regarding reparations.

French governments come and go. There is no fixed period for them. Whether the new one will be long or short lived depends upon the support that it is able to command is the result of the policies it introduces and follows. President Doumergue will now bask in the shade of his new office and Premier Herriot will have a chance to show how much confidence he can inspire at home and abroad.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When Dawes says, "I will do my best," the country knows what to expect from him.

The man on the corner says: Were you among that number who inquired on Flag day why the flags were out?

There is no possibility that President Doumergue of France will resign because he was elected on Friday the 13th.

Have you tested the the claim that the water in the ocean is seven degrees warmer than it was a year ago at this time?

One of these days congress will begin to realize that when President Coolidge said he was in favor of economy he meant it.

While Hiram Johnson is in eclipse, California has an eye to the future for a Los Angeles boy has just won an oratorical contest.

When Senator Lodge declares he does not intend to make any speeches this summer he understands one way of dodging trouble.

An American destroyer has been ordered to Albania which is a little change from the regular routine of sending them to San Domingo or Haiti.

Germany having the choice between taking the Dawes plan or the consequences, took the plan, which seems to indicate a notable increase in discretion.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Add bluing to the soapsuds in which you wash your glass and crystal. It will make it sparkle.

When frying fat has become dark from repeated using, clarify it with potato.

When sweeping, cover your head with a cap or kerchief, to protect your hair from dust.

Except in the very hottest weather, all foods, cooked or raw, keep better in fresh air than in a refrigerator.

Cold cooked peas, carrots, beets, string beans and almost any cold vegetables may be combined with French dressing to make a delicious salad.

For patterns of crochet or embroidery illustrated in newspapers and periodicals which cannot be copied because of their small size, a reading or magnifying glass will be useful.

To prevent oil stove wicks from smoking soak them in vinegar and then dry them thoroughly before using.

Boil pots and pans in lye once in a while and you will find that they have a freshness and newness that is pleasing.

A marble put in boiling milk will save the trouble of stirring, while if milk is slightly burned you can remove the taste by adding a pinch of salt and putting the pan into cold water.

Clear up as you go, is a good slogan for the housewife. By using each food instead of letting it remain a day or two, you run no risk of loss by spoiling. Another point is that your refrigerator is more easily kept clean.

A tiny ball of cotton or wool pushed up into the fingertips of new gloves will prevent the finger nails from tearing or cutting the fabric.

Wet shoes that have become stiff can be softened nicely with castor oil which is quite as warm as the fingers can comfortably stand. Apply it with a sponge and rub it in with the fingers.

HANDY KNIFE STAND

While cooking it is often necessary to lay down one's knives and forks. Unless you have something on which to place them you will most likely put them on the side of the stove. This necessitates extra cleaning. You can prevent this if you make a knife stand out of a piece of extra heavy cardboard or a thin wooden board. Cover this with oilcloth and place it on the side of stove.

KEEP THE PIPES CLEAN!

Keep the waste pipes clean!

A great amount of dirt accumulates in the pipes during the routine of a morning. Remaining there it may cause serious trouble.

So once a week, in the afternoon, when all of your work is finished, give your sink and drain pipes a good strong lye bath. Use the liquid potash variety. Any druggist can tell you in what proportion to mix it.

Pour it down the drain pipe and then don't let any water run down for several hours. The lye will destroy the dirt which has gathered and thus eliminate any harm which might have resulted.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If your skin is dry and rough and takes up dirt easily, rub it full of cleansing cream, then wash off with hot water and soap, and use powder. If you do this you'll have a fresh, rosy, clear complexion for a long time after.

The reason English women have better skins than American women is that they never miss their daily walk. It isn't just the dampness of English air, though ten minutes rapid walk in a steady downpour will work a miracle with your complexion—it makes the blood circulate with vigor, and the cleansed, damp air is like a mask straight from heaven. But it isn't just the dampness, it's a regularity. She walks every day.

Gardening is exhausting work for anyone not very strong; it makes you bend with stretched back and cramped chest, which isn't good for you. But if you'll straighten up now and then, pull your shoulders back and take a long deep breath of air, you'll avoid cramped muscles and an aching spine. You'll find it easier to cut your garden work in two, doing half early in the day and half later on. This avoids a prolonged strain.

If your hair is wispy and dry and sticky after washing, it means one of two things. Either it was too dry already and has been dried still more by shampooing, and probably by strong soap, or else it was not washed thoroughly enough to take the grease out and the soap off. If you suspect the first cause, rub the scalp with hot olive oil the night before you shampoo. In any case, wash with hot water and a good soap (castile in liquid form being best) and give the hair at least three soapings with fresh water each time. It should have three hot and one cold rinsing, at least preferably with a hose to force the water through. Then it will come out glossy.

FETCHING AND NOVEL

A fetching little hat, which closely copies the Turkish fez, is a novelty of the day. In a shining silk, with folds crossing in front, it has a spray of burnt goose feathers in the exact center of the front.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Kerchiefs and scarfs of crepe in Scotch plaid designs and colorings are more novel than the printed effects.

Embroidered parasols are new this season. One of the most gorgeous ones is of black velvet lined with shell pink satin embroidered in rose shades.

Plaid alpaca is a good thought for afternoon wear. The desirable colors are navy, brown, beige, gray, the greens, blue and brick with cross lines as brilliant as you please.

Every effort now is bent toward simplicity in frocks. The lines are straight and simple, and the whole air of the costume is that of avoiding heaviness and overelaboration.

The white satin or crepe frock worn with the straight black coat lined with white is very smart indeed.

Jersey dresses for the first warm days when coats are no longer necessary come in desirable colors bound with ribbon or a contrasting color of jersey.

DRESSES EASILY MADE

A woman with ability as seamstress can duplicate many of the chiffon dresses popular at present. The majority of these modes are made almost exactly on the lines of the bungalow apron. The silhouette is absolutely straight from neck line to hem. The material is from forty to forty-four inches wide and the amount remaining after the front and back breadths have been laid upon the pattern and cut is used for trimming.

This remnant, averaging around 18 inches in width, is usually three and a half yards long. On one model shown in a smart shop an end of this piece is affixed in cape fashion from the left armpit to the right shoulder across the back. From the right shoulder it is allowed to drop in a graceful drape effect to the skirt hem, where it is doubled back, caught at the right hip and draped across the front on the left hip in apron effect.

On another model the remnant is split into four panels, the edges of each picoted. Two are stitched to the waistline at each hip, allowing the material to fall into four graceful panels to the skirt hem. Plaid designs are being extensively used for these dresses.

GIRL'S RAINBOW DRESS

A fascinating little dress for a small girl is made of white voile with three bands of colored voile set in above the hem and all joined with fagoting. The colors used are lavender, pink, yellow, and pipings of the same three colors are used on collar and cuffs.

SEWING HINTS

If you want your sewing machine to do satisfactory work remember that it should be kept clean. After every ten hours' work it needs oil, but the surplus oil should be carefully wiped off or the material will be stained.

To ascertain the amount of material to allow for a frill, measure the length required when finished and allow half as much again, or if the frill is to be very full another quarter or half in addition.

When stitching skirt seams always have the selvedge side uppermost to keep the material from being puckered. When two cross seams have to be joined, tack a narrow piece of tape in the seam before stitching. This will prevent the seam from stretching.

Always work a sewing machine steadily and never start or stop with a jerk. The best way to finish off a machine seam is to turn the material all around and stitch back for about an inch. This saves tying the threads, which takes up a lot of time.

LEFTOVERS

Small leftover portions of fish may be freed from bone and creamed, used with suitable vegetables as a salad or made into fish croquettes.

Unsightly leftover portions of fowl may be freed from bone, chopped up with the dressing, moistened with any remaining gravy and made into a loaf of small patties. A little dried, crumbed bread may be added if necessary.

Small leftover portions of cream of wheat and hominy may be molded in small individual dishes with a little fruit; such as cherry or peach, in the bottom. These, with cream, are good for dessert or for a breakfast dish.

A very little leftover of cold boiled ham may be chopped and used as filling for an omelet before folding.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR SHOES

With the right care you can make your shoes last ever so much longer than they have been lasting.

Heat is an enemy of leather. It is particularly destructive to patent leather, but it robs any sort of leather of its vitality so that it becomes brittle.

So, when your shoes are wet with fall rains, don't put them close to the fire, or as surely as they are close enough to the fire to give the characteristic odor of leather, they are being singed.

Rubber over-shoes should not be worn any more than is necessary, because they tend to hold the animal heat and thus injure the shoes.

If your shoes are wet, put them in a warm room, in a draught of air if possible and fill them with crumpled newspapers.

LAVISH USE OF LACES

The French designers are lavishing laces of every description on their summer afternoon and evening frocks. One of the most charming examples brought to this side recently is an afternoon dress of dark brown georgette, trimmed with lace of the same color, which extends in a long V from the bateau neckline to the waist, and which has inverted V-shaped inserts of the same material extending from the arm pit to the skirt hem.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Mme. Clair Eliasca, American wife of a Constantinople banker, has received 10 decorations from foreign countries.

Anna Weinstock, conciliator of the United States Department of Labor, has settled 50 strikes in one year's service.

Mme. Vera Sergine, eminent French actress, will build her own theater so that she can act plays of her choice.

Madame Culianova, widow of Nicolai Lenine, has been made a member of several important soviet government bureaus.

Since the earthquake, 44 women's organizations in Japan have federated and plan a comprehensive program for the next five years.

PEELING ONIONS

No more tears will be shed when you peel onions if you hold the onion in your left hand with sprout end up and root down. Cut off the top and with a few strokes peel downward toward the root.

TAKES OUT SPLINTER

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh try extraction by steam. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle and fill it two-thirds full with very hot water and place under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down, when a little pressure is used and the steam in a few moments removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

NEAT WASTE BASKET

Every woman thrills with pride when some one compliments her upon having created with her own hands some lovely accessory to her home. A decorative waste basket of carboard is easy to make. The floor of the basket is four inches square, and each of the four sides is divided at the top into two points. From top to bottom the basket measures 14 1-2 inches at the highest point, and 12 inches at the bottom point. One yard of 9-inch black satin ribbon is used for the lower half of the basket; eight pieces of figured or novelty ribbon 9 1-2 by 5 inches each, from point to point, are used for the top. Five and one-half yards of 2-8-inch fancy gilt-edge ribbon binds the seams; 2 1-2 yards of 1-2-inch black satin ribbon binds the sides and bottom, and gilt net forms the lining, all the edges being bound with 1-2-inch ribbon.

MAH JONG COVER

A mah jong cover for the card table is of heavy linen with a dragon design stamped in colors in the center. The sides are turned up so as to form deep hems or pockets for the tiles and the sides are stamped, South Wind, North Wind, etc.

RECIPES

Baked Apple with Oatmeal: Two cups boiling water, 1 to 2 teaspoons salt, 6 tart cooking apples, 1-2 cup sugar. Mix salt with boiling water, add oats and cook for 5 minutes. Wash and core apples and place them in a greased baking dish. Fill the cavities with the cooked oatmeal, and with the remainder fill in the spaces between the apples. Sprinkle the sugar over the top, cover and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for 35 minutes. Then uncover and cook 10 minutes longer. Serve warm with milk for breakfast, or cold for lunch or supper. This is an excellent way to tempt children to eat oatmeal. Leftover porridge of any kind may be used instead of freshly cooked.

Chicken Croquettes: Melt 1-8 cup of butter; when bubbling, stir in 1-3 cup of flour, then add slowly 1 cup of milk and stir and cook until thick. Season 1 3-4 cups of newly chopped cooked chicken with 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 1-3 teaspoon of celery salt, 10 drops of onion juice, a few grains of cayenne and 1 teaspoon each of lemon juice and finely chopped parsley. Moisten with the sauce, cook until well heated and spread on a platter to cool. Shape into cones, roll in fine crumbs, dip in beaten egg, roll again in crumbs and fry in deep hot fat.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Appreciation

Mr. Editor: After being a correspondent of papers in all parts of the world for more than half a century, I would be certainly lax in duty if I allowed the death of that grand old lady, Mrs. Kirk H. Leavens to pass without personal notice.

Mrs. Leavens, whose maiden name was Gleason, was one of the first ladies I ever remember. She resided in Packerville from my earliest memory and her late husband, Kirk Hammond Leavens, operated the mills until the fall of 1882.

She was not only a friend to every one in our village, a teacher to many whose education had been neglected in childhood, but the village nurse and physician also.

In those days Mrs. Leavens and her dear husband were immediately present when illness of any kind was reported, and it was only in very rare occasions a doctor was needed.

In company with the last Mary Bishop of Norwich, several young men who could not read, were taught nights and the descendants of those young men, scattered far and near, will join me in saving the death of Mrs. Leavens marks the passing of one of the best women God ever created.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Friends of United States Senator Bert M. Fernald appear confident that he will be renominated in the Maine primaries today, notwithstanding that there are two opposing candidates on the republican ticket. Mr. Fernald is the senior representative of the Pine Tree State in the upper house. He first entered the senate in 1916 to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Burleigh. Two years later he was re-elected for the full six-year term. Before entering the senate he had served his state two terms in the governorship. The senator's career furnishes an object lesson for all young men who are ambitious to succeed. He was born a "hopeless" cripple and he was over six years old before he could walk. Three amazing surgical operations and wonderful will power remedied the physical defect. In business life he displayed the same determination to rise from the poverty of his early years to a position of high standing in the commercial world.

Vanderlip, the Mechanic from the Farm

When Frank A. Vanderlip was 12 years old, his father died and the boy had to help make the farm on which he was born produce its small yield. Four years later the heavily-mortgaged place was sold and the farmer boy could find only one job in nearby Aurora, Ill. That was in a machine shop, where for ten hours' work a day he was paid 75 cents.

He had gone to country school part of the time and had studied at night. Now he learned and taught after hours, and saved enough to enter the University of Illinois. Completing the course in mechanical engineering there he sought work, but could find nothing but his old machinist job, now paying $1.35 a day.

He studied stenography by mail. The machine shop shut down and he became handy man on the Aurora newspaper at $1 a day.

Next, in Chicago, he first was stenographer and later manager of a concern furnishing analytical business reports. Then he was a reporter on a newspaper, and climbed to the position of financial editor—and still continued to study, and to support the family. His newspaper work attracted the attention of Lyman J. Gage, and when Gage was appointed secretary of the treasury he took Vanderlip, now 33, to Washington as his private secretary, and later made him assistant secretary of the treasury.

Four years later Vanderlip was called to the National City bank of New York, the largest bank in the country. Starting as vice-president, with a salary of $25,000 a year and no set duties, he created a field and built the bank's business. At the end of eight years he, at 45, became president and continued to make the institution more powerful. He headed the International Banking Corporation when it began its active campaign for banking business of the world, then became interested in many other concerns.

Having amassed a fortune, he retired when 55. He has been honored by this and other countries and is known for his many benefactions, modestly given.

A man who is noted for squeezing his pennies until the Indian gave a war whoop, and who also smokes a cigar until it is necessary to stick a pin through it to keep from burning his fingers, met a friend the other day and engaged in a friends conversation. "What did he say?"

"He said, 'Oh, we thank Thee for Food and Raymond.'"

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Rollo H. Harris.

The death of Magdalena Rossmark Harris, wife of Rollo H. Harris of 120 Broadway, occurred Sunday evening at 6.20 o'clock after a long illness which she had borne with courage and patience, her condition having been serious for the last five months.

Mrs. Harris was born in Hopeville, Pa., forty-five years ago, the daughter of John G. Rossmark and Meicina Marks. Her parents moved to this city when she was three years old and her home had been here ever since then. Up to within the last three years she had always resided on the East Side. She was married seventeen years last January to Rollo H. Harris, who survives her.

Mrs. Harris was a member of the Universalist church and of the Woman's Benefit Association, Maccabees. She was a true wife who made her home her first interest, a kindly and helpful neighbor and friend whose loss will be deeply felt by many who knew her.

WEDDINGS

McClimon—Muttart.

The First Congregational church at Preston City, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday noon when Miss Esther Elmwood, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Muttart was united in marriage to Walter Raymond McClimon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McClimon, of Preston. The chancel was decorated with masses of deutzia and June pink, against a background of palms and potted plants. The wedding ceremony was performed by the bride's father, who is pastor of the Preston City church, and she was attended by her sister, Miss Ina B. Muttart of Concord, N. H. The best man was John Hollowell of Preston, while Sidney Hall and Harold Muttart acted as ushers. Miss Abbie Stanton, organist, played the wedding march and appropriate music which accompanied the marriage service.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McClimon received their friends on the lawn in front of the church. Later a reception was given at the parsonage and was attended by relatives and church choir friends. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with cut flowers. Refreshments were served, and a large and handsome wedding cake was cut by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McClimon were given a hearty send-off as they left by automobile on a honeymoon trip which will embrace scenic points in New York and notrehern New England. The popularity of the couple was attested by the unusually large number of beautiful and costly wedding gifts. On their return they will reside at the McClimon home, in Preston.

Among those attending the wedding were friends from Phillipston, Mass., and Concord, N. H., where the father of the bride formerly held pastorate, also relatives from New York and Providence.

Saturday evening, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott united in marriage Miss Mildred Elizabeth Wilbur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Wilbur, of 188 Elizabeth street, and Carroll Maynard Spalding of 326 Main street, son of Mrs. Spalding.

The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Calkins, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

Mr. Spalding is connected with a fruit and produce business in New London.

Gay of No. 194 West Main street, took place and was attended by relatives and friends of the family. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, conducted the funeral services. Burial took place in Yantic cemetery.

Gardner, Fred Wilson and John McIntyre. Burial was in Yantic cemetery where Rev. Mr. Dunbar read the committal service.

Plants and Flowers.

Growing plants and flowers are such a delight to many people in all seasons of the year that all kinds of ingenious ideas are being shown for making it possible to have at least green vines anywhere in the house that can boast a little daylight and sunshine. A Chinese wall bird may be hung on the frame of a window, over a writing desk, over a mantel, or near the little table at the side of a bed, with yards of ivy trailing down over its plumage. Canary bird vines will grow almost anywhere that ivy will; and if the vase is hung close to the window nasturtiums can be substituted for the ivy. The earth that is put in the vase should not be very rich and if [illegible] should free [illegible]

OPENED SALVATION ARMY DRIVE FOR $5,000 FOR NORWICH WORK

The campaign to raise $5,000 for the local Salvation Army corps was officially opened Sunday evening at a mass meeting held at the Central Baptist church. Brief addresses by Mayor Milo R. Waters, George A. Finn, president of the Norwich Lions club and chairman of the drive committee, Commandant E. W. Wilbur of the Salvation Army, a special programme of vocal and instrumental numbers by Miss Nina Gordon, Westell Gordon and Mrs. Westell Gordon, and an address on Salvation Army work by Mrs. M. Johnston, Salvation Army commandant, of Boston, comprised the evening's program. There was a large sized congregation, practically every seat in the church auditorium being taken.

With Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, leading, the service was opened at 7.30 o'clock with the singing of a hymn after which Mrs. Johnson read the scripture selection. Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, offered prayer. The first number of the special musical program was a vocal selection, If With All Your Hearts, by Westell Gordon who accompanied himself on the piano.

Mayor Milo R. Waters was the first speaker. The Salvation Army won its way to our hearts a few years ago during the war times, and we must not forget it now, said Mayor Waters. The Salvation Army pays no attention to creed or race and every day, all the year round it is doing its best. It is only a small appeal that it is making and we must put the campaign over with a bang.

Miss Nina Gordon, playing her own accompaniment on the piano, and assisted by Mr. Gordon, 'cellist, sang God Shall Wipe Away All Tears. George A Finn, president of the Lions Club and chairman of the Salvation Army drive committee, was then presented by Rev. Dr. Pitt. In a brief address Mr. Finn said the drive is for a very worthy cause. Whatever you contribute I can assure you will be used for the relief and happiness of the poor.

Haven of Tenderness was sung by Mr. Gordon, this being one of his own compositions. Commandant E. W. Wilbur spoke briefly on the work the Salvation Army is doing in the local field. After which Mr. Gordon and Mrs. Gordon sang a duet, Heaven, Heaven, an old time Negro melody. Max Hanover, a prominent member of the Lions club, in a brief address, told of the worthy work which the Salvation Army is doing in helping the fallen and downtrodden. He said the army is ever ready to lend a helping hand to the sinful and unfortunate souls. The Salvation Army, he said, reminds us that there is some good in every man and that we ought to help those who have fallen. I am ever ready to plead its cause. It is your duty to support this organization. In closing Mr. Hanover said he hoped every one present would do his or her part to help raise the $5,000 for the fund.

The offertory was taken for the purpose of defraying the expense connected with the advertising of the meeting. During the offertory Mr. Gordon gave a 'cello solo, Handel's Largo, accompanied by Miss Gordon at the piano. Miss Gordon then sang Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee. Rev. Dr. Pitt presented Mrs. Wilbur, wife of Commandant Wilbur, who told of some of her experiences in the Army work locally. She spoke of her work when she came to Norwich for the first time 14 years ago and said she always feels at home in this city. She said she was pleased to be back in Norwich again and that she and Commandant Wilbur will endeavor to do whatever good they can.

Accompanied by Miss Gordon, piano, and Mr. Gordon, 'cello, Mrs. Gordon delighted the congregation with her vocal selection, To The Angels, after which Miss Gordon and Mr. Gordon sang Ode Little Dream of Love, one of Mr. Gordon's own compositions which is soon to be placed on the market by a large New York music publishing house.

Mrs. M. Johnston, Salvation Army commandant of Boston, gave a very interesting talk on Salvation Army work. First, last and all the time, it is the personal touch that counts in our work, she said. One of the best opportunities for service to mankind is presented by the Salvation Army. The Salvation Army is always looking for a chance to help our fellow men.

Mrs. Johnston spoke of the small beginning of the Salvation Army. She said there are now 12,000 corps doing work in 26 lands, instructing and preaching in 50 languages, supporting 12,888 social institutions, 928 schools and publishing 91 periodicals. The organization of the Salvation Army is based on religion, love, sympathy, sacrifice and action. The Salvation Army is just a part of God's machinery in Christianity. The human touch of the Salvation Army means an endeavor to make good. Sympathy is what we put into our work.

Mrs. Gordon then pleased with her singing of The Lord is My Light after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, and the congregation was dismissed by the organ chimes.

FLAG HONORED BY EXERCISES BY ELKS

Flag day was appropriately celebrated by Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430, with exercises held Saturday evening at 7 o'clock on the lawn at the rear of the Elks home on Main street. An audience of about 200 was in attendance when the programme opened with several concert numbers which were finely given by Swahn's military band which was seated on the stage that had been most attractively decorated by Brother Otto F. Ernst with snowballs, palms and the Elks' purple.

JOHN E. FITZGERALD, E. R.
Presided at Exercises

As exalted ruler, John E. Fitzgerald announced the Star Spangled Banner, following the concert, Steward Thomas Norris broke out an American flag on the staff on lawn and Brother Hugh Kinder led in the singing of the national anthem.

Prayer was offered by William E. Corey as chaplain, and the history of the flag was given by James M. Osten, esteemed lecturing knight. The baritone solo, Lest We Forget, was rendered in splendid voice by Hugh Kinder, accompanied by William Huber.

The flag day address was eloquently given by Brother Joseph Conroy of Boston who spoke of his pleasure at seeing so many boys and girls at the exercises and that those attending included the veterans of three wars, the world war, the Spanish-American war and the Civil war. It is fitting, he said, that an order so strictly American as the Elks are should conduct exercises on the 147th anniversary of the birth of the flag, which is the symbol of justice, equality and fraternity. There is a new spirit stirring the land, he declared, a spirit of helpfulness and understanding, and the B. P. O. E. are to stimulate devotion to American ideals and real patriotism. Above all we must be just, uphold the law, let crime be punished by due process of law. The school house must become more and more the citadel of American democracy. Let our watchword be ever onward, let us teach love and devotion to the flag, obedience to law and respect to constituted authorities.

The singing of America closed the programme.

Perhaps You Have Heard Them.

Harold had often heard the poem, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star." Last summer we visited Aunt Louise, who lived in the country. In the evening we would all sit on the porch, and, of course, hear all the night noises, such as frogs, crickets, etc. One evening Harold sat gazing intently at the sky for some time, then, suddenly looking at his mother, he exclaimed, "Mother, just hear the stars twinkle."—Chicago Tribune.

EXPLORING RUINS FOR PUEBLO BONITO

More than 300 rooms have been cleared and many kivas, or circular ceremonial chambers, already have been exposed to the desert sunlight. Only three years ago the great ruin was only a vast head of rock and earth, fallen walls, and wind-blown accumulations of uncounted centuries.

The explorations revealed that Pueblo Bonito was a busy village confined within a ringle dwelling. When inhabited it stood four stories high, included some 800 rooms, and sheltered 1,200 or more persons.

Four teams and a miniature railroad onerate to remove the vast quantities of debris from the huge ruins. Last summer alone 20,000 tons of debris—enough to fill a freight train of 400 gondola cars—were removed.

If in this havstack of the centuries a ton of litter yields a bit of pottery, a tiny bell or a wisdom tooth the history prospector thinks he has struck "pay dirt." Most of the actual work is performed by Indians.

The many treasured specimens thus far recovered have been forwarded to Washington and upon the conclusion of the expedition's work, they will be presented to the Goverment. They will constitute an outstanding donation of their kind.

No written record or hieroglyphic inscription was left by these ancient Americans. But it already is possible to piece together their life story from the evidence of the silent walls of their abandoned rooms and the scattered objects recovered from their deserted dwelling. Their daily activities, their civic organizations, their communal enterprises and their struggles against more warlike tribes can be pictured. It is evident that the Bonitans, who lived in what is now the Chaco Canyon National Monument, in northwestern New Mexico, probably held the most pretentious settlement in the southwestern United States in pre-Columbian times.

With the penetration of the Pueblo Bonito ruins the early history of America has begun to attract world interest—an interest being augumented with the sending of a National Geographic Society Expedition to uncover the great mound of Cuecuilco in the Valley of Mexico, which may be 8,000 years old. Of the relation of Pueblo Bonito to other explorations Dr. Judd says:

"There is bare possibility that some cultural connection will be found between the former inhabitants of Pueblo Bonito and the Maya, ancient temple builders of Yucatan and Guatemala. There absolutely is no chance of tracing any relationship between our prehistoric southwestern tribes and those of the Old World. Tutankhamen and his fellow Egyptians represent a high stage of cultural development along the desert borders of the Nile; the ancient Bonitans surpassed all their contemporaries in the desert regions of our Southwest but the pre-historic peoples of America and Egypt had nothing in common."

Dr. Judd will have as his chief assistant this year Karl Ruppert, of the University of Arizona.

GEORGE H. CARTER

George H. Carter, Public Printer of the United States, who read an astonishing address at the convention of the Third District Typothetae Federation at Atlantic City. He charged that when he took office he discovered corruption, graft, wholesale racetrack gambling and bootlegging in the printing office. He gave quotations from what he said was the oath of the "Wahnetas," a "secret, oathbound, invisible klan," which had been powerful enough to annul any rule, order or innovation.

Romance of Words.

Words have a romance all their own. MacAdam was a road builder, Guillotine a compassionate physician, Derrick an inventor. General Silhouette first devised the "cut out," which in the hands of a few has been raised to the point of genuine art. Lord Sandwich made a hasty repast at the gaming table. The spurious jewelry called pinchbeck is made of a cheap alloy first used by a jeweler of that name. Mrs. Bloomer set the feminine world agog in her day. Mr. Boycott was a landlord in Ireland whose tenantry refused to pay their rentals until certain of their demands were granted. Strange is the word gauntleret, sprung from La Sainte Terre (the Holy Land), whither pilgrims were wont leisurely to journey. Stranger the word haberdasher, which is said to have been derived from the German habt ihr das hier? Another exotic corruption, this time from the French, is qu'en dirai for quandary.—Detroit News.

The Sensitive Arab.

The Arabs form their judgments on externals that we ignore so it is vitally important that a stranger should watch every movement that he makes and every word that he says during his first weeks of association with a tribe. Nowhere is it so difficult to atone for a bad start as with the Bedouins. To illustrate the importance the Bedouins place on externals, on one occasion a British officer went up country and on the first night when the guest of a Howeitat sheik he sat down on the guest rug of honor with his feet stretched out in front of him. That officer was never popular with the Howeitats. The Bedouins regard it as bad manners to make your feet conspicuous.

Get Out and Get Busy.

The man who indulges in self-pity is a defeated man before the fight begins. There is no exercise of the human mind that is so debilitating, so fatal to heroic resolution, as that of nourishing the feeling that one has an impossible job, and is of all men most miserable. Have you a hard duty to perform? Perform it with resolution, and get it done, and encourage your soul with the glow of triumph. Who promised you an easy life? And who but a coward and a weakling cares for an easy life? Put on a smoke consumer and get out and get busy in the sunlight.—Exchange.

PENNANT RACE IN MAJOR LEAGUES IS CLOSE, ESPECIALLY IN THE AMERICAN

New York, June 12.—With two months of the playing season over, only New York and Chicago in the National league and New York, Boston and Detroit in the American, are holding the pace.

The Giants lead the Cubs by half a game, following today's victory over Cincinnati with Chicago idle. Other teams in the league are paired in fights for third, fifth and seventh places. Brooklyn, in third position, is three games removed from the top. Philadelphia is last, 11 1-2 games back.

The American league clubs have been more evenly matched and none of the first seven, the last of whom is only six games behind New York, can be considered distanced. Philadelphia, victim of a 12-game losing streak early in the season, has recovered and threatens to make an eight-team race.

Continuation of strong play by the Cubs, who have won six of their eastern games, and rapid advances by the Indians and White Sox, featured last week's play. The drive of the youthful Cubs carried them into first place which the Giants regained however, by winning yesterday and today as the rivals were idle. Cincinnati approached to within a few points of Brooklyn but fell back by losing their last two games. Three games back of the Reds, Pittsburgh holds fifth place by a point over Boston which was victimized by Chicago. The Phillies had a good week and crept to within a half-game of the Cards who trail the Braves by three games.

The World's Champions, with Waite Hoyt pitching two winning games in a return to form, gained on their rivals during the week and scored directly against the Tigers by taking three of the four game series. The second contest developed a riot which resulted in a forfeiture to the Yankees.

Boston losing two of three to Chicago and splitting with Cleveland, fell a full game back of the Yankees by losing today to Detroit which at now leads by one contest. The White Sox' spurt carried that team into the first division and within two games of the Tigers today as Washington fell a half-game to fifth. The Browns, after losing four straight, won today and kept ahead of Cleveland which won its seventh straight contest in nine starts.

Steady pitching backed the improvement of the two Chicago teams and of Cleveland. Thurston of the White Sox, Vance of Brooklyn, Hoyt of the Yankees and Ehmke of Boston each won two games. Ruth made only one homer but leads with 15. Fournier tops the National with 13 and Ken Williams made his 11th today. George Kelly sky-rocketed on Saturday with three homers in a single game, the first time it has been done this year. Weather was good in the American but the National had two bad days.

INDIANS TAKE SHAWKEY'S SCALP IN NINTH

Cleveland, June 15—Cleveland won today from New York 10 to 3, in the first game of the series. The locals made six runs in the sixth inning facing Shawkey from the box.

In sliding home in the first inning, left fielder Combs of the Yankees dislocated his right ankle. He was carried from the field with two on base in the seventh, Myatt hit a home run. The score:

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Bugle Song.

The splendor falls on castle walls,
And snowy summits old in story;
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying.

Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark, O hear! How thin and clear
And thinner, clearer, farther going!
O, sweet and far from cliff and scar
The horns of Elfland faintly blowing!
Blow, bugle; let us hear the purple glens replying,

Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O, love, they die in yon rich sky,
They faint on hill, or field, or river;
Our echoes roll from soul to soul,
And grow for ever and for ever;
Blow, bugle, blow; set the wild echoes flying,
And answer, echoes, answer, dying, dying, dying.

—Lord Tennyson.

The Chambered Nautilus.

This is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
Sails the unshadowed main—
The venturous bark that flings
On the sweet Summer wind its purpled wings
In gulfs enchanted, where the Siren sings,
And coral reefs lie bare,

Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl—
Wrecked is the ship of pearl!
And every chambered cell,
Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell,
As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell,
Before thee lies revealed

Year after year beheld the silent toil
That spread his lustrous coil;
Still, as the spiral grew,
He left the past year's dwelling for the new,
Stole with soft step its shining archway through
Built up its idle door,

Thanks for the Heavenly message brought by thee,
Child of the wandering sea,
Cast from her lap forlorn!
From thy dead lips a clearer note is borne
Than ever Triton blew from wreathed horn
While on mine ear it rings,
Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings:

Build thee more stately mansions, O, my soul
As the swift season roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from Heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

All the boys and girls of the Wide-awakes will soon reach a time in the year that means much to every boy and girl—the end of school. Vacation is a magic word that brings thoughts of relief from school and unlimited time to play for two whole months. Play is natural and necessary for the young, and part of nature's plan to help them grow into useful men and women. Some wise man has said that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, but it can just as truly be said that all play and no work makes Jack a lazy shirk. Uncle Jed is sure that the boy or the girl will get the most out of this vacation who makes it a happy combination of work and play.

Perhaps your vacation time will help somebody else to have a play time—your father or your mother, for instance; or your sister or brother. There are things that mother does every day of her life, or things that father has to do about the house or the farm which they would be glad to be helped with now that you have so many hours every day with nothing to do but play. A few minutes every day of this kind of helpfulness will make your play time all the sweeter, when given in a happy and cheerful spirit. That is the spirit for every Wideawake to have along with the rosy cheeks, smiling face and singing heart that vacation time brings.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

THE LADDER OF LIFE.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you my last letter of my grammar school career. This is my graduation essay on The Ladder of Life.

We read somewhere that the ladder of life is full of splinters when we begin to slide down. From this we gather that it is best to keep climbing.

We realize the first few rungs of the ladder of life when we reach the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the [illegible] school. As we have passed all of these [illegible] to look with askance eyes into what life is. Before we have gone far we find our most important need is self-reliance. This aids us to have a firmer grip upon the ladder staves, and assists us to hold on, preventing our feet from being knocked off by the waves in the ocean of life.

Next appears perseverance; this gives us the extra grit and tact necessary to make headway.

As we look upward we see the banner of Faith flying high in the wild winds beckoning us onwards and upwards.

With the aid of the progressive teacher in the school room, who always keeps wide open the door of his heart to striving students, the climb during school days is not so hard a task.

Oftentimes this has been due to the new creative force which the teacher has put into the lesson.

When I could not get the next rung easily I used to whine about my luck. Now I know better. Instead I keep smiling and find a smile is better than a scowl.

The ladder of life is made out of rungs harder than hickory and oftentimes the knuckles get knocked as we ascend; but it is gratifying to see how quickly the pain fades away by the new experiences of daily life.

My teacher tells me there is a prize shield at the top of life's ladder, a silver shield bearing letters of gold recording the word Excelsior—and he has written a short poem. If learned by heart and its contents used while climbing it will assist one to obtain that much sought shield.

AN UNEXPECTED RIDE.

Dear Uncle Jed: I must write to you and tell you about the unexpected ride I had today. I imagine all of you have seen little calves, but I don't believe you ever saw one as cute as my cow [illegible] Betty, this little calf's mother, was very proud of her little four weeks old baby. His name is Bettyboo. He is exactly like his mother in looks and actions. He has a white face, a white curly tail and red and white body.

He is very playful most of the time. One day he ran around in the barn and kicked up his heels so high that he almost lost his balance and fell over. He wanted to get away one day and ran around, so he got down on his front knees and bunted the stairs.

Today the sun was shining brightly and I wanted to take a picture of Bettyboo, so I took him out to the pasture bars on a little hill by some lilacs. I held him while a friend of mine took the picture. After using up one film and while she was putting in another a funny thing happened. Bettyboo was lying down and I was stooping over him and he got up. I was on his back and couldn't get off because he was going so fast. After reaching the bottom of the hill he stopped short and threw me over his head. My friend wanted to take his picture then with me riding him, but she was laughing so hard she couldn't.

I suppose you have read stories of children jumping on to calves' backs on purpose to have a ride, but I don't believe you ever heard of one like this before.

THE FOX AND THE PEACOCK.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I will tell you a story entitled The Fox and Peacock. One morning a hungry fox saw a beautiful peacock on a fence.

"He is proud of his fine feathers," said the fox. "If I can flatter him, I will have the sweet meat of him. I will also have his beautiful feathers to dress up with." So saying, he went over to the peacock. He then looked up into the sky. "What are you doing there, friend fox?" asked the peacock. "I am trying to count the stars in the sky," answered the fox. "Well that's a hard thing to do in the day time." "Not so hard as you think it is," returned the fox. "I know how many there are," he added.

"Do you mean to tell me that there are more fools on earth than stars in the sky?"

"One more."

"And who is that?"

"The silliest one on earth is me. It is foolish of me to count the stars in the sky when I can count them on your tail."

"Oh, no! brother fox. If I would let you do that, I could have lost my life."

So the fox crept away, saying: "There is one fool less on earth than I thought."

A LONG JOURNEY.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you a letter about a long journey, when I and my father went on business. The letter I wrote was as follows:

Dear cousins:—

As you will see by this letter heading, we have arrived in Paris. We will give you an outline of our trip, which has been very interesting so far.

On March the third we left New York on the Imperial and a week later we stood on the wharves at Liverpool. After spending two days in this busy seaport, we crossed England by train.

In London we visited many places of interest. We hired an English guard to take us through Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London and the Houses of Parliament. Should you like to stand on London bridge? This bridge spans the Thames river in England.

After father had finished his business in London, we crossed the English Channel. We had a rough trip over and we were very glad when he landed at Calais. We met Colonel Fielding at our hotel, and he came with us to Paris. He has promised to take us on a sightseeing tour. We have learned a few French words already.

We shall be glad to get a letter from you telling us what you have been doing. What kind of weather are you having these spring days? Have you begun to play any spring games? Have you any new toys? Colonel Fielding came in today with two packages and said: "Here are some French marbles for John and a French jumping rope for Bertha."

THE BIRDS' HOME.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you how birds make their homes. Each mother bird has her own way of making the nest but there is one thing [illegible] is to hide it. They cannot put their little homes out in plain sight, as we do our homes, because so many creatures want to rob them. Squirrels and snakes and rats, and some big birds, and cats and many others like to eat eggs and young birds. So most birds try, first of all, to find good hiding places. Some tiny warblers go to the tops of the tallest trees and hide the nest among the leaves. Orioles hang the swinging cradle at the end of a branch, where cats and snakes and naughty boys cannot come. Song sparrows tuck the little home in a tuft of weeds on the ground, and bobolinks hide it in the deep grass.

After a safe place is found, they have to get something to build the nest. They gather small twigs, or grass stems, of fine rootlets, and pull narrow strips of bark off the grapevines and birch trees, or they pick up strings and horsehairs, and many other things. Robins and swallows use mud. Some bird homes are only platforms, where it seems as if the eggs must roll off, and others are deep holes in the ground where no one can get in. Some are dainty baskets hung between two twigs, and others are tiny cups. There are as many different ways as there are kinds of birds to make them.

A STORY OF WASHINGTON.

Dear Uncle Jed: During the Revolutionary war a band of soldiers and a corporal were trying to raise a heavy beam which was to be raised to the top of a wall. It was almost too heavy for them. The corporal's voice was heard shouting "Heave away! There it goes! Heave!" Just then a man in citizen's clothes was passing by and asked the corporal why he did not help the men. The corporal, much astonished, said: "Sir, I am a corporal!" "Oh are you?" said the man. Then he put his shoulders to the beam and pulled until the sweat stood on his forehead. When the beam was right he turned and said: "Mr. , Corporal when you have another such job as this and not enough men to do it, send for your commander-in-chief and he will gladly help you another time." The corporal was thunderstruck! It was Washington!

A CHRISTMAS SURPRISE.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about a Christmas surprise. It was Christmas night in 1778, the second year of the Revolutionary war, and the Hessian soldiers were making merry at Trenton. They were Germans who had been hired by the king of England to help him conquer the American rebels. They had good warm quarters, plenty to eat and plenty to drink. They sang songs and told stories. They were in the best of spirits, for Washington, the commander-in-chief of America, was entertaining. "There won't be much more trouble from him," declared one soldier. "He had to leave the Hudson and we have chased him out of New Jersey and into Pennsylvania." "We'll soon be in Pennsylvania," said another "and that will be the end of the war. They say Washington's troops are deserting by the hundreds." Late at night the men went to their warm beds. About the time that their feast began Washington had marched his men down the opposite bank of the Delaware.

A CLEVER PET.

Dear Uncle Jed: My pet is a dog. His name is Major. When I tell him to sit down and hold a cup of milk and drink it, he does it. One day in April I told him to bring a piece of wood in the house. When I go to school he jumps on me and begs me to stay and play with him. But I pat him and go to school.

One day I saw a nest and I showed it to him. He would not touch the nest. He is black and white. He can stand on his hind legs. I call him and play with him. I tie a string around a stick and turn it. He tries to catch the string.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing about my narrow escape. One day in February I was coming out of school and I was going to cross the road. I looked on both sides to see if a machine was coming. I didn't see any so I started to cross the road, when an automobile came on full speed and knocked me over.

My friend hurried to tell my mother that I was killed. I must have fainted because I found myself in bed when I got up.

The doctor came about 6 o'clock to see if my bones were broken. I was only scratched on my hands and knee. The doctor said that I would be better the next day.

MY BIRTHDAY.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I've written to you. Friday, the 6th of June, is Nathan Hale's birthday. I was so glad and proud to see I was born on the same day. I hope some day that I'll do as much as he did for my country.

The speaking contest which we had on May 21, 1924 was held in Union hall. We had a speaker from Hartford, Edwin B. Floyd, who spoke about Nathan Hale.

The last words that Nathan Hale said before he died was: "I regret that I only have one life to lose for my country."

THE POSTER CONTEST.

Dear Uncle Jed and Wideawakes: One day my school teacher showed me an article in a newspaper about the poster contest the Humane society was going to have on "Kindness to Animals."

I started right in drawing different animals such as horses, cows, dogs, cats and birds, but thought of another way. So I drew a good, healthy, strong horse and a poor, thin, good-for-nothing horse and titled it "Which is yours?"

After practicing and drawing it over and over again, my teacher sent it with a few others to the Courant.

The first prize was $5, then $3, and honorable mention, and I was pleased when I got $1 for mine.

PEOPLE AND INDUSTRIES.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thank you very much for your prize book. I didn't think I'd get a book. Now I will tell you about People and Industries and I hope you will be interested in it.

Europe is only a little larger than the United States and Alaska, but it has four times as large a population. It is divided into many countries, each with its own lawns, and generally with a language of its own. Long ago, when our country was first settled, most of the explorers and settlers came from Great Britain, The Netherlands, France and Spain. Later many settlers came from Germany, Norway, Italy, Russia and other countries. Even at the present time many people every year leave Europe and come to our country to live.

[illegible] know our language, but they soon learn to speak it. Their children go to our schools and most of them become citizens and good Americans. There are so many people in Europe that they are not able to raise on that continent all of the food that they need or all of the necessary raw materials for their clothing.

A TRIP TO THE WOODS.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a little story named A Trip to the Woods, which is my first letter to you. One day I went to the woods. I saw someone on the way. It was an old man who was picking strawberries. I asked him if he found very many, but he said he only found three. After I left him I saw a snake. It frightened me, but I grabbed a club and killed it. Then I went on peacefully.

The purpose of the trip was to carry my father some dinner. He was cutting wood deep in the forest. Soon I came to where he was and gave him his dinner.

My father said he thought I would get lost in the woods. After he ate his dinner I took the lunch box and started home, but I didn't get very far when I met a little rabbit. I tried to catch it, but it ran too fast. Then I went on till I got home. I went in and told my mother that I got along fine through the woods. I told her about the old man, the snake and the rabbit I met.

A PET RABBIT.

Dear Uncle Jed: I had a pet once. It was a tame rabbit. Its name was Major. It was a black rabbit. It would go in the garden and it would eat cabbage. It would go to the next door neighbor's and it would eat grass. I had thirty more later. Fifteen were gray and three were white and four were black. They would go in the woods, but they would come home again. I like the white one the best. It would follow me. It would not go away from me. At night it would go in the barn to sleep.

A LITTLE CHILD.

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wideawake Circle: It was a glorious morning in early June. The sun was shining brightly and there was a perfume smell of wild flowers. As I was gazing at this wonderful view I saw not far from me a little house surrounded by roses. As I was looking at the garden I spied a little girl who appeared to be five or six years of age. She was enjoying herself on the lawn. Her rich and glossy hair, cut in Buster Brown style, appeared to be of a golden color. She was gowned in white. Her beautiful appearance and delicate features made her appear like a princess in the rose garden.

I often think of this beautiful child and I am glad I had the opportunity of seeing her.

1,400 CASES CONTRABAND LIQUOR AND THREE BOATS SEIZED SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 15.—The crew of the New York patrol boat Liberty apprehended three more runners of the fishing boat type early Saturday morning and in the apprehension of the operators of the trio of craft about 1,400 cases of alcohol and whiskey were obtained.

The Liberty was cruising about the waters of Long Island shortly after midnight when the Pal and Nora were sighted off Madacock. The boats were low in the water and indicating that they were laden with weighty cargoes. The Liberty put alongside the two boats and when its crew boarded the boats it was revealed that each carried approximately 500 cases of liquor and alcohol. The boats were brought into port and moored at the customs house wharf, while Hans Hansson, Carl Reiter, John Peters and Alphonse Roasle, who were found aboard the boats, were locked up at the police station. Saturday forenoon the boats were taken charge of by revenue employes and taken to New York. While the trip was being made through the sound and off Madacock again, a third rum-runner was sighted and seized, the latter boat having 400 cases of a mixed cargo aboard. The crew of the Pal and Nora were taken charge of by United States Marshal Samuel Polack during the forenoon and taken to New York by train for hearing.

The crew of the New Haven fishing craft Rosalind, which was seized off Bartlett's reef lightship Saturday with a cargo of 70 cases of alcohol and brought into port, is still tied up at the customs house wharf, but the crew have been taken to New York for hearing.

Morris Spector, a Willimantic man, was in the police court Saturday where he claimed James Laibarg, stationed at the submarine base, had slapped him, a vicious blow at that, in the face. Laibarg did not deny that what Spector was true, in fact, but he claimed he was provoked to make the assault because Spector called him a vile name. Laibarg told the court he never had permitted anybody to apply the name to him that Spector used, and, said the sailor, "I have resented that always and always will resent it." Behind the whole story was the claim of Spector that Laibarg was breaking up his home. He declared to the court that "this man has been living with my wife three months." The court was not interested in whether Mrs. Spector was a faithless wife, but whether there had been a breach of the peace, and it found that there had been such and so imposed a fine of $25 on Laibarg. Spector said that he gave his wife $5 to pay her railroad fare, but instead of using the money for that purpose that she had allowed Laibarg to purchase tickets at the railroad station for her and for himself that were to take them to Bridgeport. Spector described how Laibarg struck him a severe blow in the face with his open hand and that his flesh was irritated and discolored as a result. There was no doubt in the minds of those who heard the testimony as to the truth of what occurred as Spector told it and as Laibarg admitted it. The sailor desired to make an explanation of the whole occurrence and to go back further, but the court was not there to listen to that nor to go into the details of the marital troubles of Spector and his wife as that can be settled in a suit in another court, the superior. Spector has children and the police declared that attention has been attracted to Mrs. Spector prior to the occurrence at the railway station.

Frank P. Wilcox of Chapel Hill was charged with intoxication and he admitted that he was guilty of the misdemeanor alleged. He does not take care of his family and though he pleaded guilty as charged he was placed on probation for six months and Probation Officer Mansfield was directed to look after the Wilcox family and after Frank, too, during that time.

Benjamin Ross, a chauffeur for parties in Stonington, was charged with parking his auto too far away from the curbing—a violation of the traffic laws of the city. Ross said he drove up to a fruit store on State street while his employer made some purchases and that he went as near the curbing as he conveniently could go. He said the front wheels of the auto were against the curbing while the rear wheels were perhaps two feet away. He did not see that he had violated any ordinance in doing as he had done, and the court took the same view of the matter, saying that any violation was merely technical and suspended judgment in the matter.

Abran was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with violation of the automobile law in not having an operator's license in his possession. Abran stated that although he had been denied a license a year ago he had continued to drive a car since his being deemed unqualified to operate an auto. Following the collision Abran's car climbed an embankment and dropped several feet into a garden at the corner of the intersecting highways doing considerable damage to the garden. The owner attempted to secure damages from Abran, but was unsuccessful and now threatens to seek compensation for the destruction of the flowers by civil process.

City Manager Holt is to report to the city council Monday evening the result of the hearing given to merchants and others last week as to the restriction of travel and the parking on Bank street. The desire of the meeting as expressed in no uncertain terms was that traffic should be limited to vehicles moving to the northward. That would take the trolley cars off the street so far as southbound traffic is concerned. But it is known that the Connecticut company will object to this and that the objection will be of a most positive nature. It is claimed that the trolley company must make changes in its schedule that will be an inconvenience to the company and that will reduce its revenue. It is also claimed that the company will set up the argument that it is in business because of franchise from the state and that it is to operate its lines in such way as will accommodate the greatest number of people. Superintendent Anderson has had an interview with the city manager concerning the proposed change, but what the outcome of it will be the meeting of the council Monday evening only will tell.

FATHER CROWLEY GIVEN RECEPTION SUNDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 15.—Rev. Timothy Crowley today reached the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. That event was made an event to commemorate in the history of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Father Crowley participated this morning in the celebration of high mass with Rev. Father Woolschlager as deacon and Rev. Father McGrath as sub-deacon. The congregation was one of the largest that has assembled in the church in a long time. This evening Father Crowley was given a reception in the basement of the church which was attended by a large number of parishioners. The reception was of a formal nature with William T. May presiding. There were solos by members of St. Mary's choir and an extension of good wishes and congratulations by members of the church and parishioners in general. A letter from Rev. J. Benson Danforth of the First Church of Christ was read by Father Crowley, who was visibly affected by the hearty congratulations extended and the fine sentiment spoken in the language of the note. In behalf of the parishioners Arthur Keefe, Sr., presented a purse of gold to Father Crowley which amounted to more than $1000. Father Crowley has been pastor of St. Mary's during 14 years and in that time has seen the parish grow remarkably and prosper materially. A second Catholic church has come to New London since Father Crowley has been here and that parish is nearly as large numerically as is St. Mary's. Rev. Father Tierney of Thomaston was among the large number that congratulated Father Crowley this evening. He was the curate at St. Mary's a long time and has many friends here.

The Gospel of Reform.

Sometimes, in addressing men who seriously desire the betterment of our public affairs, but who have not taken active part in directing them, I feel tempted to tell them that there are two gospels which should be preached to every reformer—the first is the gospel of morality, the second is the gospel of efficiency.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Every woman loves the wrong man once, and every man loves the wrong woman at least a dozen times.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

Danny Fox Gets Supper

Do you remember, little reader, that the Farmer's Boy missed Danny Fox in the last story? Yes sir, he not only missed Danny Fox but Mr. Wicked Wolf also. I guess that new gun got scared when it saw those two old robber.

"Gosh all hemlock!" exclaimed the Farmer's Boy. "What's the matter? I certainly took good aim. Then shoul-

"Dear, dear!" sighed Danny Fox, when well out of reach of a bullet, "I'm in hard luck. I must bring home something for supper. Mrs. Fox will scold if I come home empty handed."

Pretty soon he came in sight of the farmyard. It was just sundown. All was quiet near the big red barn and Danny Fox was wondering how he was ever— going to snatch up a stray chicken, when, all of a sudden, just behind the big hay stack he saw two young roosters fighting it out between them.

"Ha, ha!" thought the old fox, looking anxiously around. But there was no one in sight. The big pile of hay stood between him and the farmhouse. Creeping slowly forward he sneaked around the corn-crib. Then, crouching for a spring, the next minute he caught up one of the young roosters and sped away to his little rocky house on the wooded hillside.

Mr. Merry Sun was not at rest in the golden west, shadows were creeping from the shady forest, and Mrs. Moon was slowly rising in the east.

"I'll soon be home," thought Danny Fox, hurrying along faster. Pretty soon he opened the kitchen door and tiptoed in. He wished to surprise his family, you see. Danny Fox was a good father. His only way to provide them was to catch a rabbit or a chicken. If Mother Nature had given him any appetite for carrots and cabbages, he would have been as well satisfied to have visited a vegetable garden. He never thought, nor cared, whether he stole a chicken from the farmyard or caught a stray rabbit. No indeed. Danny Fox simply hunted in the same manner that all foxes had done since the world began. Other people called him a thief and a robber, but his little family thought him a pretty good father, as indeed, he was.

"Oh it's you," exclaimed Mrs. Fox, as he laid the chicken on the table. "And you've brought home a nice supper."

"It was lucky I happened by the farmyard," exclaimed Danny Fox. "This young rooster was so busy fighting with another that I caught him before he could get away."

Just then in came Bushytail and Slyboots, Danny Fox's two small sons. And in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

New York, June [illegible] (By the A. P.) —An [illegible] money market, with [illegible] prices of investment [illegible] of the week [illegible] of interest [illegible] the call rate on the New York stock exchange fell back to 2 per cent., while ninety-day time money was available at 3 per cent. The rate on bankers' acceptances relaxed to a 1-4 and 2 3-8 per cent. basis.

With money cheaper than at any time since the start of the war, the reductions in the discount rates by [illegible] open market conditions. The new discount rates are the lowest for all classes of paper in the history of the system. The reaction in business and [illegible]

The decline, slightly larger than that of April, was not a surprise because the figures on iron and steel production during May had shown that the industry had suffered severely. It is thought that the June decrease in the corporation's unfinished business will be smaller, as the rate of shipments has fallen to about 55 per cent. of capacity while new orders are holding fairly steady.

The Uncertainty over the future of the oil industry continues. Production of crude oil and gasoline have risen somewhat higher than expected, while consumption, principally because of the unfavorable weather, has been disappointing. The situation has been in delicate equilibrium and the best judges have not been certain as to whether reduction in prices will be necessary to curb the situation. Cuts in certain crudes have already been made.

Railroad traffic seems to be holding up fairly well, although the latest figures available, those for the week ended May 31, were deprived of part of their comparative value by the Memorial holiday. The total for the week, 900,000 cars, was 113,000 smaller than for the corresponding week last year. This decrease was about 50,000 cars more than that shown by the previous week. At this time last year traffic was expanding to a level consistently above consistently one million cars a week. No such expansion is apparent at present.

A sharp rise in wheat was caused by the government crop report, which indicated a yield 100,000 smaller than was predicted at this time last year. Prices jumped about 8 cents and held most of the advance. The rise was welcomed by those who hope for recovery in the grain growing regions. It has been emphasized repeatedly that the real cure for the unsatisfactory wheat situation is reduced production.

An indication of the continued and severe curtailment in the textile industry was given by the census bureau's report on the mill consumption of cotton during May. Takings of 413,000 bales compare with 430,000 bales in April and 620,000 bales in May of last year. They are the smallest since July, 1921. Exports, however, continue to run ahead of last year's. In May they amounted to 225,000 bales as against 160,000 in May, 1923.

WESTMINSTER

Before presenting the class for their diplomas, Supervisor Floyd gave a short talk on "Success or Failure," calling attention to the spelling of failure in five letters s-h-i-r-k, "shirk," and of spelling success with four—w-o-r-k, work. The diplomas were awarded by Chairman Lathrop of the local school board after calling attention to the fact that each of the 13 graduates expects to continue studies either in high or trade schools, the first class in town with this honor.

The flowers at church Sunday, the 8th, were remarkably beautiful, a number contributing large masses of choice blossoms. The color scheme was purple, lavendar and white, with a profusion of ferns and other greens, the whole being in memory of little Douglas MacLeod, who had helped greatly with other children to decorate the church a year ago.

In the audience there were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Connelly of Brooklyn, N. Y., married the day previous in Brooklyn. Mrs. Connelly (Helen Anderson) has many friends here, having frequently been a summer guest of the Lawsons.

Edward Burns of Irvington, N. Y., was also a church attendant at Westminster. His wife was a sister of Mrs. Frank Linnell and had died of pneumonia last week, the burial taking place in the family lot in Hanover on Friday, Rev. Mr. MacLeod officiating. Mr. Burns spent the week-end with the Linnells, returning to Irvington Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. W. Obbershaw, of W[illegible] were callers at Mrs. Agnes Wood's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Robinson, of Hope, R. I., were visitors at Dexter Balcom's and at William Ballou's Sunday the 8th.

The schools of the town are preparing for their closing exercises and entertainments. Some have a Health Play in their programs.

Joseph Griffin, owner of the Power place, had twin calves arrive several days ago, reported to be doing well in all respects.

Philadelphia has exactly one business firms that have been in continuous existence in that city more than 100 years.

POETRY

A SONG FOR THE ASKING.

A song! What songs have died
Upon the earth,
Voices of love and pride—
Of tears and mirth?
Fading as hearts forget,
As shadows flee!
Vain is the voice of song,
And yet—
I sing to thee!

A song! What ocean shell,
Were silent long,
If in thy touch might dwell
Its all of song?
A song? Then near my heart
Thy cheek must be,
For, like the shell, it sings—
Sweetheart—
To thee, of thee!
—Francis Orrery Tickner.

QUATORZAIN.

Most men know love but as a part of life;
They hide it in some corner of the breast
Even from themselves; and only when the rest
In the brief pauses of that daily strife,
Wherewith the world might else be not so rife,
They draw it forth (as one draws forth a tress)
To soothe some ardent, kiss-exacting boy;
And hold it up to sister, child or wife,
An inset why may not love and life be one?
Why walk we thus alone, when by our side,
Love, like a visible god, might be our guide?
How would the marts grow noble! and the street,
Worn like a dungeon floor by weary feet,
Seem then a golden court-way of the sun!
—Henry Timrod.

TROLLEY ROUNDING CURVE HITS AUTOMOBILE CRIPPLED ON TRACK

An automobile that became crippled Sunday about 7.30 p. m. on the trolley track opposite the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., on North Main street and was hit by a trolley car while repairs were being made furnished the most spectacular of several accidents in this city and vicinity Saturday and Sunday.

The machine, a touring car, driven by Samuel Chabotte of Old Village, Plainfield, who had his wife and child with him, had a rear wheel come off as Mr. Chabotte was driving towards the city after visiting in Taftville. He had come to a stop in the south bound trolley track just around the curve in front of the tannery, being unable to move the car off the track. While he went to work to make repairs, he sent two people back to warn any approaching trolley car, but their signals were not understood by Motorman Charles Roessler who drove the one-man car he was operating around the curve and head-on into the rear of the Chabotte machine. The trolley crushed the other rear wheel of the automobile, drove the machine along the tracks for about 30 feet and deposited it up the bank alongside of the track.

No one was injured as Mr. Chabotte got out of the way when he saw the trolley car coming and the other persons had left the machine.

The trolley company sent a car up from the barn on the north bound track by which the wrecked automobile was dragged off the bank, clear of the track and off to the easterly side of the highway. Officer William Sharvan, who was doing duty in Greeneville, took a report of the accident and Mr. Chabotte also reported it to Sergeant John Casey at police headquarters.

Driving Without License.

Anders Christian, who is employed in a hotel at Groton, landed at the Norwich police headquarters Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock, under escort of Traffic Officer Myron Morgan after the car driven by Christian had run into another automobile ahead of him at the Broadway and Shetucket street corner as Christian was unable to stop his car in traffic. The car he hit was a new Chrysler driven by Morris Friedman of 33 Pearl street. The Friedman car had its gasoline tank damaged, spare tire torn and cross member twisted.

Christian was driving a car with a 1924 Massachusetts registration but could show nothing more recent in the way of a driver's license than one dated 1919 and a Copenhagen license. He was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law and as he had no way of giving a bond for his appearance in court Monday morning he had to leave his machine here in charge of the police and he went back to Groton by trolley.

Injuries in Thamesville.

Sunday morning about 10 o'clock while John Hesler of 119 Golden street, New London, was driving northerly on the West Thames street hill near the corner of Shipping street his Ford coupe was in collision with a new Velie car driven by Michael D'Atrf of North Main street. Mr. D'Atri had to have cuts on his face bandaged by a doctor and a boy in the New London car was also taken to a doctor for cuts. The Norwich man claimed that he was turning out to pass a milk wagon that was ahead of him when the smash occurred. His car had the running board smashed and was badly damaged around the forward end. The coupe lost its left front wheel and had the mudguard and running board crushed in. Both cars needed the services of wreckers to get them away from the scene of the accident.

As the drivers could not agree upon a settlement for damages or as to the blame, they were summoned to court by a state policeman who investigated the acident.

POLICE CARS SPEED AFTER FLEEING AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, June 15.—When Louis Solomon reported to the Westerly police [illegible] that the Ford sedan 41-760 R. I., was missing from the garage on Elm street, the police departments of Norwich, New London and Providence were notified and instructed to be on the lookout for the auto, which was the property of his son Jerome and had the initials "J. E. S." on the side.

Word of the missing machine was received about 2 o'clock Saturday morning from Captain Twomey of the Norwich police department, when it was reported as passing through that city at a high rate of speed. The police patrol was despatched after the auto, which was headed toward Westerly, and Westerly police were directed to try and intercept the car on the North Stonington road. Police Officers Mitchell and Curtin in a jitney had scarcely reached a vantage point on the North Stonington road when the missing car dashed by them. At the Voluntown road junction Officers McMahon, Connors and Supernumerary McGrath were able to stop the car, which was found to contain three Westerly young men who had gone to Jewett City to a dance and were returning. The Westerly officers and the Norwich police patrol arrived at the junction of the roads at the same time. The three young men were taken to the Westerly police headquarters and questioned. It was learned that Frank Carr, a friend of Jerome and employed by Mr. Solomon, who let him have a key to the auto, had invited the two other young men to accompany him to the dance. The two young men were released but Carr was detained at police headquarters. Saturday night at 9 o'clock Carr was arraigned before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., charged with driving the auto without the owner's consent. He was released in $1,000 bail furnished by his father, Hampton Carr, to await the action of the Washington county grand jury, which meets next September.

AMERICAN LEGION DISTRICT MEETING IN BALTIMORE

The New London county district organization of the American Legion held an enthusiastic meeting at Baltic town hall Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. District Commander Wm. A. Anderson of this city presided. Department Commander E. P. Armstrong of Waterbury was present and talked on matter of interest to the Legion.

Several committees were appointed to look into the advisability of [illegible] ing new posts in [illegible] there are no posts now.

Much interest was shown in the matter of forming a voiture in New London county. Each county in the state has a voiture now except New London and those who belong to it say great things for it. A committee was appointed and it was decided to hold a "promenade" on August 7 at New London. At that time the tank, French freight car, gatling gun and all the other works that go with the organization will be on hand. Any Legion member who is in good standing is eligible to membership, and the membership blanks can be obtained from the post commanders of the committee. It is planned to [illegible] the Waterbury 'wrecking crew' [illegible] to work the degree. A "promenade" usually consists of a supper, a night parade and the degree work.

The committee on this affair consists of Jonathan L. Johnson, chairman; W. D. Copp, John Crilley, O. B. Arpin, Alfred LaFlesch, Gilbert H. Miner, Francis T. Shea, Theodore Anderson, A. A. Mallard.

These promenades which have been held in New Haven, Waterbury, Derby, Danbury, Danielson and Bridgeport have been spectacular affairs with their tanks, guns, French engines, freight cars, junk wagons, grotesque costumes, etc. In some cities the fire department, national guard, and civic organizations have turned out to add to the parade.

Announcement was made that the Reed-Johnson bill had been passed by congress. This extended the time when disabled ex-service men can present their claims. Attention was called to the coming convention which is to be held at Torrington. Matters of civic welfare and public interest were talked over.

The date for the next meeting was left open, and the district commander is to set a date and arrange for a clambake to be held in conjunction with the meeting some time in July.

The meeting adjourned about 5 o'clock and the Baltic members served refreshments.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER CELEBRATED FLAG DAY

There was a large attendance at the meeting, which was opened by the first regent, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, in the absence of the regent, Mrs. George A. Ashbey. The meeting opened with the singing of America, followed by repeating in unison the Lord's prayer and the salute to the flag. The annual reports of the officers and committees were heard and accepted.

The ways and means committee reported $91.57 proceeds from the recent garden party held by the chapter. One-half of this amount goes to the C. A. R. The museum chairman, Mrs. William Tyler Browne, reported that the museum will be open every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon. A membership of 143 resident and 23 non-resident members was reported by the membership committee. A gift of $25 from the Sons of the American Revolution was reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Comstock. Mrs. Pettis announced that Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn has been elected a director of the Ellsworth Memorial association for three years.

It was announced by Mrs. Pettis that the state regent has issued a warning to the Daughters of the American Revolution against societies which are being formed throughout the country such as 'Woman's League for Peace and Prevention of War," which organizations have headquarters in Russia, and directions are sent out from Russia, and in joining which one has to promise "never to knit a sock," "never to fold a bandage," ("never to help a soldier in any way," and other things.

After the business meeting Mrs. Henry T. Church sang To a Hill Top and I Bring You Roses. Mrs. Amos A. Browning read an interesting paper on A New England Kitchen, and this was followed by selections by a quartet composed of Mrs. Henry T. Church, Mrs. William Crowe, William Rush and George Turner, accompanied by Miss Olive Linton, pianist. The quartet sang We Will Keep Old Glory Flying and The Flag of the Free.

Adjournment was then taken to the museum, where the members were received by Mrs. William Tyler Browne, who arranged the program for the afternoon. The meeting adjourned after a social hour at the museum.

Edouard Herriot, the new French premier, devoted his first speech in his official capacity to the memory of Emile Zola at the unveiling in Paris of a monument to the novelist in the avenue bearing Zola's name.

M'ADOO SUPPORTERS ARE TO CONTEST FOR MAJORITY RULE

First Battle at Democratic National Convention in New York Next Week Will be Over the Question Whether Two-Thirds or Majority Rule Should Prevail—Governor Smith and His Campaign Manager's Are Opposed to the Majority Rule.

New York, June 16.—The preconvention tide of democratic party leadership was in full swing toward New York today. With it came definite indications that the first big battle of the Madison Square Garden sessions a week from tomorrow would center on the question whether two-thirds or majority rule should prevail.

Leaders made no secret of their plans to attempt to enforce the majority rule. They believe that if they could muster enough votes to impose their will on the convention they have the delegates pledged to McAdoo for the presidency on the first ballot, or soon thereafter.

Governor Smith and his campaign manager, known to be opposed to the majority rule are optimistic of defeating the McAdoo men to whom the two-thirds rule is a chief topic of discussion in the prospects of [illegible] McAdoo.

Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the national committee, who was not to be opposed for the chairmanship of the convention, Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the committee on arrangements at Madison Square Garden, and clear-cut supporters of Governor Smith, declined to assume the responsibility of leadership in the fight against the majority rule. Democratic headquarters will be established in Washington with Davis, Carter Glass, Underwood and a half dozen other candidacies have been announced. Headquarters are expected to be established in various hotels in New York with William G. McAdoo coming as a delegate from California and his brother, Charles McAdoo from Nebraska and potential candidates for the presidency, have headquarters in New York.

COOLIDGE AVERTS BREAK IN REPUBLICAN LEADERS

Washington, June 16.—Differences among members of the administration group of republican leaders, which were displayed openly during the closing hours of the Cleveland convention, burst out again today and a break only was averted by action of President Coolidge.

An olive was forced by C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, over the methods used at Cleveland by William M. Butler, who was the president's pre-convention campaign manager and who now is republican national chairman. Disagreement over the Butler methods aroused strong feelings on both sides and the matter came to the president today in a threat by Secretary Slemp to resign.

The president was compelled to assume the role of peace-maker with the result that Mr. Slemp after a conference with Mr. Coolidge issued a statement before leaving for Cincinnati saying he expected to retain the secretaryship and also participate in the "broad management," of the coming campaign.

Mr. Slemp declined to amplify his formal statement but it was learned that after conferences with friends and with others who returned from Cleveland displeased with Mr. Butler's tactics, he went to the president with the demand that either the active campaign be placed in the hands of a committee or that he be permitted to retire not only as secretary but from active participation in the campaign.

Faced by a break in leadership at the start of the campaign, Mr. Coolidge is understood to have assured Mr. Slemp he had planned from the first to lodge active conduct of the campaign in the hands of an advisory committee and that there was no intention of maintaining a one-man directorship. Mr. Slemp also is understood to have been told that there would be no future basis for complaints of "dictatorship," and "tactlessness" such as have been circulated since the convention ended and declared without basis by the Butler forces.

These assurances are accepted by Mr. Slemp, who after issuing his statement, left for Cincinnati where his cousin is ill, to be absent from Washington about ten days or two weeks.

NEW FRENCH GOVERNMENT TO MAKE DECLARATION TODAY

Paris, June 16—(By the A. P.)—The declaration of the new government, which is to be read in the chamber of deputies tomorrow afternoon, will be a lengthy one, it is said at the foreign office, but those who look for sensational sensations in Premier Herriot's program will, it is assured, be disappointed. The general lines of the government's profession of faith will be the same as M. Herriot's outline given the socialists when he was negotiating for their support.

The declaration of the new government will amplify the points in the program on which the socialist support, if solicited, will repeat the assurance that the wide socialist support is desired, will favor wide amnesty will state that the government will work toward better understanding with Germany, will suggest the earliest possible and full application of the Dawes' plan, will recall the ambassador from the Vatican, will do all it can to strengthen the bonds of the league of nations, and will see that the treasury deficit is met through a widened system of taxation so as to enable the government to do away with resources it now receives from [illegible]

The [illegible] recognition of the Soviet government of Russia will be one of the points in the government program, but with the provision that French interests in Russia must be preserved.

BUTLER'S VIEWS OF RACIAL AND RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Philadelphia, June 16.—Those persons who persist in manifesting intolerance toward men and women of a race, a color or a creed in which they, themselves, do not belive, are essentially uncivilized, said Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, in a letter of felicitation to the Negro National Education." Dr. Butler wrote "must labor in season and out of season to resist and check that persecuting tendency, which is a mark of barbarism, and which manifests itself now in lynching, now in prohibition, and now in the cowardly and unpatriotic activities of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Every liberal will wage war on this spirit of persecution until a sound and truly liberal education drives it from the human heart."

REPORTS OF BALLOONS IN BENNETT CUP RACE

Brussels, June 16 (By the A. P.)—Up to midnight safety and sanity seems to be marking the balloon race for the Gordon Bennett cup. Three landings have been reported. Captain H. E. Honeywell, piloting the American "Uncle Sam," came down near Rouen; the Italian pilot, Major Josph Valle, in command of the Crampel, reached Fecamp, while the British Banshee III, Major Baldwin in command, came to the ground at Auboue, near Hussy, in the Meurthe-Et-Moselle department, about 6 o'clock tonight.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Austria Under L. of N. Control

Geneva, June 16 (By the A. P.)—Austria failed today to induce the council of the league of nations to fix a definite date for her liberation from league control under the financial rehabilitation plan. The council adopted a resolution declaring its definite opinion that further economies should be practiced by Austria and urging her to pursue energetically the carrying out of the reforms embodied in the reconstruction project so that real stabilization of the budget might soon be achieved.

ALIENISTS TO TESTIFY FOR LEOPOLD AND LOEB

Chicago, June 16. — After learning that alienists for the defense in the case of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, awaiting trial for the kidnapping and murder of young Robert Franks, had declared that the two millionaires' sons were psychologically abnormal and therefor should not be hanged for their crime, William O. Krohn, mental expert for the state, gave out his own theory as to the youths' mentality.

"Smart alecks," he termed their ailments, minus "long, law-breaking legal phrases, being nothing more than that which corrupts bad little boys and causes their parents to spank them." He stated that he did not believe being a "smart aleck" was sufficient to keep a murderer from the gallows.

The defense alienists today continued their intricate physical and psychological tests of the youths, the results of which will be presented to their attorneys for use in the trial, August 4.

Investigation of alleged brutalities by the police in questioning two of Franks' teachers before Leopold and Loeb confessed was started today by a council committee appointed last week by Mayor Dever.

From west of the Missouri river, reports during the day told of thousands of sheep and cattle dead, buildings laid low and flax and wheat crops battered by hail, wind and rain.

New York, June 16.—Stockholders of the General Motors corporation, meeting today at Wilmington, Del., approved plans to simplify the company's capital structure by reducing the number of common shares outstanding from 20,646,400 to [illegible] and consolidating the three issues of senior securities into one issue of 7 per cent preferred stock. Paris, June 16.—Argentina versus the United States will provide the star bill for the opening match of the Olympic polo competition, now definitely fixed for Saturday, June 28, on the eve of the grand prix.

"We will have the finals on the opening day," Count Jean Pastre, who is organizing the tournament for the French Olympic committee, informed the Associated Press today. This remark is explained by the fact that the United States and Argentina have been regarded by the experts as likely winners of the competition, and the luck of the draw has pitted them against one another in the first match.

Men Were Maltreated in Santa Ana Canyon, Cal.—Aftermath of I. W. W. Trouble.

Santa Ana, Calif., June 16.—Four men are believed to have been tarred and feathered in Santa Ana Canyon, near here, Saturday night, according to Ed McClellan, chief criminal investigator for the sheriff's office. One of them is believed to have been a member of the I. W. W. from San Pedro.

McClellan said a party of upwards of 300 men in automobiles passed up the canyon Saturday night. He said he came to a spot in the woods where parts of four outfits of clothing were lying about among loose feathers, while close by was one five gallon tar container, empty, a second partly filled and two tar brushes.

He found an I. W. W. membership card, dated San Pedro.

McClellan declared this led him to believe that the reports of kidnapping of four men during the riot at the I. W. W. hall at San Pedro Saturday night were correct.

He said he followed a trail of tar and saw it go down into the bed of the Santa Ana river.

POLICE AND SAILORS GUARD MORGUE IN SAN PEDRO

San Pedro, June 16.—Squards of harbor police, armed with riot guns and a detachment of sailors from the Pacific fleet, carrying rifles today are guarding the bivouac of the dead, the morgue, where more than fifty bodies of those who died in the Mississippi disaster last Thursday await funeral rites.

The naval and police cordon drawn about the building containing the ecaskets, following reported threats that members of the I. W. W. planned to dynamite in retaliation for a raid on the I. W. W. headquarters by a crowd of sailors and civilians.

The bodies will be removed today from the morgue to a temporary chapel at Trona, the athletic grounds where the memorial services will be conducted tomorrow with full naval ceremony.

The guard of armed sailors and police will maintain its post of watchfulness until the services commence.

HAND OF DEAD MAN TOUCHED SWITCH, CAUSING EXPLOSION

San Pedro, Calif., June 16. — The hand of a dead man, whose body was being moved from turret No. 2 aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi last Thursday, touched the selective switch in the death chamber, and fired the left 14-inch rifle injuring four men with its recoil, it was established today by naval court of inquiry.

George C. Ogletree, petty officer, one of the first of the rescue party to enter the turret after the ship disaster told the court that the dead man's hand touched against the switch firing the gun. He said that he and his comrades were removing the body of a sailor from the turret.

"It was impossible for us to get the body through the hatch head first," he said, "and we were turning it about when one of the arms fell on the selective switch.

"For an instant we were stunned by the force of the explosion and the recoil of the gun. Then we realized what had happened onde one of our party removed the dead man's hand from the switch where it had fallen."

Electrical Officer Charles R. Brown, did not give the court information how many air compresors were working, but declared in his booth all turned on, indicating that all compresors should be working.

Lieutenant Commander W. R. Carter, senior engineering officer of the Mississippi, who was at the starboard periscope in the control tower at the time of the first explosion, produced records from his department showing that four air compressors were working full force with 140 pounds pressure.

He said several times the compressors "popped off" at 150 pounds.

GUN MECHANISM WAS NOT WORKING PROPERLY

San Pedro, Calif., June 16.—(By The A. P.)— Number two turret on the U. S. S. Mississippi where the explosion, fatal to 48 naval men, occurred Thursday, was not the only one in which the auxiliary gun mechanism was not working properly that day, according to testimony on the inquiry board on the United States ship Tennessee today.

EXCITEMENT IN SAN PEDRO OUTCOME OF I. W. W. RIOT

San Pedro, Calif., June 16.—This harbor city today is a pot boiling over with rumors and suppressed excitement as a result of the raid on I. W. W. headquarters here Saturday night, following reported disloyal remarks made by members of the organization regarding the disaster on the U. S. S. Mississippi Thursday.

On top of this case a report that I. W. W. were planning to dynamite the morgue in which lay the bodies of the Mississippi's victims.

Naval officers declared that despite a careful check they were unable to learn of a single sailor from the fleet who had been with the mob that wrecked I. W. W. headquarters, when several were injured and some members of the I. W. W. were said to have been kidnapped. The mob consisted of civilians and men clad in navy uniforms.

I. W. W. headquarters today said that men had been recognized in the Saturday night mob who wore sailors' uniforms, but who were known to be civilians.

They also declared that no disparaging remarks about the Mississippi disaster had been made. To support this assertion, a sign in large letters was nailed over the door of the I. W. W. hall disclaiming that either in "thought, speech or action" any slurring remarks had been made with reference to the "terrible naval disaster."

The sign read:

"Members of the I. W. W. have not in thought, speech, or action defamed nor passed slurring remarks at any time about the terrible naval disaster. Neither have we any such absurd idea of dynamiting the morgue or committing any other act of violence whatsoever."

THIRD POLITICAL PARTY CONVENTION IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, June 16.—(By The A. P.) Communists and representatives of union labor and farmer organizations fought today for strategic ground from which to control the national farmer-labor progressive convention which opens here tomorrow. After a hectic debate in the committee on arrangements and organization, the issue was undecided.

The skirmish line was drawn between two lesges. One has to do with the indorsement of Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin as a candidate for the presidency. The other relates to the form of organization which the backers of the convention hope will result from the gathering.

The farm and union labor groups constituting a majority of the committee will recommend to the convention that no centralized party be formed but that a series of state organizations be fostered through which the political ideas of the Wisconsin senator may be forwarded. The idea of the nomination for presidency but endorsement of Senator LaFollette goes with this report.

BATTLESHIP WEST VIRGINIA GROUNDED IN SOFF MUD BANK

Three Tugs, Two Mine Sweepers and a Destroyer Tender Stood by in Lower Chesapeake Bay and Pulled the Battleship Off at High Tide—Warship Was Bound for France With Navy Contingent of the American Olympic Team Aboard—Was Forced to Put Back for Minor Repairs.

Norfolk, Va., June 16.—The battleship West Virginia went aground in a soft mud bank on the north side of the Thimble Shoal channel in Lower Chesapeake Bay opposite No. 8 buoy, 5 o'clock this morning. Three tugs, two mine sweepers and a destroyer tender which have been standing by expect to pull her off at high tide tonight.

The West Virginia grounded during a heavy rain storm. According to reports from the vessel she was proceeding down the channel when mud was sucked into her condensers by the discharges and the power immediately shut off. Helpless she drifted to the north side of the channel where she stuck fast. There was said to have been no civilian pilot aboard.

A preliminary examination, officers said, indicates that the damage could be repaired in a few hours.

Washington, June 16.—The battleship West Virginia, which left Hampton Roads today for France with the navy contingent of the American Olympic team aboard, ran aground shortly after sailing and will be forced to put back for repairs.

In a message to the navy department late today from the battleship, it was stated that she had lost a tower and cracked a condenser head when she struck in a dredge channel, but was lying easily and expected to be pulled off at high water between 7 and 8 o'clock tonight.

It was the shakedown cruise for the ship. The message to the department follows:

"West Virginia [illegible] tower in dredge channel when proceeding to sea from Hampton Roads about 1 p. m. [illegible] easily on northern edge of channel, three mine sweepers alongside and navy yard scouting tugs. Expect to haul off [illegible] soon as they arrive. BILL BRENNAN KILLED FOR DEFENDING WOMAN

New York, June 16.—William James (Bill) Brennan, the heavyweight pugilist, was slain in his uptown cabaret early yesterday because he resented abusive remarks made to a woman by Joseph Pioli, one of the two men held without bail today for the killing, according to Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones.

The woman, whose name was not revealed, had gone to Brennan's cabaret with a party of which Pioli was a member, according to the prosecutor. As she was leaving with Pioli, he made abusive remarks to her. Brennan interceded, either pushing or [illegible] Piolo off in ejecting him from the cabaret, the prosecutor said.

"There are other ways of settling a guy than withour fists." Piolo is said to have said.

Piolo then left the cabaret, the prosecutor continued, and soon returned. When Brennan approached him in a hallway leading to the cabaret, a shot sounded and Brennan dropped to the floor. Four or five other men were in the hallway, Jones asserted. The only other man arrested was Terence O'Neil, a pugilist, who was captured with Piolo soon after the shooting.

The prosecutor's statement was issued after the two prisoners had been grilled for hours by the police in efforts to learn the motive for the shooting. Both men denied firing the shot that killed Brennan.

Several thousand persons gathered outside the homicide court and jeered today as Piolo and O'Neil were taken for arraignment. Both men were held for trial without bail.

James Cullen, a state trooper and friend of Brennan, also was mortally wounded when he tried to prevent the escape of the slayer. He died in a hospital today. Brennan's sister, a cabaret entertainer known professionally as Shirley Sherman, was in the cafe when her brother was shot.

Jack Dempsey, who was able to knock out Brennan only the 12th round of a bout in 1920, was among the scores of persons who sent messages of condolence to Brennan's widow today.

HOW GERMANY REGARDS FRENCH WAR MINISTER

Berlin, June 16—(By the A. P.)—Premier Herriot's justification of his selection of General Nollet as war minister in the French cabinet has provoked a certain feeling of disappointment, if not distress, in official quarters here. Rhode Island delegates to the Democratic National convention which opens ni Madison Square Garden, New York, nevt week Tuesday, will find that there are seats for only a small fraction of those who have already applied for them, Col. F. H. Quinn, democratic, national committeeman, said today.

Col. Quinn said that the prospects for getting a large number of Rhode Islanders into the convention hall as spectators were anything but bright and that he was keenly disappointed because of the small number of seats available.

It had originally been represented to the national committee, he said, that the Garden would seat 17,000 persons. According to latest authentic reports the capacity is but 12,000 and outside of the seats reserved for the national committee, for delegates, alternates and the press, and for local allotment in New York, only about 5000 will remain for distribution among the states.

Col. Quinn said he considered that Rhode Island would be fortunate if it obtained 25 or 30 seats. Already more than 170 persons have applied for these.

So difficult has the seating problem proved to be that the committee of arrangements which was appointed to handle it has decided to turn the whole matter over to the national committee and a meeting of thta body has been called for next Staurday morning in New York. The allotment will be settled probably, at that time and the seats will be given out, as usual, the day before the convention opens.

Mr. McCray was attended by Dr. F. Edward Burke, and then taken to his brother's home.

John L. Gardiner, who was brought to Pawcatuck on Sunday from South Boston, by Pawcatuck Police Officers McMahon and Connors, was arraigned on Monday morning in a session of Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox by Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna. The warrant dated May 21st charged the defendant with neglect to support his wife, Lucile Gardiner, from May 1st. He entered a plea of "not guilty." Attorney McKennu stated to the court that Gardiner's wife and two children resided on Stillman avenue in Pawcatuck for the past three br four months and that the husband went to Boston two weeks ago without leaving his wife any money for her support and the children. Miss Crowley, the welfare worker, Selectman Purtill and Attorney McKenna had considered the case and came to the conclusion that the best method was to have the family returned to South Boston from which place they had come to the town of Stonington. The town solicitor asked that the case be continued two weeks and the defendant be required to furnish a bond of $200 and the accused be his own principal surety. Judge Wilcox continued the case two weeks and placed the bond at $200 with the accused's own recognizance. Arrangements are being made for the return of the family to South Boston.

Jean F. Abrau, a Portuguese, residing in Stonington, was next before the court. As State Policeman Kennerson said, "Sunday last was an eventful day in Jean's career, for he had trouble in New London as well as Stonington." Abrau was arraigned by Prosecutor McKenna, charged with reckless driving.

Frank Davis of Stohington was sworn as interpreter, and when the complaint was made known to Abrau, he entered a plea of guilty.

It developed that the defendant's knowledge of English was limited and a license was denied him last January but he continued to operate an automobile. When the officer asked for his license he stated it was at home and the truth was learned in court Monday morning. The car in Sunday's case was a Cadillac and the passengers were in the auto at Mystic when a speed of 45 miles was shown.

Judge Wilcox found Abrau guilty and he was fined $35 and costs, which he paid.

All this was in preparation for the institution of Abab Sanctorum No. 230, O. H. & P., which took place in Odd Fellows' hall at 4 o'clock, the institution ceremonies being opened by Asir Sanctorum No. 160, of Providence, with Kirkland H. One of his stunts was the stopping of passing automobiles containing those who wore a red fez and searching for cigars, liquor, etc., one such hold-up yielding a box of cigars and what appeared to be a bottle of whiskey, but which had been specially prepared for the occasion and contained only water, soap and some coloring fluid. "Stant," King, dressed as a clown and riding a tractor, also provided amusement, and the two real goats in the parade wore a decided hit.

The degree of humility was conferred on a class of 58 candidates by the Caravan from Providence sanctorum, and Abab sanctorum was instituted with 114 members.

Following the business session a four-act comedy was put on by artists from Boston.

Taken all together it was a grand success and reflects great credit on those who had charge of the arrangements, and one thing worthy of special mention was the excellent manner in which a squad of the state police handled the traffic during the afternoon and evening.

Broadway Theatre.

The dictionary gives the definition of bashfulness as "shrinking modesty." But our definition, after viewing Harold Lloyd's latest Pathe comedy, "Girl Shy," at the Broadway theatre today is that bashfulness is decidedly a subject for expansive laughter. Bashful persons have always inspired us with pity for them, but when Lloyd is seen as a boy scared to death of the female sex, he makes the part one of riotous mirth.

Lloyd is indeed one comedian whose pictures are ever a delight to see, for the reviewer and the audience never knows what to expect of him in advance. After a series of clever characterizations and stories in th apaar, he once more proves his great versatility in "Girl Shy" by giving to the screen one of the most entirely novel types of hero it has ever had. The old adage that "there is nothing new in the movies" has been completely blasted at last. Lloyd definitely proves the untruth of the timeworn statement.

Conspicuous in his support is pretty Johyna Ralston, who made such a hit with him in his last success, "Why Worry?" Johyna brings to the screen a distinctive type of beauty, young, dainty and refreshing. Others in the cast are Richard Daniels and Carlton Griffith, with the direction credited to Fred Newmeyer and Sam Taylor.

BREED THEATRE

Are English natures capable of as great love as Latin? The interesting question was brought up by Elinor Glyn, when she was at the Goldwyn studios where she aided Director Alan Crosland in filming her novel, "Three Weeks," which is the main attraction at the Breed Theatre this week.

Mrs. Glyn points out that in Latin countries there have been countless cases of supreme passionate loves, which have made history—but in English speaking countries this is very rare. She states she often used to wonder if it was because Englishmen were naturally cold, or because English women were not capable of inspiring the great passions.

Therefore when she wrote "Three Weeks" she made the man, Paul, an Englishman. But she made the lady a Slav—because that race possesses the passion and the intensity and the capacity of psychological deduction, more than any other.

Mrs. Glyn's novel seems to prove that Englishmen are capable of being fired by as great and complete love as men of Latin countries.

"Tnree Weeks" will be the chief attraction at tha Breed today, tomorrow and Thursday. A travel scenic, comedy cartoon and the Pathe news are on the same bill.

PALACE THEATRE

"If all motion pictures were as good as 'The Marriage Circle,' I'd go to the movies every day of my life."

That was the enthusiastic remark overheard in the lobby of the Palace Theatre yesterday after the showing of this Ernst Lubitsch production, a picture that contains such a galaxy of brilliant players as Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Florence Vidor, Adolphe Menjou, Harry Myers and Creighton Hale.

You will wait a long time before you see a better picture than "The Marriage Circle." It is at once sophisticated and simple, humorous and serious, with its story of a discontented rich wife who begins to make things hum when she takes a fancy to the husband of her old girlhood chum. It doesn't matter one whit to Mizzi that the husband is very much in love with his own wife; not she's too much woman to see the logic of that, and she begins to turn things topsy turvy domestically.

Thurs., Fri. and Sat.—Double features program—Pola Negri in "Gypsy Blood," and "Boy of Mine," with Henry Walthall, Irene Rich, and Ben Alexander, and be sure to see the reproduction of the Dempsey Firpo Fight, in round 13 "Fighting Blood." No advance in prices.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Prince is at home again. This lost dog, property of Miss Charlotte Bullard of Beacon street, Boston, strayed away last week while out for a romp with his pal, Ginger, an Airedale owned by Miss Bullard. Widespread publicity was given in Boston papers to the going away of Prince and an offer of a 5 days' vacation on a big country estate made to the one who would restore Prince to his owner. Edward Breen of Watertown saw one of the news writeups about the dog and decided that an animal that came to his home was the much wanted Prince. In restoring the animal he refused the tempting vacation offered, preferring to accept a money reward that he might buy certain things for his wife. It appears that Prince had never been fed any meat—this being excluded from his diet—until his recent disappearance from home, but Mr. Breen indulged him in it. Now Prince will be kept under closer watch, as having tasted meat, it is believed he may go seeking it whenever opportunity presents itself.

There is little indication of business adversity in this territory if savings of the people may be taken as a basis of considering the times. Savings accounts in local institutions continue to show substantial increases and with the end of June the banks will be able to report that the past six months' business has been very satisfactory. Savings accounts in Danielson banks in excess of six million dollars, all a guarantee against adversity for individuals that possess it and those who may be more or less dependent upon them.

Ward [illegible] only son of Dr. and Mrs. [illegible] Comstock. Comstock was standing on the ground holding a steel tape which was thrown against a 33,000 volt power line. A second engineer, who had hold of the other end of the line, escaped injury as he was standing on a pile of thoroughly dried wood.

Mr. Comstock had visited at the Bartlett home in Putnam. He was a graduate of Colgate College and was one of 30 college boys to enlist and go over-seas where he was gassed and invalided home.

After returning to this country Comstock tried to get into the aviation but on account of his eyesight could not pass the test. During the rest of the war he concentrated his efforts in arousing enthusiasm for all public causes in enhancing this country's interests in the war. His only brother also met a tragic death some years ago while skating. He was cross-

PUTNAM

Every seat was taken and many spectators were standing in the large assembly hall at the Municipal building, Monday morning, especial interest being in the cases of Harvey LeClair, Jacques, the quartette taken following a raid on Pomfret street last week Tuesday night. The cases had been adjourned from the following Wednesday morning.

Prosecuting Attorney J. F. Carpenter stated to the court that on account of the illness of the wife of Attorney Miron, one of counsel for the accused, he had agreed that the cases should again be continued and asked that the continuance be until Thursday. This request was granted by the court.

Attorney Carpenter also stated that since the last session of court he had learned that the Foster woman is married and has two children. In view of this he stated he would add a count for adultery in the cases of the Foster woman and Scott and asked that the bonds of each be increased $250 and Scott's bond $750 and the Foster woman's bond $500. Mrs. Aglade LeClair, mother of the defendant, Harvey LeClair, who had previously become surety on the bonds of all of the defendants, agreed to remain as surety with the increased amount, a total of $3,500.

Before the above cases were called George Beaupre, who said he had never bought any liquor before, was fined $20 and costs of $11.33 for being intoxicated. It was stated to the court that he got into a fight with his wife and scratched her up a bit but that she did not care to appear against him.

John Paulus, a seven weeks' resident of the city, was also taxed a total of $31.33 in fine and costs for intoxication. He said his real home is in Arctic Center, R. I.

While not as large as the morning gathering the matinee crowd at a special session of the city court held Monday afternoon at three o'clock filled all available seats in the assembly hall at the municipal building where the court adjourned from the small court room in the basement. Four defendants, arrested as the result of a Saturday evening raid by prohibition enforcement officers, were arraigned and furnished bonds for their appearance Friday morning. Henry McManus and Zepherim, alias Jeff, Bergeron, were bailed out by Bergeron's sister, Mrs. Arthur Faucher in bonds of $500 each. Both were charged with owning and keeping liquor with intent to sell. Joseph Richard also furnished a bond of $500 for owning and keeping. Richard has twice been convicted on a similar charge in the city court and has only been out of jail two weeks for the second offense. Richard's wife, Dorinda Richards was charged with owning and keeping, second offense, and with resisting an officer.

These cases grew out of raids conducted Saturday evening about eight o'clock by prohibition enforcement officers, Congdon and Briggs and County Investigator, W. E. Jackson, all of Willimantic, Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Lowe of Danielson and Captain Jacques and Putnam police.

The officers made three raids in all and [illegible] at the bakery and home of Arthur Faucher, and they come away empty handed. Nothing of an incriminating nature was found on Faucher's premises.

At a lunch room alleged to have been conducted by Bergeron and McManus, the latter of Worcester, the officers seized a half pint bottle of alleged whiskey and some coloring stuff. Both proprietors were [illegible] names and immediately furnished bonds.

That mysterious stranger, that unknown "Someone," who has an unending supply of liquid refreshment, is still in our midst. It was thought that he had disappeared as nothing had been heard of him. Monday morning he again came into the limelight in the city court as unknown and mysterious as ever. Two drunks, who had sobered off over the Sabbath day, both told the court, upon being asked where they got their liquor, that they had met a man, an unknown man, a mysterious stranger, who had exchanged the beverage with an alcoholic content for a bit of currency of the U. S. A. If all of the testimony of witnesses in the city court is to be believed this unknown has sold enough stuff to be able to retire and live comfortably ever after. As long as the question, "Where did you get your liquor?" is asked in court this unknown stranger will remain in town.

Membres of the Rebekah lodge and of Israel Putnam Lodge of Odd Fellows attended the funeral of Mrs. Arabella Miller, wife of Frank Miller, who died at the Day Kimball hospital, Saturday morning. The funeral was from the home in Woodstock, Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Henry D. Baker of East Woodstock. There was singing by a quarette. The bearers were members of the Odd Fellows' Lodge. Burial was in the Hill cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tokens.

A juvenile session of the city court was held, Monday afternoon, when two boys, one 17 and the other 14, were charged with stealing a boat. On account of the past record of the older boy he was committed to the reformatory at Cheshire. The younger boy was given a talking to and allowed to remain in the custody of his parents.

Monday was the last day of school at the Putnam high school. It was au revoir to books and studies for the whole school and good bye to books for the senior class. The town furnishes text books to pupils and these were all returned Monday for use again next fall. This Tuesday the school holds its annual picnic at Webster lake. For years Roseland lake has been the scene of school picnics on the ban on bathing, promulgated by the state board of health, was the reason for abandoning the beautiful park in Woodstock for the larger lake with the long name in Webster.

Relatives and friends of pupils of Prof. Frederick Very of Providence gathered at the high school hall, Monday night, to hear them in concert numbers. Those taking part were: Miss Ruth Bradley choosing as her numbers, "The Jolly Sailor"; Burnham, "Twilight." Donald Bradley, and "Jolly Little Rain Drops," Spaulding. "The Brave Little Warrior," Krogman, was played by Richard Gilpatric. LITTLE JACK RABBIT

"Oh, Father is here," cried Bushytail.

"Yes, Daddy is home" shouted Slyboots, and they both hugged Danny Fox. Not because he had brought home a chicken for supper although that pleased them. Yes indeed. Just the way you are pleased little reader, when Father comes home with a bag of dollypops. Bushytail and Slyboots loved their daddy fox. Oh, yes indeed.

Danny Fox was the best of fathers, as all foxes are. And the best of husbands, too, for foxes chose one mate and are happy ever after.

Pretty soon the supper table was set with the nicely roasted chicken and a big dish of grapes for desert.

"Some people think that foxes don't like fruit," said Danny Fox, when there was nothing left of the chicken but the drumsticks, which Mrs. Fox had saved from two little foxes. "I was surprised the other day when Professor Crow admitted that he never knew that we foxes often eat frogs and grasshoppers."

"Did he copy what you told him in his Wisdom Book?" asked Mrs. Fox, handing Slyboots a bunch of grapes.

"Oh, I forgot to mention that," answered Danny Fox. "It's so long since I have managed to creep into the henhouse that it slipped my mind."

"Well, I'll tell him the next time I see him," said Slyboots. "And I'll also explain that once in a while a meadow mouse makes a good breakfast."

"Ha, ha," laughed Danny Fox. "Professor Crow will fill two pages

ELEVATING OUR GUNS.

From time to time since the ratification of the naval agreement, there has been raised the question as to whether or not this, or any other, country would be permitted under the terms of the treaty to change the elevation of the guns on its battleships.

There are those who maintain that the treaty restricts any such move, while there are others who insist that it does not and that we have a right to go ahead with the changes that have been planned and urged.

It is to be noted thus far that, while there has been a persistent effort to secure the needed appropriations for such changes on a dozen or so battleships, the appropriation has been made, and that every time the question is raised it is countered by the claim that it would be in violation of the treaty.

Now comes the claim that the British will oppose any such change in gun elevation as contemplated. If this is based upon fact it would indicate that the British interpreted the treaty in the same way that those do who have opposed the appropriation in this country. Changing the elevation does not mean the installation of new and larger guns. It means a changing of the structural parts of the turrets so that the gun may be pointed higher in the air for the purpose of hurling a projectile the additional distance in other words.

It is not to be supposed that this country desires advantages which would be denied to other countries under the terms of the treaty. We are prepared to abide by the requirements, but up to now it doesn't appear that any definite decision has been reached concerning the terms of the naval treaty in this particular respect. Is a protest actually coming from Great Britain or whether the demand for the changes in the treaty is raised again, it seems to be clear that sooner or later some one must make a final interpretation of the treaty. It is one of the provisions of the treaty, it seems to us, that should be made clear.

COMMENDS GENERAL DAWES FROM ABROAD.

It makes no real difference what the political nominations in this country are, it is nevertheless interesting to note that the selection of Charles G. Dawes received highly favorable comment from both Germany and France.

The nominations as are made by the leaders of the parties in this country are not for the purpose of pleasing foreign countries. They are in fact given consideration, and such encouragement as may be given to General Dawes is simply a reflection of the excellent impression that he has made in connection with his service for the adjustment of the reparations question in Europe.

When General Dawes was chosen it did not mean that this country or the republican party was urging or supporting the Dawes plan. There was nothing of the kind involved. The service which General Dawes has rendered in connection with the reparations problem has been conspicuous. It has made its good impression in this country as well as in Europe and is in keeping with the other work in which he has been engaged such as putting the budget system into operation. He is regarded as a man of excellent judgment and marked ability and whose service as vice president is desirable, with the fact no doubt being disguised that he would be the right kind of a man to succeed to the presidency should conditions require it.

The fact that both France and Germany are interested in his selection and are favorably disposed to him is not to be passed over lightly. This indicates that he has favorably impressed those who are antagonistic to each other, that he has presented a claim that bids fair to end such antagonism and that while he has an enviable war record he is likewise an effective worker for peace.

Even though General Dawes was picked for the vice presidential nomination solely on his merit as a good man for the place, the fact that other countries endorse him because of the service he has rendered in their behalf only emphasizes the importance of insuring his election now that he has been nominated.

INCREASING AUTO FATALITIES.

Plenty food for thought but food for action is provided by the weekly report of the registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts when he announces that the total of 17 deaths in auto accidents the past week was an increase of four over the previous week and the number of drivers convicted of operating cars while under the influence of liquor jumped to 88, or 22 in excess of the previous week. Should this increase be maintained throughout the year it would mean a total of 884 deaths for the next 52 weeks, while the convictions for driving while under the influence of liquor would reach the total of 4576.

Regardless of what may be said concerning the increase in the number of motor vehicles, this condition revealed by the report is far from gratifying. It indicates that despite all that is being done the situation is getting worse very rapidly. If the gain in the number killed is maintained weekly it will mean an increase of more than 200 deaths from this cause during a year while the safety in the highways is steadily being cut down.

Not a little criticism was made of the motor vehicle registrar of Massachusetts during the early weeks of this year because of his efforts to get the courts to do their duty in overcoming the deplorable situation. The fact that the conditions are growing worse in spite of all his efforts only discloses that he was undertaking no more than was justified and that it is because of the failure to insist upon greater safety that there is today so many automobile accidents and fatalities.

Massachusetts is not the only state where this situation prevails. The large number of deaths from automobiles is a sad commentary upon the efforts to protect human life and the cooperation that is given to those who are charged with that responsibility. Many of the deaths are due to failure of the individual to safeguard himself but there are too many instances of recklessness on the part of drivers to deal lightly with or to overlook the offense.

UNUSUAL AND UNFAVORABLE.

We are experiencing unusual weather conditions in New England this year. The spring has been cold and backward and the summer opens with indications of being unsatisfactory. The delightful month of June is half gone and thus far no one would know that the sixth month of the year had arrived were it not for the calendar.

But while something seems to have gone wrong with the weather making machinery, at least so far as normal conditions are concerned, we are by no means alone. Perhaps it might be said that we had a severe spring and that summer is opening cold, but quite as adverse are the conditions that are being experienced by those in the expedition which is headed for the summit of Mt. Everest.

Those who undertake to scale that unclimbed peak know well in advance that they are going to encounter something more than July weather. Severe storms, cold and dangerous conditions, thin air and treacherous paths confront them. It is a case where if you don't succeed the first time it is wise to try again. It is necessary to get a favorable season in order to accomplish the task of getting to the top of the world, but the indications now are that this is not the year when the explorers can consider themselves favored.

Having been forced back from the advanced camp by the severity of the storms, the leaders are not discouraged but they cannot fail to be cognizant of the fact that they must face unusual hardships if they reach their goal this season. It would seem that the east is experiencing quite as unfavorable weather at this time of the year as is this neck of the world. We can only anticipate but we must take what is provided.

PROTECTING THE CHILDREN.

Frequent are the instances where fires in schoolhouses are traced to the heating equipment. Defective flues, overheated pipes or overheated furnaces have been responsible for the ignition of woodwork and the quick communication of the fire to the stairways. Whether lives have been lost or means a danger that ought to be guarded against.

Not all schoolhouses are fire proof, but if the heating apparatus is so located in a fire proof section of the basement or in a building by itself that provided a safeguard that is worth the expense that is involved. The same can be said of the fireproofing of the stairways.

In the erection of new school buildings the importance of fireproof structures cannot be too greatly emphasized. Where, however, there are wooden buildings which will serve all the requirements for years to come the importance of surrounding the heating equipment with all possible protection cannot be wisely disregarded.

Only recently in the city of Cranston, R. I., there were revealed conditions which showed the safety of the children was not being properly looked after. The disclosure has resulted in the installation of new heating systems and the putting in of fireproof stairways. It is to be hoped that the buildings will never be visited by fire but if they are the steps which are being taken make certain that protection which was needed was not denied to the youngsters.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Have you done your heater up in oil and cotton batting for the summer?

Even now you'll find those who insist it is too warm and those who declare it is too cool.

California's orange crop is expected to yield 50,000 carloads. The summer beverage season can be taken care of.

The prospect that Mt. Everest will be climbed this year is not improved by the reported experiences of the climbers.

Mayor Curley sent Senator Lodge the key to Boston. The senator can retaliate by sending the mayor the key to Nahant.

Of course there's no democratic convention without William Jennings Bryan, but the same might be said of republican gatherings. He always gets a big reception.

When Senator Capper learns that it would cost $280,000 for the government to comply with his request to print and circulate 50,000,000 copies of an article by Richmond Pearson Hobson on "the peril of narcotics," no doubt he will withdraw it, as he is one of the most vigorous advocates of governmental economy. It is doubtful if 50,000 of the 50,000,000 copies would ever be read, anyway.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., June 16th—Besides untangling the loose threads left by the sudden adjournment of congress, Washington is trying to solve its traffic problems. They are much the same as in other sections of the country, and include the so-called wayside stands on narrow thoroughfares that lead from the capitol to the great southern resorts.

Washington has been interested to learn how New England is handling that problem which runs all the way from hot-dog stands to big lunch carts, in front of which tin can tourists park their cars, thus leading to traffic congestion. Out here where farmers can raise fruit and vegetables more months in the year than can be done in New England, the selling of fruit and vegetables and eggs from roadside stations has grown with the traffic. Speeding cars are finding fault at being held up while farmer and buyer barter and exchange but thus far no definite rules have been issued that make such hold up prohibitive.

At this moment talk is about evenly divided between comments on the republican convention of last week and predictions regarding the democratic convention of next week.

The democrats backing McAdoo are all het up over the thought that their candidate will probably muster a majority of votes early in the game but may lose them before the necessary two thirds are acquired. In other words, they fear the 1912 experience of Champ Clark will be meted out to McAdoo.

It was Pat Harrison, the 1924 keynoter, who at the San Francisco convention in 1920 made a motion to suspend the rules and on each successive ballot to eliminate the lowest candidate of the preceding ballot. The motion was defeated by a vote of 520 1-3 to 256.

There have been attempts made at practically every democratic convention to suspend or do away altogether with two-thirds rule and permit a nomination to be made on a majority vote, but this far, it has stood firmly hitched to democratic procedure. The rule originated in 1832 with friends of the democracy in New Hampshire. In that first democratic national convention a resolution was adopted that declared in part that two-thirds of the whole number of votes in the convention shall be necessary to constitute a choice." And that rule has now been in force well towards a century.

There is but small chance that it will be changed this year, or that a motion for suspension of rule will prevail.

Public speaking classes for women in politics are under way. Budding campaigners are advised not to attack the opposite party but to dwell especially on the achievements of their own party. Mrs. Upton advised the women not to dress "like a bare-back rider on yell as if you were calling Johnny to dinner."

Mrs. Upton, by the way, will run her congressional campaign on the slogan "Hurrah for Hat" using the diminutive of her own name of Harriet, as the war cry. Somebody suggested they next expected to see Senator Lodge run on a ticket "Hurrah for Hen." Mrs. Upton is a large woman of dignified appearance and "tall and ample" would not be amiss in describing her physical proportions.

Washington is expecting much of Senator Pat Harrison as a key-noter at the democratic convention next week. Harrison has ready wit, a sharp and glib tongue, and likes nothing so well as set republican teeth on edge by his thrusts at that party.

Some keynoters dwell especially on the achievements of their party or of the candidates to be placed in nomination. Not so the brilliant Mississippi senator. That's strong point is "pointing with alarm" at the doings of the other fellow. It is expected he will be up to his record at the New York convention "and then some."

Two years ago the democratic national committee sent Harrison and Caraway up into New England to work against Lodge. They did their trick so thoroughly, and used language methods not in vogue outside the fiery south to such an extent, that even Massachusetts democratic leader called them off and instead of a series of speeches they were sent back home and less rampageous speakers substituted. The New England democrats were willing to call their neighbors in the other party names, but when the men from the south pitched in and handled them without gloves, the home folks resented it as an intrusion. At the democratic convention Senator Pat will not be thus hampered, and it's a safe guess if there is anything blacker than black he will ferret it out and give its name to the republicans.

A pretty sure indication that the republican platform is a good one is shown by the way democratic senators here assail it. For instance, McKellar of Tennessee remarked "it is courageless, spineless, colorless and a mere aggregation of meaningless words." And coming from McKellar it can be interpreted as "the republicans hit the nail on the head."

The woman worker in both political parties is getting into gear and this year will help tremendously in the campaigns. The retirement of Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton from the national committee as vice chairman is regretted by many who admired Mrs. Upton for her quick wit, amiable attitude towards all, and her all round willingness to work. But Mrs. Hert, who succeeds her, is a woman whose life has been spent as a running mate to her political husband, the late Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky. That Mrs. Hert don't know about women in politics isn't worth knowing. She is tall, good looking and cordial in manner.

Some of those who recall the strong antagonism that existed between Mrs. Upton and Alice Robertson, when the latter was member of congress wonder if one incentive to the candidacy is not to stand on equal footing with her old enemy. Both women were republicans but trained in different camps.
